WALLACE WINS CONFIRMATION TO CABINET JOB

Senate Votes 56-32 for Approval.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—A crowd that jammed the galleries saw Henry Wallace confirmed by the senate as secretary of commerce today after the former Vice President had been denounced as proprietor of "New Deal & Co.," patent medicine peddlers.

Wallace was likened to a patent medicine man selling snake oil to "horse sense folks" by Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.], in a slugging debate that wound up with a 56 to 32 vote for Wallace.

The attacks on Wallace brought Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.] and Sen. Taylor [D., Idaho] to Wallace's defense. Taylor, known as the Singing Cowboy, is the senator who posed for pictures playing his banjo and singing "O Give Me a Home, 'Neath the Capitol Dome," when he came to Washington in January.

Confirmation Expected.

Confirmation of Wallace had been expected since congress, led by Democrats themselves, had stripped the commerce department of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and affiliated lending agencies which were under control of Secretary Jones. Jones was fired by President Roosevelt that the President might give Wallace the secretaryship in reward for political service.

Even Wallace foes, however, had not expected so heavy a vote against him for the stripped office of secretary.

Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] led the Republicans who voted for Wallace. Brewster explained it is tradition to permit the President to choose his own cabinet officers, but said:

"The nominee seems to many perfectly to personify the economic and social views, if any, of this administration . . . hatred of Henry Wallace, based on fear, is the surest way of annointing him as the Messiah of a new day."

Cites Unbalanced Cabinet.

Sen. Hawkes [R., N. J.] said he opposed Wallace because the appointment will make an unbalanced cabinet and because "I still believe in our system of government."

Hawkes advised the senate to disregard the "political pay-off," and the question of whether giving the political reward to Wallace was "illegal, immoral or an unethical violation of the Hatch act."

Senators Brooks [R.] and Lucas [D.] of Illinois were paired and not present. Party leaders announced Brooks would have voted against confirmation and Lucas for, if present.

Like Medicine Men.

Highlights from Wiley's speech:

"Cracker barrel folks in America think the whole tribe of New Dealers resembles the medicine men of eld . . . the New Dealers told them:

"'This miraculous panacea has received the unqualified indorsement of some of the foremost potentates of Europe . . . yes sirree, folks, you've got to use our double size all red healer to put you out of your misery.' . . .

"I propose to examine the patent medicine put out by New Deal & Co., Henry Wallace, chief proprietor. I am going to take their hokum apart and show you its ingredients.

"They are: The hokum of fear, the hokum of newness, the hokum of government, the hokum of strife, the hokum of guarantees . . .

"How much was it a bottle?"

F. D. R. Calls U.S. to Lasting Role in Europe

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—Proclaiming the Yalta agreement as a world charter of peace, freedom, and prosperity, President Roosevelt, in his report to congress and the nation today, summoned America to permanent participation in the affairs of Europe, age-old cockpit of war.

"There can be no middle ground here," the President said. "We shall have to take the responsibility for world collaboration, or we shall have to bear the responsibility for another world conflict."

Such American participation, to the extent disclosed by the President in a 56 minute address at a joint session of house and senate in the house chamber, would fall under these heads:

1. American membership in the new league of nations to preserve peace by force, drafted at the Dumbarton Oaks conference and scheduled for completion at the San Francisco allied nations conference next April 25.

2. Indefinite American occupation of part of Germany and collaboration with Great Britain, Russia, and France to disarm and prevent the rearming of Germany.

3. American collaboration with Great Britain and Russia to set up provisional governments in European countries liberated from German rule and to hold elections for permanent governments.

4. American large scale expenditures to provide raw materials, machine tools, trucks, and locomotives and otherwise rehabilitate industry, agriculture, and commerce in the liberated European countries.

"To Our Interests."

As the President envisaged such post-war outlays, first will come American expenditures for relief of suffering in the liberated areas and then the expenditures for repairing the ravages of the means of production by the German occupation. It is to our interest, said the President, to make these European countries again "self-supporting and productive so that they do not need continued relief from us."

That these activities and expenditures do not represent the full scope of participation in European affairs to which the President committed the United States at the Big Three conference was indicated by Mr. Roosevelt's statement that not only the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan but "some of the other arrangements made at Yalta" would require senate ratification.

What these arrangements are he did not reveal. Presumably they include the commitments which he explained to reporters aboard ship are necessarily secret but will become apparent in time.

Says We Failed in Last War.

Speaking of Dumbarton Oaks, the President said America failed her fighting men 25 years ago by not entering the Wilson league of nations and now cannot "fail them again and expect the world again to survive."

"We shall have to take the responsibility for world collaboration," he said, "or we shall have to bear the responsibility for another world conflict."

The President commented with pride on the progress of American arms against Germany and Japan. He twitted the Japs on their reluctance to send their battered navy into another battle with ours. He said they know what is in store for them now that Gen. MacArthur has

100 Iwo Wounded Reach Hawaii

Their bodies were torn by artillery, mortars, machine guns, rifles, and land mines. One had been hit by a 1,000 pound Japanese rocket. The first planeloads arrived Sunday night.

Stories of the wounded were alike in disclosing the bitterness of the fighting and the heroism of the fighters.

A naval officer from an infantry landing craft told how his ship, standing off Iwo for two days before landing, took four hits in three minutes. Sixty per cent of the personnel were lost. Out of seven officers, three were killed and three, including himself, were wounded.

One of the first Seabees wounded was a boatswain's mate, who lost his right arm from a direct hit by a mortar shell. He gave himself first aid thru knowledge gained while he was a Scoutmaster.

Names of the wounded cannot be used until the families are notified.

OF COURSE WE LOVE THE GALLANT POLE; WE FIND HIM CHARMING — ON THE WHOLE. WE HOPE HE PROSPERS and GROWS RICH; BUT THERE ARE CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH SUGGEST HE'D BETTER GO ELSEWHERE, SINCE, AFTER ALL, IT'S ONLY FAIR TO MODIFY HIS OLD FRONTIERS. (I PAUSE — I LISTEN — ANY CHEERS?) OH, WELL, LET'S TAKE HIS HOUSE AND LOT AND ALMOST ANYTHING HE'S GOT, THEN KICK HIM OUT AND SET HIM FREE TO REVEL IN HIS SOVEREIGNTY!
BUT YOU WILL UNDERSTAND, OF COURSE, GREAT BRITAIN NEVER BOWS TO FORCE.

SHORTAGE OF BEER PREDICTED AS OPA CUTS USE OF MALT

A shortage of beer over the bar when hot weather comes was predicted by brewers yesterday when they were ordered by OPA to reduce their use of malt by 12 per cent. Thus far the only effect of war conditions on the beer customers, said the brewers, has been a lack of favored brands at times, but from now on there may be days when there is no beer at all in the taps.

Brewers had expected a malt quota reduction of 10 per cent. The 12 per cent reduction, which will be reflected directly and immediately in the volume of production, makes the beer situation "serious," said Frank J. Wetzel of the Illinois Association of Brewers.

Production had been at the rate of 93 per cent of 1942 output, with 15 per cent going to service men under requisition. The troops will still get that allotment, so the 12 per cent reduction will be from the civilian share.

EX-DIVA TOOK HER RED POINTS, COOK CHARGES

New York, March 1 [Special].—Mme. Frances Alda, 60, former Metropolitan opera star, was named in a summons issued today by Magistrate Frederick L. Strong charging her with appropriating 300 red points from her cook's ration book. The summons is returnable tomorrow.

Mrs. Barbara Neill, also 60, explained that she went to work for Mme. Alda a month ago and was asked to surrender her ration book so long as she was eating on the premises. She said there wasn't a bit of meat in the icebox the day she got there, but the next day an 18 pound ham and a large beef roast arrived.

The cook said that she and the former diva came to the parting of the ways last Saturday. To her dismay, she said, her ration book, when returned, was devoid of red coupons.

50,000 Army Cigarets Sent to Dump Daily

Omaha, Neb., March 1 [Special].—While civilian smokers "roll their own" and fume over the cigaret shortage, the army here is daily throwing away more than 50,000 popular brand cigarets which are hauled to a dump for burning.

The army said most of the cigarets are moldy but conceded that some undoubtedly are good. George Green, operator of the private dump, said: "Plenty of them are good."

The destruction, which has been going on for about six weeks, was disclosed when Green, tho he doesn't smoke, finally decided that many unspoiled cigarets were going up in smoke.

Giving Them Away.

He telephoned the OPA yesterday and asked if there was any law preventing him from giving them away. Told there wasn't, he now hands out a dozen or so packs to any one who stops at his dump.

The smokes were in two year old K-ration kits brought back from the Alcan highway project and now being reclaimed at the quartermaster sub depot here. A kit contains a pack of four cigarets wrapped in cellophane, in addition to items of food.

Each morning an army vehicle has carted 14,000 of the packs out to Green's dump. Most of them were burned until Green recently began wondering about it.

Examined By "Feel."

Capt. W. K. Waugh, commanding officer of the sub depot, said six "very busy" persons have been inspecting 72,000 kits daily. Cigaret packs are examined only by a feel and a glance for signs of mold that would be indicated by the presence of moisture or a water mark. Packs are not opened for a thoro inspection, the officer said, because of lack of time and because the good cigarets would then dry out.

"About 80 per cent of the cigarets are found to be all right," Capt. Waugh said. "The others, and the spoiled food, go to the dump."

Some of the food rations are still fit for human consumption, some are sold to dog food distributors, and the badly spoiled rations are sent to the dump where Green burns them or feeds them to his pigs.

REPORT NELSON TO RESIGN AS ROOSEVELT AID

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson plans to resign shortly as personal representative of President Roosevelt on international economic affairs, informed officials reported tonight.

The former war production board chairman is said to feel that his services are being little used. Nelson, who quit the executive vice presidency of Sears, Roebuck & Co. to become WPB chairman shortly after Pearl Harbor, is understood to be planning to reenter private business.

MANILA, March 2 [Friday]—(AP).—American invasion forces landed Wednesday on Palawan, westernmost of the Philippines, and quickly captured its main port, capital city, and two air fields in a move to dominate the South China sea approaches to Japanese held Indo-China, Thailand, Malaya, and Singapore.

Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe.

Achieving complete surprise, the invaders "seized control" of the fifth largest island of the archipelago, 250 miles southwest of Manila, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

He pointed out that the successful operation by Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's veteran 41st infantry division will "insure the safe passage of our own sea transport" thru the Sulu sea, render the area hazardous for the enemy and will "condemn all his conquests to the south to recapture."

East Indies to the South.

To the south lie the rich Netherlands East Indies.

MacArthur said the enemy "engrossed in operations elsewhere, again failed to diagnose our plans and properly prepare his defense."

The 8th army Yanks landed near Puerto Princesa, midway along the 275 mile east coast of the narrow island which juts into the South China sea. They pushed swiftly inland to seize the town and two near-by air fields. The Japanese fled to the hills, MacArthur said, and American losses were light.

Bombardment by cruisers and destroyers and a two day aerial pounding preceded the landing. Puerto Princesa was blasted and deserted as the infantry men moved in, but the harbor appeared in good condition and landing craft began unloading their cargoes at the wharves.

Isle Is 275 Miles Long.

The stringbean shaped island, about 25 miles across at its widest part, is the dividing line between the China sea and the Sulu sea. Its southern end is only 90 miles from the northern tip of Borneo.

Palawan in American hands places United States forces along more than 600 miles of the South China sea.

The 41st division is one of the most veteran outfits in the Pacific. It is serving its 35th month. It served in 16 major assault invasions including the Marshalls, Admiralties, Saipan, Guam, Palau, and Leyte.

On Luzon, 1st cavalry division troops southeast of Manila captured hills dominating the town of Antipolo from the southwest after sharp fighting. They seized Cardona on the north shore of Laguna De Bay.

MacArthur said the fighting along this Marikina watershed area was increasing in intensity.

BACK TO TOKYO! TRIBUNE MAN'S STORY OF SMASH

[Vice Adm. Mitscher's task force hit Tokyo and Hachijo Island Sunday and Monday of this week. Altho hampered by clouds and snow, its planes wrecked two Japanese airplane assembly plants, destroyed or damaged 233 enemy planes, and sank or damaged 31 small ships, according to incomplete reports. Here is Tribune Correspondent Harold Smith's graphic story of the raid.]

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIERS, Returning to Tokyo, Feb. 24 [Delayed].—Back we go to Tokyo and the possible answers to some questions left dangling after our first two day strike which ended exactly a week ago. Word has just gotten around that our carrier based planes will take off at dawn tomorrow.

Yesterday with the ocean resembling the North Atlantic in winter, we filled our fuel bunkers from a tanker whose low decks were frequently awash with long swells and today several of the destroyers were refueled.

We are bucking brisk headwinds on the edge of a high pressure area moving northeastward and our Essex class flattop, plunging forward as fast as the tin cans [destroyers] can execute their wide zigzag pattern in the high seas, groans and shudders constantly with the effort of her dogged exertion.

Young Flyers Are Veterans.

All hands know tomorrow's destination. The big question in everybody's mind is: "What have the Japs cooked up for us?" Last week while we have been hammering Chichi Island and furnishing cover and tactical support for the Iwo landing, the unanimous feeling has been that we can't hope to surprise them again, and that our eager air group, its first combat behind it, will find good hunting.

In scarcely more than a week these flyers, superbly trained but new to the game of fighting, have become veterans. Their ready rooms exude confidence now that they have explored the mystery of what lies within the enemy's inner perimeter. They feel they are a match for the best the Japs have got.

Our captain related an amusing incident of refueling. In keeping with an old tradition our ship's band plays thruout the refueling. Yesterday the skipper of one destroyer requested the band to play "The Japanese Sandman." The band master, unprepared for that selection, played instead, "I Can't Give You Anything but Love." But today when the same destroyer stopped, our band swung unbidden into "The Japanese Sandman."

Is the Picture True?

"Are the folks back there getting the straight story of this war?" inquires a flyer from Maine. You tell him the correspondents are trying to tell as much of the truth as they can without giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

"Well, take the movie, 'Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo,'" he said. "In that the pilots are shown having a big blowout aboard the night be-

PARIS, March 1 (AP).—The United States 9th army today swiftly captured the Ruhr city of Muenchen-Gladbach—largest reich center to fall on the eastern or western front—and the German radio said tanks slashed 11 miles farther north into Krefeld, two miles from the Rhine.

The United States 1st army massed tanks and troops ready to storm the last five miles into Cologne, Germany's fourth largest city. Eighty miles to the south the United States 3d army smashed into the ancient fortress of Trier after a blazing six mile spurt that cut off several thousand Germans. Fifty-seven towns fell to the three American armies during the day. The 1st and 9th have taken 20,000 prisoners in a week.

Only 20 miles northwest of where the Germans said the 9th army was driving for the Rhine, the Canadian 1st army crunched southward nearly a mile, threatening to join the Americans in a rampage thru the sprawling Ruhr industries west of the Rhine.

Threaten to Trap Nazis.

The 9th army drive was threatening to cut off thousands of Germans arrayed along the Maas [Meuse] river and against the Canadian 1st army.

The fall of Muenchen-Gladbach and adjacent Rheydt, where Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels was born, came at a time when the Germans were surrendering by the thousands, enemy tanks, guns and men were pulling back across the Rhine, and resistance was badly disorganized in spots.

Muenchen-Gladbach proper has a population of 200,000 but is the center of an industrial region of 300,000 population. The city is noted for its textiles. Despite its strategic railroads and highways only 12 miles from Duesseldorf, it fell without a serious struggle. Citizens said the retreating German 15th army had by-passed the city.

Taken by 29th Division.

The honor of capturing the city fell to the 29th infantry division, which reached it last night. There were light skirmishes on the outside of the city and then the Americans moved in. Only 15,000 to 20,000 civilians remained.

The largest German towns captured by the Russians on the eastern front are Hindenburg, 126,000 population, and Gleiwitz, 117,000.

The largest German municipal area captured by the Americans until today was Aachen, a city of 165,000 population, which fell last Oct. 20.

The 9th army, commanded by Lt. Gen. Simpson, was reported making spectacular gains under a security black-out which, when lifted, might disclose that it already had reached the Rhine. One report said Duesseldorf already was being shelled by American guns.

[A front dispatch said that Gen. Eisenhower had conferred with Field Marshal Montgomery, commander of the 21st army group; Lt. Gen. Bradley, commander of the 12th army group, and the generals of the United States 9th, British 2d, and Canadian 1st armies on the final big push against Germany.]

Doughboys in High Gear.

A dispatch from Bradley's headquarters said three plans originally were laid out for the American Rhine-bound offensive — slow, medium, and fast—that the first two now had been discarded and the doughboys were in highest gear.

Between the Canadians and the Americans, the enemy's powerful Dutch line along the Maas river, which had balked a direct smash by the British 2d army, steadily was being rolled up.

Gen. Crerar's Canadians fought into the edge of the Germans' bitterly defended pivotal town of Weeze. Three and a half miles to the east, street fighting raged in Kervenheim, and four miles farther

Siegfried Line Now Trap to Nazis

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, March 1.—Along the entire battle front extending from Nijmegen in Holland to south of Saarburg, what remains of the Siegfried line is so far in the rear of the battle line that it has not only become useless to the enemy, but actually continues to be a trap.

Small sections of it, between the Canadian sector and Roermond, and between the small gap now separating United States 1st army troops striking southeastward from Dueren and Gen. Patton's troops to the south, form pockets. The disorganization of enemy defenses may partly be attributed to the failure of the Siegfried line defenses which were static and useless, and even a handicap when they fall into the rear of the battle movements.

For this reason the enemy no longer is secure along any part of this broad front and Gen. Eisenhower's plan to destroy all the enemy forces west of the Rhine can be said to be making even better progress than was anticipated.

east on the Uedem-Xanten railway, where the Canadians were trying to cut thru the Hochwald, a fir forest.

In this sector the Canadians were 10 miles from the northwest corner of the Ruhr.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army was building up powerful forces for the final assault on Cologne, and had broken across the Erft river—last natural defense line before the city—at five points.

Tanks and troops were pouring across the river and a dispatch from the front said the 1st army expected only delaying action before the city.

Drive for High Ground.

The Erft bridgehead was six miles wide and three miles deep and the Americans were driving for high ground from which the Germans were directing a hail of artillery and mortar fire at the crossings.

While the 8th division mopped up Modrath, on the Dueren-Cologne highway seven miles from the city, the 104th division forged across the Erft river and fought into Horrem, two miles to the north on Hitlers' superhighway.

Two miles to the north of Horrem, the 104th division in another of its famous night attacks crossed the Erft and captured Quadrath and Ichendorf.

Two miles to the northwest, other forces cleared Bergheim and speared on eastward nearly a mile.

On the south flank, the 1st army was making a drive which had carried to within 19 miles of the Rhine traffic center of Bonn.

Heavy Shelling Outside Trier.

The Americans were three miles away on the west and north from Zuelpich, a traffic control point west of Bonn. Among towns entered were Wissersheim and Dorweiler, nine to 10 miles east of Dueren. This drive was speared by the veteran 1st army infantry division.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army was toppling Trier, Germany's oldest city, and once conquered by Julius Caesar, after a sudden spurt that was believed to have trapped several thousand Germans southwest of the fortress.

The 10th armored division cracked into the city of 88,000 population in a storm of artillery fire from the ancient battlements and a battle raged inside tonight.

Gen Eisenhower had warned the Germans that the city, despite its history, would be shelled if necessary, but a field dispatch said the Americans charged in without a shell bursting inside Trier, altho it was terrific immediately outside.

Sweep Up 1,000 Prisoners.

The Germans had lined up 36 88-millimeter guns in front of the city, and the 10th armored braved their fire as it slashed thru mine fields.

Entrance came as a climax to a sudden northern sprint which engulfed 1,000 prisoners.

In all, 14 towns fell, including Irsch, two and a half miles southeast of Trier.

Other tanks and infantry were only three and a half miles northeast of Trier and were drawn up along a 13 mile stretch of the Kyll river in a position to smash on east behind Trier and head down the Moselle valley for the Rhine. The main highway to Coblenz was cut.

Continent based tactical aircraft were operating at nearly maximum strength. Up to noon the United States 9th air force had dispatched nearly 1,000 planes despite only scattered stretches of favorable weather. These planes attacked highways and railways on both the western and eastern sides of the Rhine, centering their main weight on the Muenchen-Gladbach and Duesseldorf areas. The weather turned bad in the afternoon.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

"South of Trier battles are in progress with the enemy attacking from his bridgehead on the lower Saar river in a northerly direction.

"Despite the gigantic amount of men and material which the British and Canadians have now been employing for three weeks between the Maas [Meuse] and lower Rhine, on Wednesday they were again only able to gain a few kilometers on the ground southeast of Calcar. Their attacks southeast of Goch failed.

"Under strong pressure of the incessantly attacking United States 9th army, but unshaken in their will to resist, our troops are fighting along a coherent front which runs from the area west of Duelken to the Erft sector and again to the banks of the Roer south of Dueren. Enemy attempts to break thru this front with the focal point on both sides of Rheydt and in the Grevenbroich sector, were frustrated."

Yanks Score New Gains in Germany

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KERPEN, Germany, March 1.—More than 5,000 civilians caught by the advance of Lt. Gen. Hodges' American 1st army across the Cologne plain, today almost deluged military government officials of the 8th infantry division, as they struggled to keep the civilians from interfering with military traffic.

Blatzheim yielded about 4,000 civilians and Kerpen added at least 800. Outside Kerpen another 700 huddled in the soggy fields around their few personal belongings.

Maj. Lester A. Ahroon of Bloomington, Ill., who was in charge, said he anticipated no trouble in feeding the mob since there appeared to be an ample supply of foodstuffs, the enemy having been unable to remove them before the onrush of the Americans. Most of the civilians had expected to be moved eastward but the trucks never came.

Justice of High Court.

"One of my first jobs was to get the Kerpen chief of police out of uniform," said Ahroon. "He showed up wearing his full regalia which looked like a Nazi party uniform. I told him to get the damned thing off before some one shot him."

Among the civilians was a 55 year old justice of the high court of a Rhine province. He had lost his job in September when the Nazis ruled that no appeals would be considered from the lower courts. He admitted having belonged to the Nazi party to hold his job.

One fur coated woman, holding three Scotties on a leash, wailed that she had a sick husband and that the Germans had taken her automobiles.

Some from Allied Lands.

From hundreds of windows in Kerpen women and children peered as the mechanized might of American armor poured passed, bound for battles farther on. Many persons appeared to be sick and hungry. The happiest were several hundred displaced persons identified as impressed laborers from Poland, Russia, Czechoslovakia, France, and Holland.

The American advance was so rapid that large numbers of sheep, cattle, and goats, usually removed before civilians, were roaming the pastures or the countryside.

Details of civilians were set to work milking the cows to provide food for babies. Others were employed at community messes. An abundance of potatoes and grain was reported captured.

Before the 8th division had moved to the attack, its civilian German labor at the rear had baked quantities of bread from captured German flour ready to feed the civilians. [No army rations or other United States food is authorized for German civilians.]

In some cellars in Blatzheim officers found large stores of food in glass jars, stacked three tiers deep as if in preparation for a winter siege.

Russians Extend Gains to North

RUSSIANS WIDEN WEDGE IN DRIVE TOWARD BALTIC

LONDON, March 2 [Friday]—(AP).—Russian troops widened their middle Pomeranian wedge toward the Baltic coast yesterday, driving one spearhead to within 11 miles of Gross-Tychow, where there is a camp for American prisoners of war.

Berlin announced that seven soviet armies had opened a powerful new onslaught in East Prussia aimed at wiping out the last Nazi toehold around Koenigsberg.

A Moscow dispatch said Red army planes attacking the Stettin-Danzig railway and highway, objectives of the Pomeranian push, had blocked traffic on those vital supply routes serving northeastern Pomerania and the Danzig-Gdynia areas.

Russian infantry men officially still were 22 miles from those arteries where they run thru the Baltic town of Koeslin, and 28 miles from the coast, but dispatches said Cossack and Siberian horsemen were even closer, threatening to cut the routes and seal off thousands of Germans by splitting Pomerania in two.

Gain Up to Nine Miles.

Marshal Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian army gained up to nine miles and captured eight localities during the day on a 40 mile front northwest, north, and northeast of Neustettin, prize communications town taken Wednesday.

Fourteen miles northwest of Neustettin one column took Zechendorf, 11 miles east of Gross-Tychow. Another American war prisoner camp is at Kolberg, on the Baltic coast, 33 miles northwest of Gross-Tychow.

Drive on Rail Town.

Fourteen miles east of Bublitz another Russian group seized Falkenhagen, only five miles southwest of the seven way road and rail town of Rummelsburg.

Pushing along the Neustettin-Kolberg railway soviet troops at the western edge of the Pomeranian bulge captured Eschenriege, eight miles northwest of Neustettin, and also took Buchwald, four miles to the north.

Eighty miles to the southwest the right wing of Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army was battering at the approaches to Stettin, the German capital's main Baltic port at the mouth of the Oder river. Berlin said the Russians repeatedly attacked Pyritz, 22 miles southeast of Stettin and 14 miles southwest of Stargard, the Pomeranian capital's outer bastion. Other soviet forces were reported to have forced a crossing of the Ihna river six miles north of fallen Arnswalde, putting them within 15 miles of Stargard on the east.

Moscow announced the capture of 10 more blocks in Breslau, besieged Upper Silesian capital, and the seizure of seven localities west of Losonc [Lucenec] in southern Slovakia, but did not mention the East Prussian theater.

3 NAVAL VESSELS SUNK; 200 DIE ON MUNITIONS SHIP

One Ship Victim of U. S. Submarine.

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—About 200 coast guardsmen lost their lives when the Japanese sank the U. S. S. Serpens, 14,250 ton ammunition carrying cargo ship, the navy disclosed today.

There were no survivors of the sinking. A "handful" of the ship's crew were ashore when she went down somewhere in the South Pacific area.

At the same time the navy disclosed the loss of a small salvage vessel, the Extractor, sunk in the Central Pacific by one of our own submarines as a result of mistaken identity, and the loss of the large infantry landing craft LCI [L] 600, sunk in the Central Pacific by enemy action.

Sub Goes to Rescue.

The submarine which sank the Extractor just before sunrise scoured the area after discovering its mistake and rescued all but six of the vessel's crew of approximately 60. The six are listed as missing in action.

It was the first reported sinking of an American warship by an American submarine in this war.

The landing craft, with a complement of approximately 25 men, was sunk in January in the harbor of a Pacific base after hitting a Japanese mine. Two men died and one was reported missing.

Serpens Skipper Safe.

Lt. Comdr. Perry L. Stinson, United States coast guard skipper on the Serpens, was reported safe, not having been aboard.

Lt. [j. g.] Lester P. Condon, New Rochelle, N. Y., skipper of the landing craft, was injured. The navy said it had no casualty status for the skipper of the Extractor, Lt. Horace M. E. Babcock, Tucson, Ariz., who was presumed to be safe.

The next of kin of all casualties of the three vessels have been notified, the navy said.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH DRAWS NEW PROTESTS FROM POLISH GROUPS

President Roosevelt's report to congress on the Big Three compromise agreement fixing Poland's post-war borders was assailed yesterday by Polish-American leaders in Chicago.

Charles Rozmarek, president of the Polish-American Congress, predicted "machine gun style of voting" will take place in Poland "unless President Roosevelt's assurance of free elections is translated into a reality." He said there are only 120,000 Russians in eastern Poland out of a population of 12 millions.

"President Roosevelt's statement that the people east of the Curzon line are not Poles is a very wrong impression," said John J. Olejnizak, president of the Polish Roman Catholic union, 984 Milwaukee av. "A majority of the people in that sector are Poles.

"Moreover, Poland is interested in the oil fields which are turned over to Russia by this agreement."

Mrs. Barbara A. Fisher, general counsel of the Polish Women's Alliance of America, challenged the justice of the Curzon line partition. She said a boundary such as that set in 1939 would have been fairer.

BRITISH REGAIN POSITIONS LOST ON ITALIAN RIVER

ROME, Italy, March 1 (AP).—Counter-attacking 8th army troops have regained some of the ground on the east bank of Italy's Senio river below the Russi-Lugo road which they had lost to the Germans, allied headquarters announced today.

A number of prisoners were taken in this action, which took place about 17 miles inland from the Adriatic coast. Part of the German force still remains on the east bank of the stream, however.

The 5th army front remained fairly quiet.

Brenner Pass Line Blasted.

U. S. 15TH AIR FORCE HDQ., March 1 (AP). —American Flying Fortresses and Liberators blasted 125 miles of the Germans' Brenner pass line in northern Italy yesterday with more than 1,800 tons of bombs. Lt. Gordon Fitzgerald, a co-pilot, 8053 Dobson av., Chicago was knocked out briefly when a piece of flak hit his helmet.

YANKS FIND 120 PERSONS IN NAZI TOWN OF 3,100

Girls and Boys, 15 to 22, Taken by Foe.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 63D DIVISION IN GERMANY, March 1.—American and German shells were flying above Kleinblittersdorf in a border duel but this little town on the east bank of the Saar river, five miles above Saarguemines, was not a target today and was striving for a return to something approaching normalcy. Its problems give an inkling of some of the things American civil affairs officials will be up against as we move on into the reich.

Kleinblittersdorf, taken by the 253d regiment of the 63d division last week, had been heavily damaged by both sides' artillery. Its listed population was 3,100, but now only 120 persons remain. The others who weren't killed in the shelling left with the Germans, some voluntarily. All the young men and women between 15 and 22 years old were taken, mostly by force, by the retreating enemy.

Two Americans in Charge.

Two 63d division civil affairs officers were placed in charge of the town a few days ago. They are Capt. Cornelius Koopman, Elizabeth, N. J., who had been in the construction business at home, and Lt. August Neberle, former prosecuting attorney of Saginaw county, Michigan.

Koopman and Neberle chose two prominent Kleinblittersdorf citizens as respectively acting mayor and head of the policing. The latter's names cannot be disclosed for fear of retaliation by the Germans.

Most of the town's able-bodied males had been employed in a grain mill. This has been partially wrecked and now the leather belts have been stripped from the machinery and the material is being used to make shoes for civilians here.

Live in Cellars.

The civilians' lodging places are in cellars because most of the houses are not habitable, and there is always the peril of shelling above ground. The food situation is not critical for the moment, because food had been hidden in the cellars. When those stocks are exhausted the Americans may bring in some food but only enough to keep the population on a subsistence diet, for our interest is primarily with the feeding of our own troops.

One of the first requests Koopman and Neberle made of their town appointees was for a roster and complete background of the civilians in Kleinblittersdorf. As soon as this census began, three German soldiers, who had stayed behind in civilian clothes, gave themselves up and were removed to a prisoner of war cage.

Two women—one 39 years old and the other her 16 year old daughter—were arrested on charges of assisting the enemy soldiers by supplying them with clothing disguises. The women are now awaiting military trial.

Also being held for trial is a youth 17 years old who is accused of possessing and concealing war equipment to help the Germans. He had been a member of the Hitler Jungen [Hitler Youth].

BOMBERS BLAST AREA IN GERMANY AHEAD OF AMERICAN 7TH ARMY

LONDON, March 1 (AP). — About 5,000 American and British bombers and fighters based in Britain and on the continent, tore up German transportation lines and equipment today along the entire western front as far south as the Munich area. Italy based heavy bombers of the United States 15th air force attacked the Moosbierbaum oil refinery, 22 miles northwest of Vienna. Tonight R. A. F. Mosquitos attacked Berlin and Erfurt, a rail center near Leipzig.

The nonstop aerial offensive was led by a United States 8th air force team of 1,200 Fortresses and Liberators and 450 escorting Mustangs. Operating in "wolf packs" they struck rail choke points in a 70 mile wide belt running from the American 7th army Saar battle front to Munich, 170 miles to the southeast. Their targets were Heilbronn, Bruchsal, Coppingen, Reutlingen, Neckarsulm, Ingolstadt, Ulm, and Augsburg.

An R. A. F. fleet of more than 600 Lancasters and Halifaxes, guarded by probably 200 fighters, ripped the communications hub of Mannheim, a Rhine crossing before the 7th army, and two Ruhr synthetic oil refineries at Kamen, near Dortmund.

5 CHICAGOLAND YANKS AWARDED THE SILVER STAR

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY, March 1.—Five midwestern members of the 90th division have been awarded the silver star for gallantry. They are:

Privates Jacob C. Mueller, 5636 N. Avondale av., Chicago; Douglas D. Malm, Rock Island; Theodore T. Paulsen, 607 Greenleaf st., Wilmette; Durwood G. Best, Waterloo, Ia., and Jack K. Drews, Hammond.

Mueller crossed a mine field under intense fire, fought his way into the basement of a fortified house in the face of enemy small arms and grenade opposition, and removed a wounded comrade.

Malm, a litter bearer, went into "no-man's land" under mortar and small arms fire and helped to bring out six wounded Americans.

Best, a rifleman, borrowed a bazooka during an enemy attack and quickly knocked out two enemy armored vehicles, thus jamming up vehicles behind them and enabling tank destroyers and artillery to destroy the enemy column.

Drews is an ammunition bearer but when his battalion's bazooka man was killed he took a bazooka, knocked out a tank, and then joined the riflemen to continue the fight.

BELIEVE JAPAN WILL SHY FROM HOPELESS FIGHT

What Russia Does May Influence Decision.

Peace at a Price

LONDON, March 1 (AP).—The German propaganda machine, pointing up the gravity of the situation on both the eastern and western fronts and discussing over the radio a German desire for a change "in the fortunes of war," tonight quoted Propaganda Minister Goebbels as saying, "There is no one in Germany demanding that the government conclude a peace at any price." It added that Goebbels had said, "The whole German people expect the coming peace in all circumstances must correspond to the sacrifices the people have made in this war."

LONDON, March 1 [Reuters].—The growing internal political crisis in Japan has strengthened the feeling among diplomatic observers in London that Japan will not follow the Nazi road of resistance. Faced by a choice between the German or the Italian way, influential circles in Japan, it is believed, are increasingly inclining toward what could be termed a "Badoglio solution."

This view, say reports current in London, is shared also by Russian experts on Japanese affairs and is believed to have colored such discussions as have been held recently on the future of the Japanese war.

Doom Must Be Obvious.

It is stressed, however, in this connection that a voluntary submission by Japan becomes practicable only if at the end of the European war allied superiority is so evident in the far east that self-interest, if nothing else, will persuade influential Japanese business and army circles there is no point in continuing resistance.

It is believed in London that the Japanese view on the situation will be considerably affected by what Russia proposes to do at the end of the European war.

May Influence Russia.

It is believed that at the end of the European war the circles inside Japan who are willing to surrender will be informed that their failure to accept the allied terms would brand Japan as still seeking aggressive aims in Asia. This factor, they may be told, might compel the soviet union to join in the war against Japan to ensure the peace and security of Asia and the Pacific.

It is believed in London there is a good chance that, faced by this prospect, there will be Japanese elements of importance who will accept the allied terms to save Japanese cities from the destruction that has befallen Germany. This, it is believed, is also the view accepted in informed soviet circles.

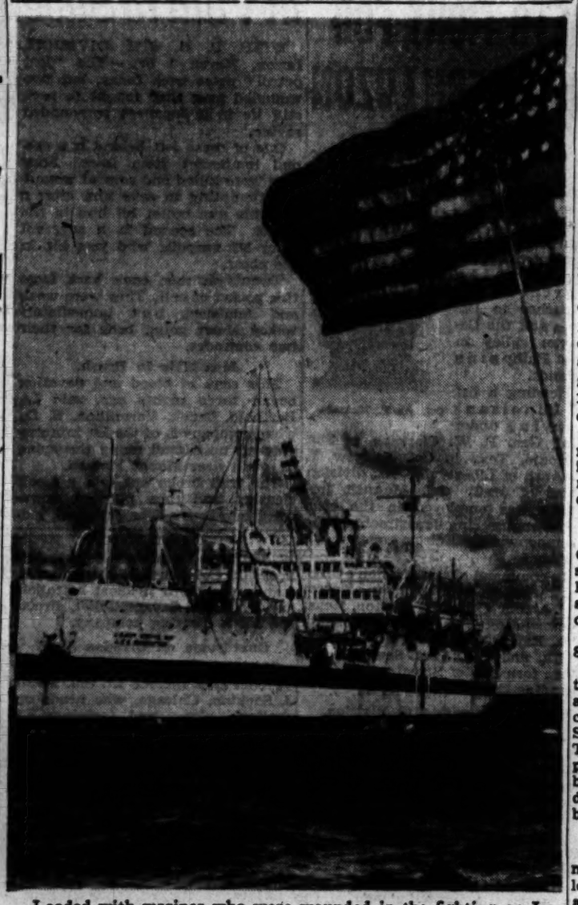
Ship Brings Wounded from Iwo



Loaded with marines who were wounded in the fighting on Iwo Island, a navy hospital ship arrives at an advance base in the Pacific to unload. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

JAP CAPTIVES ON IWO BURY DEAD WITH CIGARETS

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IWO ISLAND, March 1.—"You'd better keep your head down," warned Lt. Col. James Taul, Winchester, Ky. "There are snipers and machine gun fire here today." He was right. A sergeant, wounded in the shoulder and hand, dropped down behind a protecting rise. He was given first aid and sent back for treatment.

Col. Taul, charged with directing the 2d battalion, 25th regiment, in a frontal assault on pillbox-filled caves on the northern part of the island, said his outfit was up against the main line of Japanese defenses. They were assaulting the enemy positions with tanks, flame throwers, bazookas, machine guns, and small arms.

"When we get this last rise," said the colonel, "I believe they will crack. Then we can expect the final desperate banzai charge. When we break that up the fighting will be near an end."

The right flank of the northern front is the toughest terrain the marines have to crack. It is hilly, grown over with scrubby trees, and wrecked by shelling. Marines are eager to talk to some one to let their folks back home know what they are doing. Pvt. William Gillespie, 219½ S. Kedzie av., Chicago, was one of them. Then there is Capt. James Antink, 1154 E. 54th st., Chicago, whose company has been taking a beating on the extreme right flank. He is now executive officer of the 3d battalion, 25th regiment.

* *

There was a Japanese burial today within American lines. One of the enemy prisoners brought in died and was buried by two of his companions. They borrowed two cans of C rations and two cigarets. These they placed on their comrade's chest to tide him over till he reaches his ancestors. They dug a shallow grave, placed the dead man in, bowed in ceremonial fashion, and then retired.

* *

Military police are having trouble with sailors who come ashore and hunt for souvenirs. Jack O'Connor, a platoon sergeant from Racine, Wis., says there is less souvenir hunting here than in other places. The bitter fighting on small ground to do it on, he says, accounts for the fact.

PRISONERS' PAY 'INVESTED' IN JAP POSTAL SAVINGS

ULITHI, Western Carolines, March 1 (AP).—Americans in Cabanutuan prison camp on Luzon Island "invested" under duress more than a million pesos in Japanese postal savings during their long internment, said a small group of them en route to the United States.

Among the men who passed thru Ulithi, America bound, were Corp. Neil Iovino, 4201 W. Van Buren, Chicago; Pvt. Fred Vinton, Jackson, Mich., and Lt. Isaac Lavictoire, Pigeon, Mich.

They said the Japanese "paid our privates 10 centavos a day, worth about 5 cents American money. They paid up to 310 pesos monthly to colonels—but here's the catch. A lieutenant colonel is supposed to get 170 pesos a month. They gave 25 in cash, charged 30 for subsistence and required the rest to be invested in Japanese postal savings."

PHOTOS SHOW B-29S DO BIG DAMAGE TO TWO TOKYO STATIONS

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, March 1 (AP).—Super Fortresses inflicted important damage on two of Tokyo's major railyards and a war plant in their raid last Sunday which ripped up more than 240 blocks of the downtown area, the 21st bomber command announced today.

Maj. M. B. O'Connor, photographic interpreter for this command, estimated 29,000,000 square feet of Tokyo was damaged by the record breaking raid. O'Connor said reconnaissance photographs showed damage to two big railroad yards and stations, and a war materials works.

The damaged area runs east from the imperial palace to the Sumida river, and north from the palace to include the Uweno railway station. Main yards to the Jabon lines, railroad serving much of Honshu, were also in the blackened area. Snow fell during the raid and fires melted snows in the damaged areas, making them stand out in photographs.

Chinese Call on Citizens to Aid Allied Landings

CHUNGKING, China, March 1 (AP).—The Chungking radio began a series of broadcasts today calling on the Chinese inhabitants of Japanese occupied coastal regions to be prepared to support an allied landing. The broadcasts will be made daily for 15 days.

MARINES FIGHT WAY INTO THIRD AIR FIELD ON IWO

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 2 [Friday]—(AP).—The marines punched within less than a mile of ending their drive across Iwo's five mile length Thursday as front reports told of the Japanese reforming for a last stand on the island's hilly north tip.

While leathernecks moving north of the town of Motoyama occupied part of an incompleted air field, others moved 800 yards northeast to approach hill 362, one of the few good promontories in enemy hands, 1,000 yards from the northeast end of the island.

Aerial observers noted enemy movements in the third of Iwo still in Japanese hands which suggested regrouping for a last fight to the death.

Japs Fire at Ships.

Aboard a flagship Associated Press Correspondent Morrie Landsberg said the compressed enemy garrison has begun to fire at warships offshore. "They may be beginning to crack," Landsberg said.

One of the few penetrations of the Iwo area by enemy planes—an area dominated from the start by carrier-based aircraft of the United States 5th fleet—was reported. Early Thursday a small group of Nipponese planes dropped some bombs but the bulletin said they caused no damage. One raider was shot down by warship anti-aircraft guns.

Capture 17 Prisoners.

The biggest gains Thursday were made on the west by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th marine division and in the center by Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's 3d. The latter pushed onto the air field, which had not been completed when the invasion opened Feb. 19. Two other Iwo air fields are in marine hands.

On the east side the progress of Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' 4th was slow because of stiff opposition.

Erskine's 3d nearly doubled the number of enemy prisoners taken in the first 11 days by bagging 17 yesterday. The previous total bag was 10.

20 JAPS GIVE UP IN MANILA; FIRST OF CAMPAIGN

WITH THE 37TH DIVISION IN MANILA, March 1 (AP).—Honorable surrender offered to trapped Japanese bore the first fruits of the campaign today when nearly 20 Japanese emerged with their hands up from the finance building, last isolated enemy stronghold in the city.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commanding the 37th, made the offer to the Nipponese three days ago by loudspeaker. Not until today was there any more response than there was to the offer made by the 14th corps commander, Maj. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, before the final assault on Manila's walled city.

Eight Japanese who crept out of the beautiful finance building this afternoon said there still were several score inside the building. By nightfall 12 more Japanese slipped thru the debris in ones and twos to surrender.

WHOLE BLOOD ON IWO SAVES MANY WOUNDED YANKS

3 Out of 1,000 Die on One Ship.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IWO ISLAND, March 1.—Whole blood plus a systematized method of handling casualties, devised in this operation, has paid off in marine lives saved.

After first aid on the beach, the wounded are rushed to one of the LSTs transformed into hospital ships. These ships, which stick their noses up to the beach despite raking Japanese fire, are spaced along the water front.

Here the doctors work on pontoon barges alongside the ships. The most seriously wounded are taken aboard for immediate attention. Others are screened for the type of case and sent to a fully equipped hospital ship.

Charles Strickler, 2635 Carmona st., Los Angeles, Cal., commander of one of the LST hospital ships, said the records show that of the 1,000 taken aboard alive only three died. Drs. James Leatherman, Hot Springs, Ark., and Ford Flinn, 52 Gaviota way, San Francisco, Cal., paid tribute to transfusions of whole blood as the greatest life saver.

Never Too Far Gone.

"I'll never say again a man is too far gone for transfusion to aid him," said Dr. Leatherman. "I had one case in which no heart beat was discernible. I kept pouring transfusions into the patient. He revived and, when sent to another ship, was doing well."

The physicians are using a new technique in transfusions. The blood is not typed, but all patients are given type O, the universal type. They reported no bad reactions in all the cases treated. After the first confusion on D-day, the system has functioned to a point where casualties are under treatment within an hour after being wounded. Physicians are unable to explain why the predominant hurts are arm, leg, and chest wounds, while few are shot in the abdomen.

Give Food for Fatigue.

Battle fatigue is evident in the nervous inability to sleep or eat. Long hours on the front lines in rain and under nervous strain cause the complaint.

Doctors are treating them by giving the patients medicine to induce long sleep, then filling them with food. Drs. Leatherman and Flinn say there is no indication of any epidemic on the island.

Both doctors paid tribute to the uncomplaining attitude of the wounded brought in for treatment. "I haven't heard an outcry from any one," said Dr. Flinn. "One patient who was burned and had a knee injury watched me use a salt shaker to apply sulfanilimide. 'I don't believe I'll get well with salt, Doc,' he told me. 'Why not try a little spice?'"

JAPS ARE 'BUMS' AS RULERS, SAYS FILIPINO VICTIM

Tribune Writer Told How Economy Was Ruined.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

MANILA, P. I., March 1.—Before the Japs came, Pablo Soriano had a good job and was reasonably happy. At 41 he was the father of five children, with another on the way. He was earning almost 200 pesos [$100] a month, better than average in the Philippines, where food costs were low and only imported goods were high.

One day Pablo went to work and a Jap was in charge of his department. The Jap said Pablo's services were no longer required. The Filipino trudged sadly home. In the days that followed he tried to find work, even in labor gangs at a peso daily, but was unsuccessful. Paralysis, which would continue thruout the Japanese occupation, had fallen upon the Filipino economy.

Pablo was more resourceful than most. He bought a boat and went fishing for red snappers in Manila bay. He caught crabs and sold them. When the fishing was bad he trudged upcountry to the provinces, bought rice, mangoes, and sugar cane and resold them in Manila at a slight profit.

His Children Sell Cakes.

The provincial trips, however, resulted in a loss when Pablo was stopped by Jap sentries on the way to Manila and relieved of part or all of his load. When this was done he knew enough to bow and thank the sentry for his kindness, even tho boiling with rage inside. Filipinos who did not bow and scrape were slapped or beaten.

The day came when the Sorianos had to sell their personal belongings or go hungry. Pablo's bicycle went first. A Jap bought it with printing press money after making sure the bicyle was Amercian made. Pablo was grimly amused as he sold clothing and other articles at the premium placed on American products by the enemy. They disdained goods made in Japan.

House Goes for $150.

In August, 1943, Pablo was forced to sell his two story, frame house and to rent a shack. He got 300 pesos [$150] for his house on the distress market. In November, Manila was hit by a typhoon and food prices went up. The Sorianos were hungrier than ever, but even so they gave some of their food to their starving neighbors. Despite their help, Pablo's best friend died of starvation in the house next door.

The Sorianos, however, were luckier than most. When the Americans came they were thin and ragged but still alive. Their collective clothing could be placed in a desk drawer. They had about a quart of dirty rice and on a gallon can used as a stove a pot of kangkong greens—food for pigs before the war—was simmering.

By this time the family was living in a shack for which Pablo had paid 3,000 pesos. In Pablo's pocket were 6,000 pesos—enough money to buy only a few pounds of rice under the riotously inflated prices.

In Manila streets the starvation dead were being picked up at the rate of 200 daily during the last months of Japanese occupation. Countless others died in their homes.

Malice and Bungling Blamed.

How could this happen in a country which annually produced between 45 and 60 million sacks of rice and where famine had never been known?

Informed Filipinos believe it was due partially to Jap malice and partially to bungling.

"In governmental administration, the 'Jap is what you call a bum," said an American educated native. "We saw hundreds of thousands of bags of rice loaded on transports and shipped to Japan. Then the Japs would bring in a few hundred bags from Saigon and distribute them with much publicity and shouting about how they were 'helping the poor Filipino. On Luzon and Visayan hundreds of square miles were taken out of rice production and planted to cotton. In La Union province 10,000 hectares were planted to Virginia tobacco—and very successfully, too. Rice production was further curtailed by the attitude of the farmers who did not wish to help feed the Jap army.

"The Japs seized large areas of rice country. Near Aparri in northern Luzon they took over the entire Cagayan valley with its rich fields. It was the same way with sugar—when war started we had 2,400,000 short tons backed up as export surplus in addition to the domestic supply. By 1944 no sugar was to be had.

"I hate the Japs as do all Filipinos, but I can't believe they did all this intentionally. I think they are just plain dumb!"

ILLINOIS GUARD VETS FIGHT FOR NORTHERN LUZON

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Many Illinois men form the nucleus of the 33d division, which a bulletin from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said was pushing against the Japanese on the northern approaches to Baguio and the Cagayan valley in the Philippine Islands.

Col. A. T. McAnsh.

Heading a list of Illinoisans serving under Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson of San Antonio, Tex., is Col. Andrew T. McAnsh of Libertyville, Ill., division chief of staff. Col. McAnsh formerly was employed in the electrical engineering department of the Commonwealth Edison company in Chicago.

In command of the division's three regiments are regular army officers: Col. Arthur Collins of Boston, Mass., commanding the 130th regiment; Col. Raye Cavanee, Pasadena, Cal., 136th, and Col. Paul Serff, Berlin, Wis., formerly of Streator, Ill., commanding the 123d regiment.

129th Now with 37th Division.

A dispatch from Manila on Feb. 26 erroneously said the 129th infantry regiment was part of the 33d division. The 129th was replaced in October, 1942, by the 123d. The 129th is now in the 37th division and played a leading role in the capture of Clark field and in the Manila fighting.

Artillery plays an important role in supporting infantry men in the hills. Lt. Col. Roland Carlson, Chicago, commands the 122d field artillery; Lt. Col. Harold Carlson, Chicago, commands the 124th artillery; Lt. Col. Joe Robb, former Chicago saddle manufacturer, is division artillery operations officer; Lt. Col. George W. McClure, Monmouth, is guard officer; Lt. Col. Durand, Chicago, commands the 108th medical battalion, and Maj. John Savage, Joliet, directs the 108th clearing company.

Guardsmen on Division Staff.

National Guard officers on the divisional staff include Lt. Col. Frank J. Sackton, Chicago, who heads operations, plans, and training; Lt. Col. William Delihant, Chicago, finance officer; Lt. Col. Leslie Ireland, Chicago, directs supply; Lt. Col. Anthony J. Stark, former Chicago sports promoter, ordnance officer; Lt. Col. Fred A. Curl, Sullivan, chemical officer; Lt. Col. Russell Huhns, Springfield, quartermaster; Lt. Col. Francis P. Kane, Chicago, commands the 108th engineers.

Lt. Col. Ernest Bauman of Pontiac is inspector general; Lt. Col. J. M. Arvey, former Chicago alderman and attorney, is judge advocate and civil affairs officer; Lt. Col. William J. Rogers, Chicago, chaplain; Lt. Col. Timothy F. Mullen of Seneca, surgeon; Maj. Ralph C. Wagner of Pontiac, signal officer.

Serving as executive officer of the 113th regiment is Lt. Col. Ellis D. Blaké, Kewanee, formerly with the Caterpillar Tractor company, Peoria; Lt. Col. Orville Minton of Delavan commands the 3d battalion; Maj. Lawrence Askrin, Danville, commands the 2d battalion; Maj. Donald Grimmer, Quincy, is regimental supply officer; Maj. Fred S. Ash, Quincy, is regimental surgeon.

Chicagoans Head Battalions.

Two battalion commanders of the 136th infantry, which replaced the 132d infantry, are Lt. Col. Milan Hulbert, Chicago, and Lt. Col. William Haycock, Chicago. Maj. Ivan Taylor, Sterling, is Col. Haycock's executive officer.

'Lost Patrol' on Luzon Fights in Vain to Save Two Wounded

WITH U. S. 6TH DIVISION, Luzon, March 1 (AP).—The "lost patrol" came back today, but two wounded men they fought to save still lie in a Japanese surrounded ravine.

One of those left behind is a second lieutenant from Iowa. Four men were killed and several wounded attempting to save him after a machine gun bullet hit him in the thigh. The second is a sergeant from Minneapolis who was hit in the chest.

Twenty-six men came back from this pocket of hell. They were weak and famished, but immediately talked about going back for their two comrades.

Japs Hide in Brush.

This saga of blood and devotion began three nights ago, said Lt. Berthold Banek, Vermillion, S. D., when company L of the 1st infantry crawled up a trail along the spine of a hill near Mount Mataba.

The trail broke out into a small clearing and then plunged downward into brush. The Japanese, hidden in the brush, allowed the Yank scouts to pass before opening fire.

A wounded lieutenant and others were hit by the first volley. The Japanese opened up on Yanks trying to evacuate the wounded. The men carrying the lieutenant's litter fell in a heap. Subsequently most of the company evacuated under cover of smoke shells fired by Yank artillery.

Rolls Into a Ravine.

A smoke shell started a fire which spread to the lieutenant's covering. He wriggled aside to avoid the flames and rolled 30 yards into a ravine.

The second Japanese volley cut into the Americans attempting to carry the lieutenant from the ravine and all tumbled back into the hell hole. There was no food, no morphine, no plasma for the lieutenant and sergeant. Altho a rescue force had attempted to supply them by rolling medicine and food from the hill top, the trapped men did not receive them.

MARCH OF DEATH SURVIVOR WILL VISIT MAYWOOD

Sgt. Joseph Donahey, 25, of Clinton, Ia., survivor of the infamous march of death on Bataan and hero as guerrilla leader in the Philippines, will be the guest of honor of Winfield post, V. F. W., at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in the Emerson school, Maywood.

Sgt. Donahey, who had been reported missing in action after Pearl Harbor and given up for dead by his family, will be accompanied by his Filipino bride, who accompanied him on his recent return to the states.

Guests will include members of the Maywood Bataan clan and the Filipino Guerrillas of Bataan association, who hope the sergeant may be able to give them some news of missing relatives. Sgt. Donahey was scheduled to arrive at 10:40 a. m. today on the Chicago & North Western streamliner City of Denver.

RUSSIAN PAPER SAYS CHURCHILL REBUFFS CRITICS

MOSCOW, March 1 (AP). — The soviet army paper Red Star said today that Prime Minister Churchill's address in the British house of commons on Tuesday had rebuffed all critics of the decisions reached by the Big Three at Yalta.

The paper singled out Polish groups in the United States, which, it said, were "supported by Hearst, McCormick, and other newspaper gangsters," for criticizing the decisions on Poland, and added, "They cannot break up the unity of the democratic power."

REPLY BY COL. McCORMICK.

In Chicago, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, replied in a statement:

"It is a welcome statement as showing that the Russians consider that they dominate the Roosevelt administration and continue perniciously to interfere in American domestic affairs. They are a great danger to our Republic."

JAPS STILL FIRE NEW DEAL SCRAP AT OUR TROOPS

Science Finds U.S. Metal in Foe's Munitions.

Columbus, O., March 1 [Special].—American scrap metal exported to Japan under the Roosevelt administration before Pearl Harbor still is being used to kill and maim American fighting men after more than three years of war, it was disclosed here today in a report issued by metallurgists of the Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus.

The Battelle institute is the largest independent industrial research organization in the world. Endowed by a bequest from Gordon Battelle, Ohio industrialist, it was founded in 1929 to conduct research in metals, fuel, chemistry, minerals, and other industrial products.

In a study made for the army and navy ordnance departments and the office of scientific research and development, the metallurgists used a spectroscope to identify American scrap as part of the metal being used in Japanese munitions.

"The laboratory data show, from the presence of residuals, that the scrap which the United States sold to Japan before the war plays a considerable part in the munitions being used against us," the report said.

Identified by Atomic Traces.

Such residuals form a pattern, made up of certain characteristic percentages of metals, that could have come only from American scrap, the metallurgists explain. The spectroscope, used to identify the presence of atoms by the light they emit, shows whatever trace of any metal is present, even down to one part in a million.

The report suggests that the Japanese did not have to extract the excess metals from the scrap because they were so well supplied with raw materials.

American exports of scrap metal to Japan during the years 1933 to 1940, inclusive, amounted to more than 10 million tons, department of commerce figures show. Total exports for those years came to 20 million tons.

Figures on Shipments.

Japan attacked China on July 7, 1937. John T. Flynn, in his article entitled "The Truth About Pearl Harbor," said: "Under our neutrality law . . . it became the duty of the President to stop all shipments of munitions to either country. The President, however, refused to do this." Flynn observed that "the government sent its sympathy to China and its scrap iron to Japan."

It was not until late in 1940 that restrictions were placed by the New Deal on scrap shipments to Japan

FORCED TO SEND 18 YEAR OLDS TO FRONT: STIMSON

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—Secretary of War Stimson said today the campaign in Europe and probably in the Pacific would have been delayed if younger soldiers had not been sent overseas as combat replacements.

This would have resulted in increased cost in lives, Stimson said, adding that such a result would "be wholly inexcusable."

He was asked about the policy of sending 18 year olds into combat. Members of congress have raised the question at the capitol.

Plan Avoided at First.

Stimson explained that at the outset of the war the department had avoided using the youngest of the inductees. This practice was followed so long as practical by taking individual replacements out of divisions still in the United States and replacing them with inductees or veterans returned from overseas, he said.

However, subsequent battle emergencies "forced considerable variations" in that policy. Stimson said "these young men are being trained more intensively and effectively" than soldiers in any previous war.

Claims Public Is Confused.

"Some members of the congress and the public have confused the training of a division with the training of an individual," Stimson said. "The former requires a minimum of a year, preferably longer. The training of an individual to go into a veteran unit is an entirely different matter.

"Men recently inducted into the army are given a minimum of 15 weeks of the most rigorous training which the army has been able to devise after four years' experience. Most of the replacements since July, 1943, have received 17 weeks in basic camps.

"All have received additional training in staging camps en route to ports in this country or in replacement receiving pools overseas. Before any man is sent overseas he is submitted to a thoro test to insure that he has assimilated his training and is in fact prepared for combat duty."

Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, in a letter to Rep. Hess [R., Ohio], supported Stimson and said that under present procedures "no soldier can leave this country until he is prepared to perform his contemplated duties."

NIGHT CLUBS ASK PETRILLO TO CUT COST OF MUSIC

An appeal to James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, was presented yesterday by Chicago night clubs, who declare they cannot operate under the federal midnight curfew if they must pay the same for music as before the curfew order. Petrillo's answer is expected today.

Milton T. Raynor, attorney for the Chicago Cafe Owners association, met with the directors of the Chicago Federation. Because traveling "name" bands are affected, the union directors said nation-wide policy of the union was involved and Petrillo, in New York, would have to be consulted. Pending his reply, the terms of the owners' proposal was kept confidential.

"The night clubs have been very hard hit in the few days the curfew has been effective," said Raynor. "They must have some kind of relief from expenses or many will close."

TRAFFIC LEADER PRAISES TRIBUNE BOX CAR EXHIBIT

Irving M. Peters, chairman of the Midwest Shippers Advisory board, representing 1,600 Chicagoland manufacturers, yesterday acclaimed as a beneficial public service THE TRIBUNE'S exhibition of the first three aluminum box cars built in the United States. Peters was one of a group of 10 Chicago traffic managers who during the day visited the cars.

Peters, who is traffic manager of the Corn Products Refining company, said the exhibit has served to stimulate shippers' interest in post-war development of lighter weight rolling stock.

The cars, on a track in Illinois st. at the lower level of Michigan av., may be inspected without charge from 10 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. every day thru Sunday.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN LEADS AS SUBJECT FOR PRIZE ESSAYS

Abraham Lincoln yesterday emerged as the favorite subject of the high school boys and girls who had entered THE TRIBUNE'S "Citizens of Tomorrow" American history essay contest.

As the 6 o'clock deadline for entries approached, and as papers poured in from every part of the area surrounding Chicago, contest workers classified the essays by subject, and found that of the first 632 examined the Civil war President was the subject of 152.

One hundred one students elected to write on the Constitution and 69 on the causes of the American Revolution, thus putting those subjects into second and third places, respectively.

Winners of the first prize war bond of $500 maturity value, the second prize $100 bond, and the five additional $50 bonds will be announced as soon as possible on "Citizens of Tomorrow," Tribune radio youth program heard each Saturday at 10 a. m. over W-G-N.

COURT DECIDES ALCAN TOWNS ARE NO SECRET

Omaha, Neb., March 1 (AP).—Construction of towns along the Alcan highway was not a military secret, a District court jury ruled here in awarding $5,500 damages to an Omaha construction engineer hired to build the towns and then dismissed before he began work.

Clarence M. Stoffel Sr., the engineer, brought the suit against the Metcalfe Construction company of Omaha and the Hamilton and Kansas City Bridge companies of Kansas City, which contended Stoffel revealed military secrets in permitting publicity about his job.

Stoffel exhibited magazine articles about the project which antedated publicity about his job. Last April he won a judgment for the same amount, but the Nebraska Supreme court voided the decision and ordered a retrial.

fore the takeoff. Do you suppose the people back home really believe we throw parties like that before we go into action?

You say you guess the people don't judge a whole war by one movie scene, but you ask yourself if you and the other chroniclers of war are failing to get across the true picture.

Then you sit in on an enlisted men's forum in the mess hall with the G. I. Bill of Rights as the subject. The hall is crowded. You feel the drama of this expression of post-war concern aboard a fighting ship about to go into action. You wonder if these kids, like you, got jolted out of the day dreams of the future by the sudden cold realization that any moment a bomb or torpedo may make the future irrelevant.

Schoolboys Are Curious.

You watch and feel the intentness as officers explain features of the G. I. bill and then invite questions. Most of the questions concern educational features of the bill, and they remind you that this audience is made up largely of schoolboys whose quest for learning was interrupted.

Your compassion grows as more questions come tinged with anxiety for the time when these lads will be getting back to the civilian world they left temporarily for the unlovely and unloved purpose of killing its enemies. You try to convey to them that the civilian world is still theirs and their numbers are great enough so they can, if they will, exercise controling proprietorship after the war to insure that their children be spared a repetition of this upheaval.

You remind them that the Bill of Rights itself is an acknowledgement by our lawmakers of the tremendous political power that will be represented by ex-service men after the war. You point out that, in our approaching demobilization we will have the guidance of our experience from the last war and will know what to avoid, what to do that we failed in then.

Folks Lonely, Too.

You assure them that their own loneliness is matched by the yearnings of their folks back home, that their women folk can dream of nothing more desirable than their safe return, that your own experience with an older demobilization qualifies you to predict that this time, too, they will find their rightful place after the tumult and the shouting dies and that the women who have supplanted them in the factories and offices probably will be more than eager to get back to their homemaking.

You tell yourself afterward you tried your best to bridge the gap they have traversed since they left their schoolrooms, their desks, their farms, their lathes, and their shipping rooms. When the lad who cuts your hair thanks you later for what you said, and tells you it's the biggest morale boost he's had in years, you know in the responsive glow deep within you that your effort was worthwhile.

CLOUDS HAMPER BOMBERS

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIERS, Off Tokyo, Feb. 25 [Delayed].—Again handicapped by a winter storm, our carrier pilots paid their second visit in eight days to Tokyo today, raining bullets and bombs into the heart of the Japanese empire. And again our flyers were astounded by the feebleness and inefficiency of the city's aerial defenses.

Apparently the Japs had made poor use of the week or more they had in which to bolster up their defenses between today's visit and our first call Feb. 16 and 17. Ground anti-aircraft fire was sporadic and inaccurate. The few Nip fighters who met the raiders were no match for them, according to the returning pilots.

A solid cloud blanket overspread the Tokyo area until midafternoon when a steady rain forced cancelation of further strikes. Like the earlier raid, today's was hampered by cold air masses from the Arctic, colliding with the warm air over the Japan current.

Drop Bombs in Bay.

In the early afternoon one bomber group jettisoned its load in Tokyo bay rather than risk hitting undesignated targets. The dense, low overcast made the return of our pilots extra perilous, they reported. However, it was effective in protecting the carrier fleet from enemy attack.

One of this carrier's pilots, a former Flying Tiger, with six certains and seven probables to his credit as an army flyer, made his first navy score today by bringing down two Japs. He was Lt. Edwin Conant, 29, of San Diego, Cal. He was leading a flight of four planes but in a series of dog fights became separated from them just north of the Nobara air field. While trying to find his mates he strafed the field, reporting that ack-ack was light.

Jap Pilots Deteriorate.

Conant said Jap pilot quality was high earlier in the war but has deteriorated greatly. He was enthusiastic about his present setup.

"We've got a swell combination—good ship and good air group," he said. "The ship hasn't too much regulation and the air boys are well disciplined and do what they're supposed to."

Ensign Dennis Miner, 25, son of Eric Miner, Cambridge, Ill., and Lt. Jack Delander, 29, of Cambridge, Mass., split one enemy plane between them today. The boys said they were in a large formation 25 miles east of Tokyo when at 2,500 feet a Nip fighter jumped them.

"All of us opened up on him," Delander said. "Dennis and I peeled off and followed him down. He tried violent evasive tactics, but we could see our tracers going into him. He hit among a bunch of trees and blew up. The pilot must have been dead before he hit."

Another plane was shared by Johnny Moore, 24, of Bell, Cal., and Ensign G. W. McAdoo, 21, Denison, Tex. Johnny said he and McAdoo were flying just east of Tokyo bay when the Nip flyer made a pass at them, missed, then deliberately rolled his plane out in front of them. It was an absurdly simple shot, both boys agreed. Each gets credit for half a plane.

Lt. [j. g.] James H. Cales, 24, Williamson, W. Va., got in and out of a complicated mixup this morning.

Japs Get Panicky.

"I saw a Jap on the tail of one of our marine Corsairs," Cales said. "I got on the tail and squirted him once or twice and just then I saw tracers passing me from another Jap on my tail. For no reason at all the Nip behind me stopped shooting. Then I saw the Jap ahead bail out of his plane, which didn't look to be afire. Soon afterward I saw two other Nips bail out of planes that looked okay to me. They just got panicky when any one shot at them."

As a rear gunner in a Douglas dive bomber Cales was credited with two enemy planes in the battle of the Coral sea in May, 1942. He said he wouldn't claim credit for today's plane.

Returning pilots said Japan lay under a thin cover of snow. No snow fell on us, but the day was punctuated with cold rain that made the flight deck slippery.

$11,510 Vault Loot Returned

In Lunch Box

A lunch box containing $11,510 which was stolen Jan. 20 from the E. H. Rumbold safety deposit vaults at 624 W. 119th st. was given to Chief of Detectives Walter G. Storms yesterday by John Kosar, 44, 4820 Chicago av., a bartender, whose brother, Michael, 40, is in jail on a charge of participating in the vault looting.

The money was cached behind a rain pipe at Michael Kosar's home, 1007 N. Central Park av. John Kosar said his brother told him the sum was his share of the loot and asked him to take it out of hiding and turn it over to Chief Storms. Police surmised that Michael hoped the surrender of the money would win him leniency when he goes on trial.

Chief Storms estimated that $89,000 in cash, in addition to securities, is still missing from the vaults. Shortly after the burglary, $10,690 was found at the home of Thomas Leahy, 49, 7850 Cregier av., who is one of four men held in jail. Three others have been indicted and are being sought by police.

JAPAN IS TAKING 'AWFUL LICKING,' ADMIRAL SAYS

San Diego, Cal., March 1 (AP).—Vice Adm. McCain, home from his command of the 2d carrier task force, reported today the Japanese were taking an "awful licking" and that he believed they would crack.

Referring to the Japanese in his more reserved moments as "subhumans" and beasts, the admiral said that Tokyo might be taken sooner than the joint chiefs of staff believe.

Capture of the Japanese homeland would not necessarily end the war tho, McCain said, emphasizing the enemy was moving heavy industry to China and that there might be a long land campaign "unless Russia comes in."

The design and performance of Japanese aircraft is improving steadily, the admiral said, but the caliber of the enemy pilots is deteriorating.

"We kill the good ones, and we don't give them time to train replacements. They are dumbbells. Their ratio of plane losses from October to January was 20 to 1, and the ratio for loss of pilots was even heavier, because we saved a large percentage of ours."

PIONEER LINER'S KEEL LOCATED AFTER 56 YEARS

WEXFORD, Eire, March 1 [Reuters].—The keel of the historic packet steamer Sirius, one of the first vessels to make the trans-Atlantic crossing entirely under steam, has been located on the beach west of Carnsore point, County Wexford, where it has been buried in the sand for 56 years.

The paddle steamer Sirius created a great sensation when, in 1838, she steamed into New York, having crossed the Atlantic from London, via Cork, in 17 days.

She was later placed on the cross-channel route between Ireland and Great Britain. In 1889, when bound from Liverpool to Waterford, she was wrecked in a gale on the south Wexford coast and 30 lives were lost.

DELAY DECISION ON RETRIAL OF SEDITION CASE

Confusion Reigns Again at Court Hearing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—Decision on motions for speedy retrial of the mass sedition case was postponed for two weeks today by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough after bickering among counsel caused him to observe "If the attitude that exists here today prevails it would be impossible to try the case."

The hearing in District court, attended by a score of attorneys and 9 of the 29 defendants, was highlighted by a motion by three defense attorneys to bar a fourth from participation in the trial, frequent arguments among defense counsel, and heated exchanges with government counsel.

Justice Goldsborough's observation on the bickering in the case—which dragged thru eight months last year and was ended by the death of the presiding jurist, Justice Edward C. Eicher—came after a bitter exchange between O. John Rogge, special assistant attorney general, and James J. Laughlin, a defense attorney. Laughlin was barred from the first trial by Judge Eicher after the attorney had petitioned congress to impeach Eicher.

Almost Out of Hand.

"No judge or jury could try the case if the attitude that exists here today were to prevail," Justice Goldsborough said. "Under the best conditions it would be a tremendous task in view of the number of counsel and defendants. The situation today is almost out of hand. But no one can do anything about it. The court does not have the right to stop attorneys from protecting the rights of their clients as they see fit."

Rogge suggested that justice Goldsborough take the matter up with the district court's chief justice who could survey the entire docket and decide on a trial judge and a trial date. Rogge said he was prepared to go to trial immediately. Goldsborough said he would take up the case with the other justices and try to work out some practical plan.

Some of the defendants have been named in three indictments, all of which are pending. Laughlin, noting that the first indictment was returned in July, 1942, and the second in January, 1943, asserted his clients, Ellis O. Jones and Robert Noble, should be brought to trial on those indictments immediately or the charges dismissed.

Orders Bond Inquiry.

Rogge, who took the case to trial last year on the third indictment, returned in January, 1944, said the first and second indictments had been left standing so the department of justice could further check the records of 12 persons not named in the third indictment and also as a convenience to defendants who otherwise would have been forced to pay additional premiums in making new bond on the third indictment.

Goldsborough ordered defense counsel to report March 15 on whether bondsmen would transfer bonds covering defendants named in the early indictments to the third without demanding extra premiums and instructed Rogge to report at the same time on what disposition could be made of the cases of the 12 individuals and corporations not named in the third indictment.

The sedition trial—the defendants are charged with conspiring to establish a Nazi form of government in the United States—opened April 17, 1 44, with 30 defendants. Before it ended in a mistrial last December one defendant died and the cases of three others were severed. Complete figures on the trial's cost have not been made public, but in September, District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton said actual costs from the first grand jury investigation in November, 1941, to Aug. 18, 1944, were $48,459.73, and that if the trial lasted until Christmas the cost would total about $66,000. The trial ended in a mistrial Dec. 7.

Expensive for Attorneys.

Pilkerton figures do not include the expenses of the defendants and the earnings they and the court appointed defense attorneys lost during the eight months.

Several government witnesses from California waited in Washington for weeks before they testified. One witness testified that he hoped to return to California, but said he had lost his job there because he had been in Washington so long. Another witness complained that he was hundreds of dollars out of pocket because the government allowance was insufficient to pay the expenses of him, his wife and two daughters for the weeks he was kept waiting here.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Alice Oman, Kalamazoo, Mich.]

THE QUESTION.

What was the most unusual food you encountered overseas?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Frank Lenander, chief electrician's mate, 4706 N. Racine av.—A gang of us caught a seal in the Aleutians. We broiled it. I wouldn't recommend it as a good thing to eat. It tasted very stringy and fishy and wasn't very appetizing. The natives eat walrus livers raw, but we didn't have the nerve to try it.

Lewis Kohler, motor machinist's mate, Gilboa, N. Y.—In the South Pacific the natives often let coconuts lie on the ground until they start sprouting. They cut this sprout off, take off the husks, and open the shell. The coconut then is filled with fibrous pulp and the meat is gone. This pulp has a sweet, watery taste.

Pvt. Richard Machnowski, 1915 Wabansia av.—A native woman in Guam brought an armful of fruit to us and said it was good. One fruit looked like an orange inside but tasted like a peach. It had a hard substance inside that looked like a pit but wasn't. I don't know what the natives call it, but I ate it out of curiosity.

Al C. Beardeen, motor machinist's mate, San Francisco, Cal.—Many of the restaurants in the islands have strange menus. The natives catch octopi and sell them to the cafes which serve them raw. The natives also eat the white meat of star fish. I was merely an observer tho so I don't know how these things taste.

Henry M. Male, electrician's mate, Atlantic City, N. J.—The natives brought some strange fruit out to our ship—that is, I believe it was fruit. It was shaped like an egg plant or persimmon and tasted like squash—only less tasteless. We had a lot of fun joking about it after we had eaten it.

Pvt. Peter Pervan, 338 W. 31st st.—I've eaten strange food overseas, but the most unusual was our every day army dehydrated potatoes, powdered eggs, dried milk, and beans. I can't say it was exactly enjoyable, but it was certainly an experience. I'm glad to be back here eating the real thing once again.

BATT ADMITS U.S. WILL ABANDON ARMS IN EUROPE

New York, March 1 (AP).—William L. Batt said today war production must continue at full speed for "big military landings" in the Pacific and land fighting on perhaps the European scale.

The army and air forces will have to be "pretty completely re-equipped" to fight Japan, the WPB vice chairman said in an address before a rotary club luncheon.

Batt announced staggering figures on American production—now equal to that of "all our allies and enemies" combined—but forecast that Germany's fall will permit less than a 20 per cent reconversion to peace time goods.

[A complete table of production figures are elsewhere on this page.]

Must Rearm Yanks.

"I can tell you that our military men may not use much of the equipment against the Japanese they have employed in Europe," Batt said, since other types of material are needed and the task of assembling and reshipping across the world is "simply not practicable."

The WPB official thus corroborated an Associated Press report of Jan. 31 with which Secretary of War Stimson took issue last week. The story stated that American troops so transferred would leave the bulk of their equipment behind and would be armed anew.

Stimson told Rep. Engel [R., Mich.] by letter that army policy called for "maximum transfer" to the Pacific of everything that could be effectively used there.

Engel, who had been alarmed at possible duplication of production, entered the AP story and Stimson's letter in the congressional record, along with the comment of another war department representative. The latter, when asked where the AP reporter could have obtained the story, Engel said, answered: "He must have picked it up in some barber shop."

Big Jap Land Army.

Batt warned that "we must not underestimate the Japanese any more than we have now learned not to underestimate the Germans." Saying the Japanese land army now is about as large as the German army at its peak, Batt added:

"I can tell you that our military men may not use much of the equipment against the Japanese they have employed in Europe. Secretary Stimson says they will use what they can.

"But men fighting in the tropics and in many parts of the orient require, as you know, different clothing than men fighting in northwest Europe. Weapons designed for the fairly good highways and rail transportation of Europe are not necessarily adapted to the primitive conditions of the far east.

"I think the inevitable result must be therefore that as we move to the orient, from Europe, our army and air force will have to be pretty completely re-equipped. This is another part of the big job ahead of us."

German Ambassador Is Received by Pope

VATICAN CITY, March 1 (AP).—Pope Pius XII. today received Ernst Von Weizsaecker, German ambassador to the Holy See, in a 30 minute private audience.

Pass Thru City

Lt. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen and Mrs. Stassen in the La Salle Street station yesterday.

Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota who was recently named by President Roosevelt a delegate to the united nations conference in San Francisco, April 25, passed thru Chicago yesterday en route from the east to his home in Minnesota.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Stassen and announced he would return to his naval duties on Adm. Halsey's staff in the Pacific late this month before returning as one of the Republican delegates to the San Francisco meeting.

Stassen said he conferred with Sen. Vandenberg and other Republican leaders in Washington as well as with Gov. Dewey because of his conviction that the results of the San Francisco meeting "must have the widest possible public support."

$5,841 DAMAGES SOUGHT BY OPA IN POULTRY SUIT

The office of price administration yesterday filed a treble damage suit for $5,841 in federal District court against the Michigan Poultry company, 118 E. 51st st., charged with collecting retail prices on wholesale sales. James F. Riley Jr., acting area director, said scores of south side poultry distributors are under investigation.

An OPA suit against Tony Knutel, 1417 W. Washington st., Waukegan, who sells meat to restaurants, charged sales at over ceiling prices and asked $2,165 damages and an injunction.

OPA Hearing Commissioner Kenneth Lemmer ordered a 10-day suspension from selling rationed shoes for Hyman Berlander, 11212 Michigan av, accused of selling 943 pairs without taking coupons.

Widow Denies Marconi Died to Hide Death Ray

ROME, Italy, March 1 (AP).—Maria Cristina Marconi, widow of Guglielmo Marconi, denied today a suggestion made by a Rome newspaper that the inventor, who died in 1937, killed himself to avoid turning over "the secret of a death ray" to Mussolini. "Nothing concrete ever led me to believe in the existence of the death ray," the widow said, adding that Marconi had suffered from heart disease.

SCOUTS GATHER PAPER, SCHOOL CROWNS QUEEN

Boy Scouts in Chicago yesterday began a two month campaign to collect 15,000 tons, or 10 per cent of the national quota, while Harrison High school's combined bands celebrated the end of a four day drive by crowning Ruth Holub, 16, a junior, their band paper queen.

Chet A. Koehler, war service director of Chicago Scouts, said the goal is 1,000 pounds for each Scout in the city. Those who attain the goal and troops having a 100 per cent record will receive special awards.

The Harrison High school bands decided on their own waste paper campaign after the school, as a whole, collected only 4,200 pounds last Friday. In four days the 190 pupils of the bands collected 5,600 pounds. Each pupil who brought in five pounds was allowed one vote for queen.

Robbed of $2,000

MRS. DOLORES LISTON.

Two men early yesterday held up the Halsted Currency exchange in the drug store at 1308 S. Halsted st., robbing the cashier, Mrs. Dolores Liston, 21, of 726 W. 64th st., of $2,000 and checks totaling $1,800. The bandits then robbed Jack Kerman, 20, of 3650 Grenshaw st., a drug clerk, of $153.50.

Mrs. Liston, whose husband is a soldier in Italy, told police one of the robbers followed her into the cage as she was reporting for work. She said he pressed a gun against her side and ordered her to surrender the money.

As she looked about for money the bandit, thinking she was trying to get a better view of him, knocked her to the floor, she said. The men then fled in an automobile with a third man who had remained at the wheel.

FIRST STEEL ICE BOXES OF WAR TO BE OUT SOON

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—The first steel ice boxes made since the start of the war will sell at retail price ceilings ranging from $37.50 to $67.50.

The office of price administration announced this today in fixing dollar-and-cent ceilings for 19 types of nonmechanical refrigerators for which the war production board allocated materials.

Production of 75,000 such boxes in the first three months of this year has been authorized, but only a portion of the number will be made of steel.

An OPA spokesman said the ceilings are "somewhat higher" than those for pre-war ice boxes, but that they are of "superior quality."

LOSES PURSE AND $170.

Mrs. Myrtle Redman, 2817 Congress st., lost a purse containing $170 yesterday near the North Western railroad station, she told police.

TEXT OF REPORT TELLING 'START OF WORLD PEACE'

F. D. R. Says Problems of Others Are Ours, Too.

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—Following is a partial text of President Roosevelt's report on the Yalta conference as it was prepared for delivery and insertion in the Congressional Record:

"It is good to be home.

"It has been a long journey. I hope you will agree that it was a fruitful one.

"Speaking in all frankness, the question of whether it is to be entirely fruitful or not lies to a great extent in your hands. For unless you here in the halls of the American congress—with the support of the American people—concur in the decisions reached at Yalta, and give them your active support, the meeting will not have produced lasting results.

"That is why I come before you at the earliest hour after my return. I want to make a personal report to you—and, at the same time, to the people of the country. Many months of earnest work are ahead of us all, and I should like to feel that when the last stone is laid on the structure of international peace, it will be an achievement for which all of us in America have worked steadfastly and unselfishly—together.

Refreshed and Inspired.

"I return from this trip—which took me as far as 7,000 miles from the White House—refreshed and inspired. The Roosevelts are not, as you may suspect, averse to travel. We thrive on it."

The President then said that tho he had been far away from the United States he had remained constantly informed of domestic developments thru the wonders of modern communications, a condition which he said should remind us all that the world is small. He said he came from the Crimea meeting with the firm belief that the country has made a good start on the road to world peace. He said the Yalta conference had two main purposes: the first to bring speedy and complete military defeat to Germany; the second, to plan the political steps which would give assurance of lasting peace.

ACUTE PROBLEMS

In Poland, Greece, Italy and Yugoslavia

"The lapse of time between Tehran and Yalta without conferences of civilian representatives of the three major powers has proved to be too long—14 months," he said. "During this long period local problems were permitted to become acute in places like Poland and Greece, and Italy and Yugoslavia.

"Therefore we decided at Yalta that, even if circumstances made it impossible for the heads of the three governments to meet more often in the future, we would make sure that there would be more frequent personal contacts for exchange of views.

"Accordingly, we arranged for periodic meetings of the foreign secretaries of Great Britain, Russia, and the United States at intervals of three or four months. I feel very confident that under this arrangement there will be no recurrence of the incidents which this winter disturbed the friends of world-wide collaboration.

Occupation Discussed.

"When we met at Yalta, in addition to laying our strategic and tactical plans for a final and complete military victory over Germany, there were a number of problems of vital political consequence.

"First, there were the problems of the occupation and control of Germany after victory, the complete destruction of her military power, and the assurance that neither nazism nor Prussian militarism could again be revived to threaten the peace and civilization of the world.

"Second, there was the settlement of the few differences which remained among us with respect to the international security organization after the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

"Third, there were the general political and economic problems common to all of the areas which had been or would be liberated from the Nazi yoke.

"Fourth, there were the special problems created by Poland and Yugoslavia.

UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT

Asserts Allies Are Closer Than Ever Before

"Days were spent in discussing these momentous matters and we argued freely and frankly across the table. But at the end, on every point, unanimous agreement was reached. And more important even than the agreement of words, I may say we achieved a unity of thought and a way of getting along together."

Mr. Roosevelt then said the major allies never have been more closely united, both militarily and in planning the peace. He said that American, British, and Russian military officials conferred daily at Yalta, and that plans for exchange of information between Gen. Eisenhower and American commanders in Italy and Russian field marshals in the east had been perfected. Allied planes have been supporting and will continue to support soviet armies thru attacks on German targets, the President asserted. He continued:

"The German people, as well as the German soldiers, must realize that the sooner they give up and surrender, by groups or as individuals, the sooner their present agony will be over. They must realize that only with complete surrender can they begin to reestablish themselves as people whom the world might accept as decent neighbors.

"We made it clear again at Yalta, and I now repeat—that unconditional surrender does not mean the destruction or enslavement of the German people. The Nazi leaders have deliberately withheld that part of the Yalta declaration from the German press and radio. They seek to convince the people of Germany that the Yalta declaration does mean slavery and destruction for them—for that is how the Nazis hope to save their own skins, and deceive their people into continued useless resistance.

SURRENDER TERMS

Will Divide Germany Into Four Zones

"We did, however, make it clear at this conference just what unconditional surrender does mean for Germany.

"It means the temporary control of Germany by Great Britain, Russia, France, and the United States. Each of these nations will occupy and control a separate zone of Germany—and the administration of the four zones will be coördinated in Berlin by a control council composed of representatives of the four nations.

"Unconditional surrender also means the end of nazism, and of the Nazi party—and all of its barbaric laws and institutions.

"It means the termination of all militaristic influence in the public, private and cultural life of Germany.

Speedy, Just Punishment.

"It means for the Nazi war criminals a punishment that is speedy and just—and severe.

"It means the complete disarmament of Germany; the destruction of its militarism and its military equipment; the end of its production of armament; the dispersal of all of its armed forces; the permanent dismemberment of the German general staff which has so often shattered the peace of the world.

"It means that Germany will have to make reparations in kind for the damage which it has done to the innocent victims of its aggression.

"By compelling reparations in kind—in plants, and machinery and rolling stock and raw materials—we shall avoid the mistake made after the last war of demanding reparations in the form of money which Germany never could pay.

"We do not want the German people to starve, or to become a burden on the rest of the world.

"Our objective in handling Germany is simple—it is to secure the peace of the future world. Too much experience has shown that that objective is impossible if Germany is allowed to retain any ability to wage aggressive war.

PROTECTIVE CONTROL

Want to Save Germany from Previous Fate

"That objective will not harm the German people. On the contrary, it will protect them from a repetition of the fate which the general staff and kaiserism imposed on them before, and which Hitlerism is now imposing upon them again a hundredfold. It will be removing a cancer from the German body, which for generations has produced only misery and pain for the whole world."

The President, who stayed at a former resort for the Russian czars at Yalta, said the destruction there and at near-by Sevastopol were examples of the ruthlessness springing from German militarism. He said he now knows there is not sufficient space on earth for both that militarism and Christian decency. He went on:

"Of equal importance with the military arrangements at the Crimean conference were the agreements reached with respect to a general international organization for lasting world peace. The foundations were laid at Dumbarton Oaks. There was one point, however, on which agreement was not reached at Dumbarton Oaks. It involved the procedure of voting in the security council.

"At the Crimean conference, the Americans made a proposal on this subject which, after full discussion, was unanimously adopted by the other two nations.

"It is not yet possible to announce the terms of that agreement publicly, but it will be in a very short time.

"When the conclusions reached at the Crimean conference with respect to voting in the security council are made known, I believe you will find them a fair solution of this complicated and difficult problem. They are founded in justice, and will go far to assure international coöperation in the maintenance of peace.

AGGRESSION OUTLAWED

San Francisco Parley to Work on Peace Charter

"A conference of all the united nations of the world will meet in San Francisco on April 25, 1945. There, we all hope, and confidently expect, to execute a definite charter of organization under which the peace of the world will be preserved and the forces of aggression permanently outlawed.

"This time we shall not make the mistake of waiting until the end of the war to set up the machinery of peace. This time, as we fight together to get the war over quickly, we work together to keep it from happening again.

"I am well aware of the constitutional fact—as are all the united nations—that this charter must be approved by two-thirds of the senate of the United States—as will some of the other arrangements made at Yalta.

Senate Kept Advised.

"The senate of the United States, thru its appropriate representatives, has been kept continuously advised of the program of this government in the creation of the international security organization.

"The senate and the house of representatives will both be represented at the San Francisco conference. The congressional delegates to the San Francisco conference will consist of an equal number of Republican and Democratic members. The American delegation is—in every sense of the word—bipartisan.

"World peace is not a party question—any more than is military victory.

"When our republic was threatened, first by the Nazi clutch for world conquest in 1940, and then by the Japanese treachery of 1941, partisanship and politics were laid aside by nearly every American; and every resource was dedicated to our common safety. The same consecration to the cause of peace will be expected by every patriotic American and by every human soul overseas.

NO ONE-MAN PEACE

It Must Have Co-Operation of Entire World

"The structure of world peace cannot be the work of one man, or one party, or one nation. It cannot be an American peace, or a British, a Russian, a French, or a Chinese peace. It cannot be a peace of large nations—or of small nations. It must be a peace which rests on the cooperative effort of the whole world.

"It cannot be a structure of complete perfection at first. But it can be a peace—and it will be a peace—based on the sound and just principles of the Atlantic Charter—on the conception of the dignity of the human being—on the guarantees of tolerance and freedom of religious worship.

"As the allied armies have marched to military victory, they have liberated peoples whose liberties had been crushed by the Nazis for four years, and whose economy had been reduced to ruin by Nazi despoilers.

Confusion, Unrest Arise.

"There have been instances of political confusion and unrest in these liberated areas—as in Greece and Poland and Yugoslavia and other places. Worse than that, there actually began to grow up in some of them vaguely defined ideas of 'spheres of influence' which were incompatible with the basic principles of international collaboration. If allowed to go unchecked, these developments might have had tragic results.

"It is fruitless to try to place the blame for this situation on one particular nation or another. It is the kind of development which is almost inevitable unless the major powers of the world continue without interruption to work together and to assume joint responsibility for the solution of problems which may arise to endanger the peace of the world.

"We met in the Crimea, determined to settle this matter of liberated areas. I am happy to confirm to the congress that we did arrive at a settlement—a unanimous settlement.

JOINT RESPONSIBILITY

Big 3 Nations Pledge to Help All Others

"The three most powerful nations have agreed that the political and economic problems of any area liberated from the Nazi conquest, or of any former axis satellite, are a joint responsibility of all three governments. They will join together, during the temporary period of instability after hostilities, to help the people of any liberated area, or of any former satellite state, to solve their own problems thru firmly established democratic processes.

"They will endeavor to see to it that interim governing authorities are as representative as possible of all democratic elements in the population, and that free elections are held as soon as possible.

World Becomes Smaller.

"Responsibility for political conditions thousands of miles overseas can no longer be avoided by this great nation. As I have said, it is a smaller world. The United States now exerts a vast influence in the cause of peace thruout all the world. It will continue to exert that influence only if it is willing to continue to share in the responsibility for keeping the peace. It would be our own tragic loss were we to shirk that responsibility.

"Final decisions in these areas are going to be made jointly, and, therefore, they will often be a result of give and take compromise. The United States will not always have its way 100 per cent—nor will Russia or Great Britain. We shall not always have ideal solutions to complicated international problems, even tho we are determined continuously to strive toward the ideal. But I am sure that—under the agreements reached at Yalta—there will be a more stable political Europe than ever before.

Nations Must Be Helped.

"Of course, once there has been a free expression of the people's will in any country, our immediate responsibility ends—with the exception only of such action as may be agreed upon in the international security organization.

"The united nations must also soon begin to help these liberated areas adequately to reconstruct their economy so that they are ready to resume their places in the world. The Nazi war machine has stripped them of raw materials and machine tools and trucks and locomotives. They have left their industry stagnant and much of their agriculture unproductive.

"To start the wheels running again is not a mere matter of relief. It is to the national interest of all of us to see that these liberated areas are again made self-supporting and productive.

"One outstanding example of joint action by the three major allies in the liberated areas was the solution reached on Poland. The whole Polish question was a potential source of trouble in post-war Europe, and we came to the conference determined to find a common ground for its solution. We did.

"Our objective was to help create a strong, independent, and prosperous nation, with a government ultimately to be selected by the Polish people themselves.

Provide New Government.

"To achieve this objective, it was necessary to provide for the formation of a new government much more representative than had been possible while Poland was enslaved. Accordingly, steps were taken at Yalta to reorganize the existing provisional government in Poland on a broader democratic basis, so as to include democratic leaders now in Poland and those abroad. This new, reorganized government will be recognized by all of us as the temporary government of Poland.

"However, the new Polish provisional government of national unity will be pledged to hold a free election as soon as possible on the basis of universal suffrage and a secret ballot.

"Thruout history, Poland has been the corridor thru which attacks on Russia have been made. Twice in this generation, Germany has struck at Russia thru this corridor. To insure European security and world peace, a strong and independent Poland is necessary.

Compromise Decision.

"The decision with respect to the boundaries of Poland was a compromise, under which, however, the Poles will receive compensation in territory in the north and west in exchange for what they lose by the Curzon line. The limits of the western boundary will be permanently fixed in the final peace conference. It was agreed that a large coast line should be included.

THE ROLE OF FRANCE

Invited to Share a Zone of Control in Germany

"It is well known that the people east of the Curzon line are predominantly White Russian and Ukrainian; and that the people west of the line are predominantly Polish. As far back as 1919, the representatives of the allies agreed that the Curzon line represented a fair boundary between the two peoples.

"I am convinced that the agreement on Poland, under the circumstances, is the most hopeful agreement possible for a free, independent and prosperous Polish state.

"The Crimean conference was a meeting of the three major military powers on whose shoulders rest the chief responsibility and burden of the war. Altho, for this reason, France was not a participant in the conference, no one should detract from the recognition there accorded of her role in the future of Europe and the world.

"France has been invited to accept a zone of control in Germany, and to participate as a fourth member of the allied control council of Germany.

"She has been invited to join as a sponsor of the international conference at San Francisco.

"She will be a permanent member of the international security council together with the other four major powers.

"And, finally, we have asked that France be associated with us in our joint responsibility over the liberated areas of Europe.

"Agreement was also reached on Yugoslavia, as announced in the communique; and is in process of fulfillment.

PRESSURE ON JAPAN

American and British Staffs Confer at Malta

"Quite naturally, the Crimean conference concerned itself only with the European war and with the political problems of Europe—and not with the Pacific war.

"At Malta, however, our combined British and American staffs made their plans to increase the attack against Japan.

"The Japanese war lords know that they are not being overlooked. They have felt the force of our B-29s, and our carrier planes; they have felt the naval might of the United States, and do not appear very anxious to come out and try it again.

"The Japs know what it means to hear that 'the United States marines have landed.' And we can add, having Iwo Jima in mind: 'the situation is well in hand.'

"They also know what is in store for the homeland of Japan now that Gen. MacArthur has completed his magnificent march back to Manila, and Adm. Nimitz is establishing his air bases right in the back yard of Japan itself—in Iwo Jima.

"It is still a tough, long road to Tokyo. The defeat of Germany will not mean the end of the war against Japan. On the contrary, America must be prepared for a long and costly struggle in the Pacific.

"But the unconditional surrender of Japan is as essential as the defeat of Germany—if our plans for world peace are to succeed. For Japanese militarism must be wiped out as thoroly as German militarism.

A Turning Point.

"The conference in the Crimea was a turning point in American history. There will soon be presented to the senate of the United States and to the American people a great decision which will determine the fate of the United States—and of the world—for generations to come.

"No plan is perfect. Whatever is adopted at San Francisco will doubtless have to be amended time and again over the years, just as our own Constitution has been.

"No one can say exactly how long any plan will last. Peace can endure only so long as humanity really insists upon it, and is willing to work for it—and sacrifice for it.

"I am confident that the congress and the American people will accept the results of this conference [Yalta] as the beginnings of a permanent structure of peace upon which we can begin to build, under God, that better world in which our children and grandchildren—yours and mine, the children and grandchildren of the whole world—must live."

F. D. R. RAMBLES IN TALK; DISCERN DE GAULLE SLAP

'Prima Donna' Remark Is Called 'Indiscretion.'

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., March 1.—President Roosevelt's 55 minute address to congress today was marked by frequent departures from his prepared text.

The interjection which caused most comment and was later labeled "a diplomatic indiscretion" by several listeners was apparently designed as a slap at Gen. De Gaulle, the French leader who snubbed Mr. Roosevelt by refusing an invitation to meet with him during his visit abroad.

There was smothered laughter in the chamber as the President remarked:

"Of course there are a great many prima donnas in the world who want to be heard and have to be consulted. There may be some delay while we are consulting some of these prima donnas."

Rambling Observations.

The reference to De Gaulle was believed unmistakable. The President had just finished noting that France had not been a participant in the Big Three conference, but had been invited to take part in many of the post-war controls to be set up.

The interpolations consisted for the most part of rambling observations, voiced in a low, conversational tone as Mr. Roosevelt relaxed in a red damask covered chair in the well of the house.

W. L. Fenstermacher, official reporter of the house, said his instructions from the White House were to put the prepared text in the record "and, unless we get other instructions, that's what will be done."

It was the President's first visit to Capitol hill in two years. The packed chamber saw a thinner chief executive, with a careworn face, who for the first time was transported in a wheel chair to his place before a table upon which rested a battery of microphones. On all previous visits, he had ascended a ramp to the speaker's platform and stood while talking.

Mr. Roosevelt immediately referred to his physical disability in apologizing to the legislators for sitting down.

Much Easier to Sit Down.

"As you all know," he remarked, "I have about 10 pounds of steel around the bottom of my legs. I have also just returned from a 14,000 mile trip. It will be much easier for me to sit down."

The usual smile and waves of the hand were absent as members roundly applauded his entrance. A White House attache helped him shift from the wheel chair to the easy chair. The lengthy speech was delivered in a mechanical tone of voice which seldom was raised until the final paragraph. Delivery was sometimes marked by hesitancy as the President obviously lost his place several times after diverging from the text of the typewritten document before him.

There was a good tan on the President's face, and he took occasion to deny rumors that he had been ill during the expedition to Yalta.

"I was not ill a second from the time I left until I arrived back," he said. "And then I heard all the rumors that had been going around about my illness."

Ambassador in Audience.

In the audience were British Ambassador Halifax, Ambassador Bonnet of France, whose government has just signed a huge credit arrangement with the United States; Russian Ambassador Gromyko, formally dressed, and Ambassador Ciechanowski of Poland, whose long-troubled land was cut up by the Yalta agreements.

The President was interrupted by applause 14 times. The handclapping was of the scattered variety for the most part. A spontaneous outburst greeted mention of the names of Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz and an assertion that the unconditional surrender of Japan was as essential as the defeat of Germany.

Silence on Polish Statement.

There was a dead silence during the reading of the explanation of the settlement of the Polish problem and the President, as tho conscious of this apathy, interjected:

"The decision with respect to the boundaries of Poland was quite a compromise. I didn't agree with all of it by any means, but we could go as far as Britain wanted in certain areas, go as far as Russia wanted in certain areas, and we could go as far as I wanted in certain areas—it was a compromise."

Most of East Prussia was going to Poland under the agreement, he said, again leaving his text, except "a corner to Russia." "Danzig will be a lot better off going to Poland," he remarked.

In referring to Polish partition, the President used the personal pronoun "me" when speaking for the United States. "Our objective was to help create a strong, independent, and prosperous nation," he said. "That's the thing we must always remember, those words, agreed to by Russia, by Britain, and by me, the objective of making Poland a strong, independent, and prosperous nation."

After noting that our air bases are "in Japan's back yard," he again interpolated: "But lay off work in the United States? We haven't won the wars yet and there's an 'S' on wars."

Clear and Simple.

At another point the President, referring to the method of voting in the security council of the proposed world peace organization, said, "I want to try to make it clear by making it simple. It took me hours and hours to get the thing straight in my own mind." He said the final plan will be announced in a "very short time."

"The [peace organization] charter has to be and should be, approved by the senate of the United States under the Constitution," he said. "I think the other nations all know it now—I am aware of that fact, and now all the other nations are, and we hope that the senate will approve of what is set forth as the charter of the united nations, when they all come together in San Francisco, next month."

Other interpolations:

"I learned more about the Arabian-Jewish problem in five minutes of talk with King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia than all I knew, before."

"I think Republicans want peace just as much as Democrats."

Military Policemen.

First one bumped into military policemen, scores of which surrounded every conceivable entrance. Others, toting pistols, hid behind the shrubbery.

Next were hundreds of District of Columbia policemen, scrutinizing the faces and credentials of those who managed to sift thru the first line of defense. Hurdle No. 3 was the force of capitol building policemen.

F. D. R. URGES PARLEY DELEGATES TO END THE CAUSES OF WAR

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt believes the allied nations conference at San Francisco can remove the "political, economic, and social causes of war."

In a letter to the eight members of the American delegation to the conference opening April 25 he said he feels certain the meeting "will successfully complete" the plans for an international organization to prevent future wars.

The letter was dated yesterday and formally invited the eight persons to serve on the delegation.

"I feel certain that this important conference, bringing together all the united nations which have so loyally coöperated in the war against their common enemies, will successfully complete the plans for an international organization thru which the close and continuing collaboration of all peace loving peoples may be directed toward the prevention of future international conflict and the removal of the political, economic, and social causes of war," the President said.

TRIO ADMIT FOUR BURGLARIES.

William Hogan, 19, of 8640 Sangamon st.; Charles Hughes, 8340 Carpenter st., and Robert Coots, 7840 Stewart av., each 17, were arrested yesterday while attempting to break into a meat market at 1140 W. 76th st. Police said they admitted four other burglaries.

Long Road to Tokyo.

But it is still a "tough, long road to Tokyo," he cautioned, and even after the defeat of Germany we must be prepared for a "long and costly struggle in the Pacific." But the unconditional surrender of Japan and the extirpation of Japanese militarism he held no less essential than in the case of Germany. At Malta, the President related, the British and American chiefs of staff planned "to increase the attack against Japan."

Mr. Roosevelt explained that undisclosed in the Yalta statement means the total permanent disarmament of that country, but does not mean that the German people are to starve or become a burden on the rest of the world.

Mr. Roosevelt revealed little not disclosed in the Yalta communique and he adhered closely to the line taken by Prime Minister Churchill to rebutt contentions that the arbitrary partition of Poland by the Big Three would sow the seeds of future war.

Calls It a Compromise.

He was confident that the steps taken to set up the provisional and permanent governments would create a strong, independent Poland. Mr. Roosevelt called the arrangement whereby Poland loses 42 per cent of its territory to Russia and is to be compensated by territory taken from Germany, a compromise in which each of the Big Three yielded something to get an agreement.

The President would not try to assess the blame for the cultivation of European spheres of influence which recently jeopardized the unity of the Big Three, but he called the Crimea conference a successful effort to "find a common ground for peace," which "spells the end" of unilateral actions, exclusive alliances, spheres of influence, and balances of power.

ARM CHAIR SPEECH STIRS COMMENT ON ROOSEVELT'S HEALTH

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt's arm chair report on the Yalta conference caused mixed reaction in congress tonight on the state of Mr. Roosevelt's health.

Comment ranged from Sen. George's [D., Ga.] observation that the President appeared "noticeably tired" to Sen. Tydings' [D., Md.] observation that "he looks fitter than his pictures."

For the first time since he became President, Mr. Roosevelt permitted himself to be wheeled into the house to address the joint session. He also spoke while seated. This decision was applauded by Sen. Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip.

"He means so much to the nation that he ought to conserve his strength any way he can," Hill said.

Sen. George [D., Ga.] thought the President "looked much better than he did when I saw him a day or two before he went away" but was "noticeably tired" as he read the final portion of his address.

"His voice doesn't have the resilience it once did," the Georgia senator commented.

Some legislators said they thought the President fumbled for words at times, but others thought this was caused primarily by the fact that he departed so often from his text and sometimes had difficulty making a smooth transition back to it.

I. C. EMPLOYES RAISE $36,930 IN RED CROSS DRIVE

A subscription of $36,930 and a promise of more to come from Illinois Central workers made them the first employe group to subscribe in the 1945 Red Cross war fund campaign, it was announced yesterday, opening day of the drive. Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the campaign, received this information from the Illinois Central labor-management committee in charge of the company's drive: "Approximately 90 per cent of the 90,000 Illinois Central men and women workers in and around Chicago have been canvassed and have responded almost unanimously with a day's pay each. The preliminary survey was started Feb. 19. The employes' quota, set at $36,785, was exceeded."

CHURCHILL WINS COMMONS' VOTE ON CRIMEA ACTS

LONDON, March 1 (AP).—Britain's house of commons unanimously gave Prime Minister Churchill a green light tonight to pursue the policies of the Crimea charter after hearing that Germany will be sternly and severely dismembered as part of its bill for aggression.

A 413 to 0 vote of confidence placed Britain, in advance of victory, squarely on record in support of the Big Three's decisions for rendering Germany militarily impotent and establishing conditions for a stable Europe. Approximately 30 members in the chamber recorded a silent objection by declining to vote.

Vote Cheered.

The action constituted a major triumph for the 70 year old prime minister who was cheered as the vote was announced. It was the first blanket legislative indorsement of the Crimea decisions by any one of the major powers.

Foreign Secretary Eden, only a few minutes before the final tally, declared that Germany and Austria—corner stone of Adolf Hitler's plan of conquest—would be separated, and called upon the Austrian people to initiate the division themselves with the warning that "time is running short."

The vote climaxed three days of an important foreign policy debate that threw new light on what Germany will face in the way of territorial losses in addition to economic blows resulting from the Big Three's decision to eliminate or control much of the reich's heavy industry.

May Lose Lands to Dutch.

A few hours before the vote Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee raised the possibility that Germany would lose part of its land to Holland as compensation to the Dutch for Nazi devastation.

Thruout the debate, there had been repeated emphasis on the Big Three's plan to compensate Poland for the sacrifice of land east of the Curzon line thru the annexation of part of East Prussia, part of industrial Silesia and perhaps part of Pomerania east of the Oder river.

Opposes Lublin Poles.

Eden bluntly declared that members of the Polish Lublin committee did not make a good impression upon himself or Churchill during their conferences in Moscow several months ago.

"There is no question of our affording recognition to them," he asserted.

The group which declined to vote today included several members of Churchill's own party who led an unsuccessful effort yesterday to push thru a motion censuring the Big Three for the Polish plan.

Meanwhile the house of lords unanimously approved a similar resolution commending the work of the Crimea conference.

SAUDI ARABIA AND IRAN JOIN ALLIED RANKS

Holy Cities Declared Open.

LONDON, March 1 [Reuters].—The Saudi Arabian legation in London was informed today from Jedda that Saudi Arabia had declared war on Germany and Japan. The declaration specified that Mecca and Medina, holy places, should remain neutral and be considered open cities.

It was understood that Saudi Arabia would now be eligible for invitation to the San Francisco world security conference.

Republicans Critical; New Dealers Pleased.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—Congressional reaction to President Roosevelt's report of the Crimea conference today ranged from Republican charges that it was an effort to win congressional support of undisclosed agreements reached at Yalta to exclamations of "magnificent!" from Democrats.

Most Republican senators and congressmen told reporters the report contained nothing that had not already been announced. Some senators agreed with the "pious hopes" expressed by the President but were pessimistic about the chances of the Presidential aims being realized.

"The President very definitely was playing up to congress," said Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.], British-born Boer war veteran. "He was seeking the support of congress for his actions at Yalta."

Full of Generalities.

"The President's approach to congress was most conciliatory," said Sen. Brewster [R., Me.]. Brewster's colleague, Minority Leader White, said the speech was "a fascinating report" but full of "generalities."

"However," added White, "I am content with the President's assurance that the details of the agreements reached will be made known in the peace treaties and charter of the world peace organization, both of which must come before the senate for approval."

Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] and White said they agreed with the President's "pious hopes" for the future peace of the world but Wheeler said the actions of Russia toward its small neighbors "do not inspire in thinking people the hopes the President seems to have."

Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] had nothing to say.

Among congressional comments were these:

A "Bill of Goods."

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.]—The President is trying to sell the country a bill of goods without undoing the wrapper.

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.]—It is now apparent, in the settlement of the Polish question, that the United States is a party to European power politics. It is the first time in history we have sanctioned the cutting up of a friendly country's population.

Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.]—A very fine speech.

Rep. Allen [R., Ill.]—Congress had expected to learn something from the President but it didn't. What about secret commitments that may have been made at Yalta?

Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.]—A good presentation of generalities. I wish he had told us what Russia is going to do about Japan.

Rep. Taber [R., N. Y.]—Just such a lending program as the President proposes for rebuilding foreign nations was what made other nations distrust us after the last war and contributed to the present world conflict.

Choice of Delegates.

Rep. Mundt [R., S. D.]—Mr. Roosevelt's statement that he is proceeding with peace machinery on a bipartisan basis would carry more weight if he invited the Republicans to choose their own delegates to the San Francisco conference.

Rep. O'Konski [R., Wis.]—Apparently the chief accomplishment of the Yalta conference was that we now can at least talk to Stalin. The President talked of a free and independent Poland when 130,000 Polish boys can't even go home without being sent to Siberia.

Sen. Saltonstall [R., Mass.]—I take it that the preliminaries have been laid for a better understanding leading to peace. It is up to us to understand thoroly the problems involved and to accept our responsibilities in determining the course we should follow.

Sen. Ellender [D., La.]—Amen to everything he said.

Rep. Vorys [R., O.]—What worried me was this conversational friendly discussion of secret covenants secretly arrived at.

Sen. Hoey [pronounced Hoo-ey] [D., N. C.]—Magnificent!

U. S. FORMULA FOR AMERICAS' PEACE SHAPED

Conference May Get Plan Today.

MEXICO CITY, March 1 (AP).—Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the United States senate foreign relations committee, said today he believed the United States delegation to the inter-American conference here would be able to offer tomorrow a satisfactory formula for dealing with aggression in this hemisphere.

Connally had consulted with other members of the United States delegation on a formula that would provide for the use of American forces if necessary to put down any threat of aggression.

Plan Drafted by Austin.

As tentatively drafted before Connally's arrival, the formula provided for immediate action by the invocation of President Roosevelt's existing war powers to use force anywhere required by the war effort. It also recommended treaty arrangements, within the framework of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, to take care of the post-war period.

Sen. Austin [R., Va.], minority leader of the foreign relations committee, devised the formula that Connally has under study, but he said he preferred to have the Texan take the lead.

A committee of the inter-American conference approved two measures of a resolution to strengthen the inter-American system and give it power to keep the peace in this hemisphere. The resolution, piecing together proposals by the United States, Mexico, and Paraguay, is intended to give the inter-American system power to function as part of the international security organization.

Ask Parley Every Four Years.

The measures approved by the committee call for regular four year meetings of the international conference of American states to formulate general inter-American policy, and annual meetings of the ministers of foreign affairs to compare in principle with the quarterly meetings of the Big Three foreign ministers.

GUITAR WOOER KILLS DIVORCEE IN BATHTUB ROW

Pascagoula, Miss., March 1 (AP).—A guitar playing seaman was charged today with the hammer slaying Tuesday night of a 22 year old divorcee whom he said he serenaded on a bus in which she was riding to meet her soldier fiance.

Seaman Bosarge.

The seaman, Edward Sharp Bosarge, 22, of Kreole, Miss., admitted wooing Mrs. Leona Pierce, 22, of Denver, Colo., whose nude body was found Wednesday in a room at a gulf coast hotel near here.

Earlier L. K. McIntosh, Jackson county prosecuting attorney, said Bosarge had made a statement admitting that he struck Mrs. Pierce twice with a hammer during an argument over who would have a bath first after the couple registered at the hotel.

Mrs. Pierce's body was identified by her fiance, Staff Sgt. Herman A. Cole of Roane Mountain, Tenn., now stationed at Kessler Field, Miss.

They put Locomotives in a Test-Tube

Mile after tense mile, New York Central test engineers cling to the speeding locomotive, or watch each flicker of the instruments back in the Dynamometer car.

They feel the pulse of the mighty cylinders. They sample the smoke-box gases. They weigh every pound of coal for the firebox and every ton of pull on the drawbar. And steadily, the data they gather is recorded on the Dynamometer Car's moving chart. For this car is their "laboratory on wheels"... where they figuratively put 250 tons of locomotive in a test-tube to study its performance.

Today, their work helps New York Central operate more efficiently as a vital link in the wartime supply line. And tomorrow...when critical materials are again available... their records will point the way to still finer locomotives for the future.

Tester in Chief

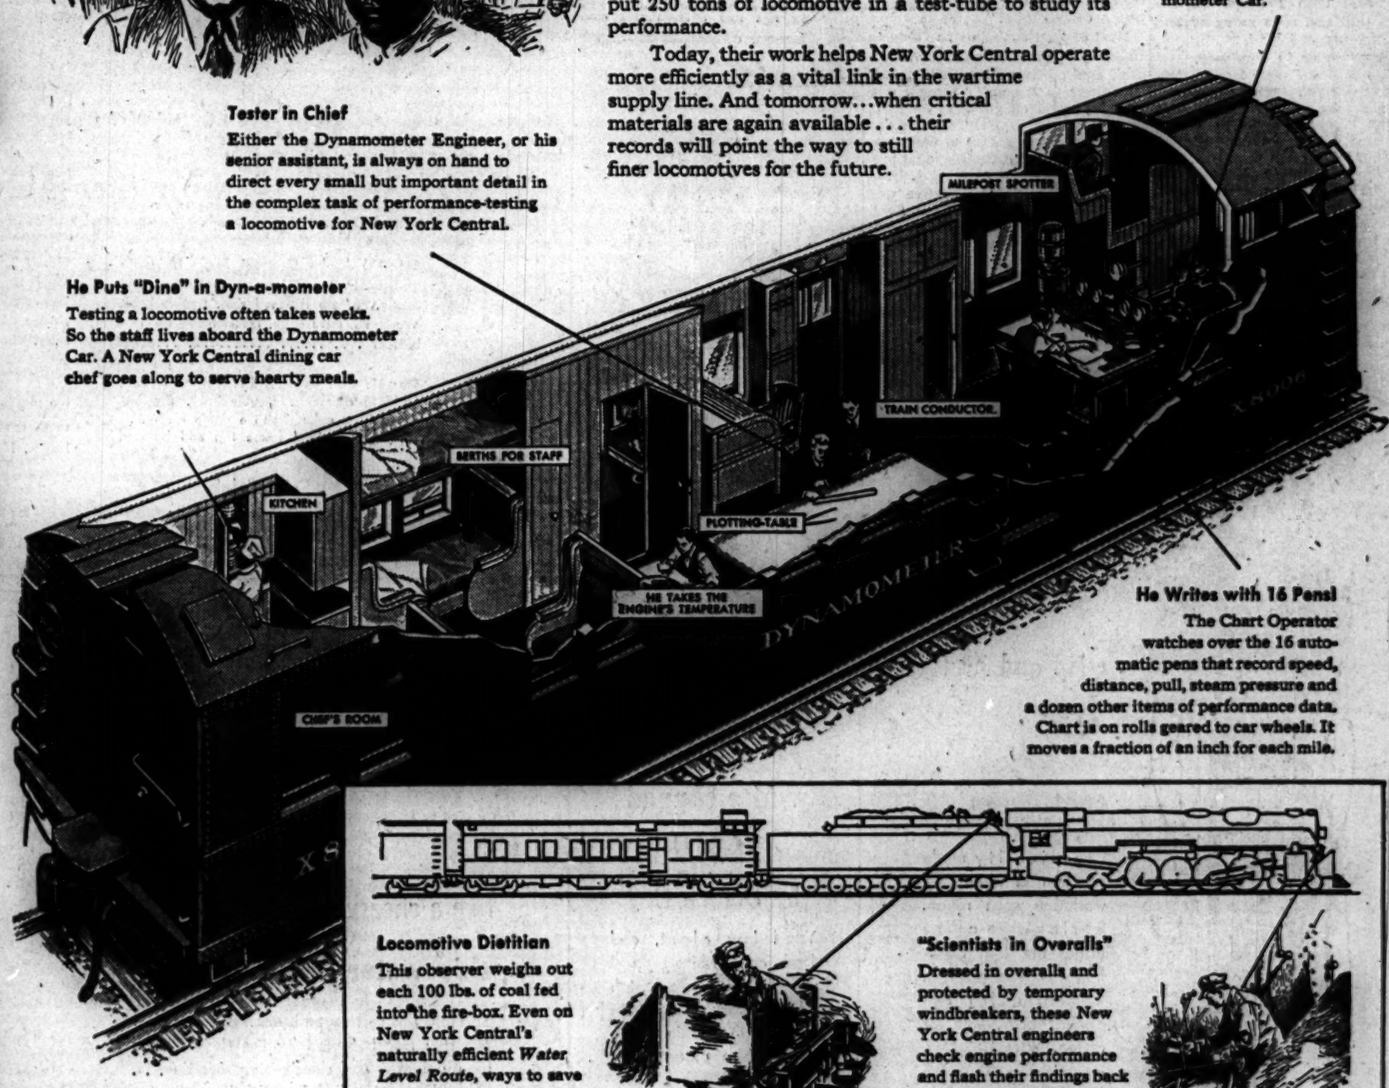
Tons on a Pen Point!
These oil cylinders can reduce a locomotive's 500,000-lb. pull down to a tiny force that moves a pen in New York Central's Dynamometer Car.



He Puts "Dine" in Dyn-a-mometer
Testing a locomotive often takes weeks. So the staff lives aboard the Dynamometer Car. A New York Central dining car chef goes along to serve hearty meals.

He Writes with 16 Pens!
The Chart Operator watches over the 16 automatic pens that record speed, distance, pull, steam pressure and a dozen other items of performance data. Chart is on rolls geared to car wheels. It moves a fraction of an inch for each mile.

Locomotive Dietitian
This observer weighs out each 100 lbs. of coal fed into the fire-box. Even on New York Central's naturally efficient Water Level Route, ways to save fuel are constantly sought.

"Scientists in Overalls"

UNCLE SAM TO HAND OUT 32,000,000 EXTRA RED POINTS

The greatest windfall of extra red points ever is going this month, and each month following, to American housewives throughout the country.

32 million extra red points, approximately, will be handed out by meat dealers to customers who turn in used fats in a great Victory drive for this essential of medicines, gunpowder, synthetic rubber, soaps, paints and a hundred other necessities on the battlefield and home front. For each pound of fats turned in, every housewife is entitled to 2 red points.

The need for used fats is still urgent. Women are urged to save every drop, every spoonful of grease possible and keep saving until final Victory over both Germany and Japan.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, March 1.—Capt. Kenneth D. Schiewe of Watseka, Ill., is one of the four original pilots of the 324th fighter bomber organization of the 1st tactical air force which today won another cluster to its battle honors and its second unit citation. The 1st tactical air force now is on the western front. In 28 months it has mounted 2,891 missions for a total of 22,450 sorties. The unit won its first citation while supporting the British 8th army ground forces in Tunisia.

Other original pilots still with the group are Maj. Lester L. Krause of Burton, O.; Maj. Leland R. Raphun of Tallahassee, Fla., and Capt. J. T. Johnson of Wilmington, N. C. Col. Leonard C. Lydon of Stuart, Ia., commands the group.

JAUNDICE PERILS BABY WITH ODD BLOOD MALADY

Champaign, Ill., March 1 [Special].—The Colebourn baby, whose red blood cells are being destroyed by an unusual blood type combination in her parents, tonight was given only a 50-50 chance of survival as jaundice set in. A second blood transfusion was administered but the 6½ pound girl remained in serious condition.

The infant was delivered yesterday by Caesarean section, a month prematurely, to Mrs. William G. Colebourn, 29, of Georgetown, Ill., a registered nurse. After an immediate transfusion, the tot was placed in an incubator at Burnham city hospital.

Mrs. Colebourn has type O-RH negative blood, possessed by only about 15 per cent of all persons, while her husband, an army warrant officer, has O-RH positive. Physicians said this combination often tends to destroy red blood cells in an infant. Transfusions of O-RH negative blood, obtained from a voluntary donor, are being given in an effort to counteract the destruction process.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOUNDED JUNE 10, 1847

ENTERED AS SECOND CLASS MATTER MAY 14, 1903, AT THE POSTOFFICE AT CHICAGO, ILL., UNDER ACT OF MARCH 3, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters, and pictures sent to The Tribune are sent at the owner's risk, and The Tribune company expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return.

WHO WILL PROVIDE THE MONEY?

The city council on Tuesday went on record in favor of the purchase by the city of the elevated and the surface lines. This is regarded as a first step toward a settlement of the local transportation problem in accordance with the plan agreed upon by Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green in their recent conferences.

The state legislature has yet to enact the appropriate enabling laws and the voters of Chicago and the suburban communities have yet to pass on the plan for a metropolitan transit district. Even if all these political obstacles are surmounted the plan will fail unless investors can be found who will lend the district something less than $100,000,000 right away to buy the existing lines and something more than $100,000,000 over a period of 10 or a dozen years to extend and improve the services.

Where is all this money coming from? That is the heart of the traction problem today, as it has been for nearly a generation. What terms are going to be offered to prospective investors which will lead them to risk their capital in local transportation? The mayor and the governor have expressed confidence that the funds will be forthcoming and investment bankers have given their judgment tentatively that the plan is financially feasible. It is to be hoped that before long the vague assurances to this effect will be replaced with a candid declaration of what the Transit district is going to pledge to investors that will persuade them that their principal will be safe and their interest will be regularly paid.

Mayor Kelly told the members of the local transportation committee of the council on Monday that the new district would have no taxing power, a point which had been previously stressed by him and Gov. Green when the plan was first announced. This will please the taxpayers, but will deprive the district's bonds of an element of strength. As far as is known now, the new government will have only income bonds to sell. If interest is earned it will be paid; otherwise not. So far as the principal is concerned, it is not clear whether, if a default occurs, the lenders can foreclose and obtain possession of the property. This is one of the points that particularly needs clarification.

Those who believe the plan is financially feasible point to a number of circumstances: [1] That the new company will pay no local taxes and its earnings will be correspondingly increased; [2] that the presently prevailing low interest rates will permit the issuing of new securities at lower rates than the companies are now paying; [3] that the interest paid on the new bonds will be exempt from federal income taxation because the Transit district will be a municipal corporation, with the result that the bonds will be attractive investments; [4] that extensions and new equipment will yield a material increase in earnings.

Against these more or less favorable factors must be reckoned [1] the high probability that after the war operating costs will be considerable higher than in the past; [2] that no one can remember when the elevated lines paid interest on their existing bonds and, accordingly, any income bonds issued to acquire the elevated will mean in effect a new charge against earnings. Even more important is [3] the generally bad record of the Chicago transportation services in the eyes of investors. If new money is to be attracted, the terms will have to be such as to persuade such people that this time they will not be short-changed.

Mr. Kelly seems to have had this thought in mind when he said that, naturally, the investors would be represented on the board of trustees, but apparently they are to be there by grace rather than by right. Both the mayor and the governor have said that they will appoint only men of the highest type to the board. There is no reason to doubt the intention to carry out this pledge, but it remains to be seen whether long-term money will be attracted without more binding assurances about the character of the board for the long term.

The mayor expressed the hope that the Transit district, being a government, would be enabled to borrow at low rates from the federal treasury. Perhaps that is a point in favor of the plan, but it can also be read as an intimation that the mayor is doubtful of the ability of the proposed new government to raise significant sums in the ordinary capital markets. If great reliance is being placed upon obtaining loans from the R. F. C., the people should be told so in plain language and they should be told, also, what reason exists for believing that the R. F. C. will come across.

Without new money, the service can be little better than it is today and it may be worse. As yet neither the aldermen nor the legislators nor the people have been told enough about the plan. We can hope that the mayor and the governor will soon lay their cards on the table. Delay in doing so will breed suspicion and doubt.

FARMING THE FARMERS.

On the same day that the house voted an investigation of the induction of essential farm workers in defiance of the Tydings amendment, the senate approved and sent to the White House legislation appropriating $6,784,000 to continue a census of agriculture. Testimony showed that most of the 27,000 enumerators to take the census will come off the farms. Thus while the draft boards are taking workers off the farms, the department of agriculture is taking still more workers off the farms.

The census was voted because the New Deal majority never, never, votes down any appropriation, especially if it's for some nonessential, nonwar purpose that accumulates a lot of statistics. The statistics will keep the burocrats who farm the farmers occupied for a long time to come, analyzing them and compiling reports that won't milk a single cow, produce a pound of beef, or grow a single bushel of grain. On the other hand, the investigation of the induction of farm workers is also voted because the New Dealers have been hearing from the farmers and they want to ingratiate themselves with their constituents.

There is no useful purpose to be achieved by a farm census now. When the census was authorized to be taken on the farms every five years back in 1925, there was an abundance of man power and no prospect of war. Furthermore, the facts reported in the census would reflect conditions which could be expected to hold good for the next few years. Right now conditions on the farms are very erratic. Some types of live stock have been built up abnormally; others have been cut down. Production is shifting to every directive. The labor supply is in a state of flux. The facts to be found by this census won't apply by the time they are compiled.

In addition, the whole scheme is a boondoggle. The data which are to be obtained by the census are gathered quarterly by AAA committeemen at a cost of 26 million dollars a year. The government will find out nothing that it doesn't already know.

O, yes, there's one question the New Deal doesn't want answered. There is a specific instruction that farms abandoned or idle in 1944 and 1945 are not to be enumerated. Can you guess why?

MORE SPILLED MILK.

Sen. James M. Tunnell of Delaware, who in company of Sen. Harold Burton of Ohio toured American bases from Bermuda to the middle east, returned to make a plaintive report to his colleagues on the Good Time Charlie policies of the New Deal and the army. He confirmed what was already known: That billions of the taxpayers' money have been poured into installations in the possessions of allied nations without any effort to keep proper books on the construction or to assure America's future rights in the airports and bases it has built and paid for.

It is becoming an increasingly familiar performance for congress to cry over the milk it helped to spill by its past rejection of all demands that it establish proper safeguards at the time it was passing war appropriations and authorizations. All such suggestions were opposed by the Roosevelt administration on the ground that it would be offensive to our allies to manifest a suspicious attitude. They could be counted upon to do the right thing, never fear. That was simply cricket.

Sen. Tunnell's accounting showed that our allies lost no opportunities to take advantage of our reluctance to protect ourselves. Having sized us up for a patsy, they proceeded to work us—but good. The British have declined to make an accounting of reverse lend-lease. They decline to price invoices on materials and services lend-leased to us, so that after the war when an effort is made to balance the account they will be able to assign any monetary value they see fit to their contributions. On past performances, we'll be lucky if we don't wind up owing them something.

On the charges they do declare, the senator said, they practice flagrant write-ups. American charges on transportation, insurance, and handling of lend-lease goods are 25 per cent. The British inflate their reverse lend-lease charges of this kind to 42 per cent. On one so-called reverse lend-lease transaction the navy received materials and services it valued at 10 million dollars. The British credited themselves with 175 million on that transaction.

Proceeding with his account of our slap-happy financial practices, Sen. Tunnell mentioned an air field which we had built in French Morocco at a cost of more than a million dollars. The army carried the value on its books at about 5 per cent of the cost price—$52,000.

The complete indifference of our representatives to the interests of this country was manifested in failure everywhere to safeguard our future rights in the bases we constructed. Mr. Roosevelt has not obtained any commercial rights in any of the air fields which Senators Tunnell and Burton surveyed, and frequently we are dependent upon the British for permission to use them at all. The Bermuda base is one such example and, altho the Azores are owned by Portugal and we built and paid for the base there, we use it only by British sufferance.

The Casablanca airport in Morocco, improved by us at a cost of one million, has been turned over by the French to the British. The British Overseas Airways are running regularly scheduled commercial flights into the airports which we built or improved elsewhere in North Africa, but we have not obtained even a franchise to operate there.

This subservience of the Roosevelt administration to British interests has had collateral confirmation in the house, where Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, a member of the military affairs committee, disclosed a scandalous condition in relating how British officers assume precedence over our own in Italy. "In order for our own American general there to promote one of his own men in his service," she said, "the matter had to go thru five British officers."

The milk has been spilled, all right, but the American public wants to see some disposition in congress to do more than weep over it. It is going to be impossible to salvage all that our sugar daddies have given away, but congress can act at once to conserve what's left.

Before considering dispensing further largess, congress should demand binding commitments assuring us permanent rights in the airways we have built. It should demand the institution of strict accounting practices in the administration of lend-lease and reverse lend-lease. While our allies are still in the market for handouts there is a fair chance of getting something in return, but once let them become convinced that the golden goose has been killed and we will be handed our hats and shown the door.

TOKYO, OLD STYLE.

In 1888, when the western world thought of Tokyo as a town of quaint little people who were amusingly represented in a comic opera called "The Mikado," a flippant young newspaper man from India, globe-trotting the long way home, took a look at the place. He was staggered by its size, and since his name was Rudyard Kipling, his old fashioned remarks are worth quoting. As seen thru the spectacles of a fledgling British imperialist, this was Tokyo before it grew up:

* * *

"Some folk say that Tokyo covers an area equal to London. Some folk say that it is not more than ten miles long and eight miles broad. There are a good many ways of solving the question. I found a tea garden situated on a green plateau far up a flight of steps, with pretty girls smiling on every step. From this elevation I looked forth over the city, and it stretched away from the sea as far as the eye could reach—one gray expanse of packed house roof, the perspective marked by numberless factory chimneys.

* * *

"Then I went several miles away and found a park, another eminence, and some more tea girls prettier than the last; and looking again, the city stretched out in a new direction as far as the eye could see. Taking the scope of the eye on a clear day at 18 miles, I make Tokyo 36 miles long by 36 miles wide exactly, and there may be some more which I missed.

* * *

"The place roared with life thru all its quarters. . . . All the trams were full, all the private and public omnibuses were full, and the streets were full of rickshas. From the seashore to the shady green park, from the park to the dim distance, the land pullulated with people."

* * *

At that time Kipling sensed that Japan might make trouble for her neighbors. He did not foresee, however, that overgrown Tokyo would ask for and receive a shrinking and withering from the sky, as if by fire and brimstone.

RELUCTANT DEPARTURE.

And loiters thru long interim of March,
Her countenance is sorrowful. The brown
Her dignity is shorn, and vanity
Lies suffering. Reluctantly her place
Gives reign to youthful Spring, whose chastity
Enchants the earth anew, whose fairer face
Once more brings solace to a mourning world.

Memories with the War News.

"The Russians are close to Danzig." The voice of the radio announcer drones on unheard, for I have begun playing that old game of "I remember, I remember" the summer I spent in Danzig when I was 17.

The thrill of exploring the picturesque, medieval city. . . . Vesper services in the Marienkirche. . . . The amber shop on the Lange Gasse with its exquisite beads and ornaments. . . . Danziger Goldwasser, a liqueur with flecks of gold leaf floating in it. . . . Patrician houses with stone terraces dating back to the days of the Hanseatic league. . . . The ancient gateway called the Hohe Tor. . . . Zoppot, the suburb called the Monte Carlo of the Baltic. . . . The Kurhaus, with its pier reaching far out into the sea. . . . Sun bathing on the miles of fine beaches. . . . The sea that left one gasping with its icy coldness. . . . The wooded hills in the background, with their miles of winding paths. . . . The frontier, with its Polish sentry and its Free State sentry. . . . Mathilda, the Polish cook, whose gastronomic delight was a fresh herring broiled over the coals and eaten head and all. . . . The blueberries with milk and sugar which she served as a soup course. . . . The open air theater up in the hills, where the bare ground was the stage and heaven its roof. . . . The guest stars from Berlin, and always Wagner, whose operas lent themselves beautifully to the natural setting. . . . The backless seats, and the sacks of sandwiches that sustained one thru a four hour performance. . . . The fascination of being 17 and in a foreign country. . . . I remember, I remember.

MARCH HARE MADNESS.

Green iris shoots make delectable salad;
Nothing approaches young buds of forsythia
Maybe on rabbits affection you lavish,
Not so with me when my landscape they ravish!
They are all right in their place, it is true,

A. C. N. asks: "Will any more tests be given for the army specialized training program reserve or was the January deadline final?"

There will be another examination given in high schools thruout the country on April 12, and it will be open to all young men between 17 and 17 years 9 months of age.. Young men already enrolled in colleges who are not over the upper age limit at the time of taking the examination also may qualify. Those intending to take the tests will report to the principals of their high schools. Those who have entered college will report back to the high schools from which they were graduated. The training in this program will be on the college level in subjects the army considers of value, such as courses in English, geography, history, mathematics, and physics, supplemented by physical and military training.

P. W. asks: "Can an elderly mother receiving insurance benefits [and there is no surviving relative within the permitted classes to continue receiving the benefits] bequeath the remainder of insurance benefits due, to some one among her [the mother's] brothers or sisters?"

No, the beneficiary never exercises any control over the disposition of insurance benefits from national service life insurance.

HOW TO KEEP WELL
by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

MARCH AND INFLUENZA.

THAT "flu" follows war the whole world discovered in 1918. In those days we called it "Spanish influenza," but practically all countries suffered from its ravages before the epidemic wore itself out. Nevertheless this affliction is an ancient one. As early as the 14th century the Italians termed it "influenza coeli" because they thought it was due to some unknown influence of the heavenly bodies. As with syphilis, each country blames another race. The Russians referred to it as "Chinese catarrh," the Germans dubbed it "Russian disease," while the French labeled it "Italian fever."

Medical opinion attributes the cause to filtrable viruses of various sorts. Unfortunately protection against one strain may not discourage others from attack. Furthermore, after the invader wins a bridgehead in your respiratory passages, it often invites undesirable bacteria to "come on over and play." The aftermath may be severe toxemia or pneumonia. You can pass your menagerie to innocent bystanders by means of nose and mouth discharges, since exhaled droplets linger in the air and also fall on food, silverware, and other objects that sooner or later touch the lips of other people.

Symptoms—which may simulate those of a cold—appear from 24 to 72 hours after exposure. Contrary to popular opinion, influenza is not the direct result of a coryza. The organisms for the two disorders are quite distinct. Colds, however, do increase susceptibility to any and all diseases.

"Flu" may begin with a "sandpaper" throat, quickly followed by fever and cough. There may be soreness around the borders of the diaphragm, headache, neuralgia, and a sense of malaise. With involvement of the bronchial tubes, discomfort increases, the temperature may rise, and the sputum may show blood. Exhaustion subsequent to a 10 day bout may be greater than that which succeeds a 10 month siege of tuberculosis.

Influenza is more infectious in the early stages than after it has put its victim to bed. The patient should be isolated, but he does not endanger others nearly as much as does the almost symptomless person who does not know he has it.

Absolute bed rest is necessary until all possibility of complications has past. If convalescence is hurried, the infection may spread to the middle ears or the kidneys. The greatest hazard is penumonia, and we must be alert to this risk at all times.

Skilled nursing is demanded. Large amounts of fluid should be taken and a light diet is indicated. Constipation may be relieved by simple enema or a mild laxative. The frequent use of a mouth wash is essential. The room temperature should be 68-70 degrees F., and drafts should be avoided. Sponging periodically will aid comfort and reduce the temperature. All articles used by the patient must be sterilized. As the invalid improves, a nourishing diet is advised.

The only preventive we have is to shun fatigue, malnutrition, exposure, and worry. This is especially true during a change in seasons. Let's watch the month of March.

FROSTBITE.

M. B. writes: What should be done for frostbite that has affected the legs and feet?

REPLY.

The outcome of frostbite is poor circulation. The tiny blood vessels are often damaged and become sensitive to cold thereafter. Protection against cold, the application of heat, and drugs which dilate the capillaries are all helpful measures. Tobacco should be omitted inasmuch as nicotine constricts these vessels. In severe cases, surgery on the nerves controling the circulation may be advisable.

BLEEDING BENEATH THE SKIN.

Mrs. T. P. writes: I am desirous of obtaining information on hemorrhagic purpura. Can you tell me something about it?

REPLY.

A true hemorrhagic purpura is a condition in which black and blue areas develop in the skin and mucous membranes. It is frequently associated with fragile blood vessels and abnormalities in the blood clotting mechanism. Because of its variable course, a physician should be consulted.

NO NEED FOR CONCERN.

Mrs. Z. writes: What does occasional light stools in an 8 year old child indicate?

REPLY.

This can be disregarded so long as it remains the sole abnormality. It does not signify anything serious inasmuch as the finding does not occur regularly.

HOW MANY YEARS?

W. E. writes: What is the present life expectancy?

REPLY.

Tugboat Annie.

Annie is an English setter, 6 months old. She belongs to the engineer officer of an LSM in the Pacific but is really the mascot of the ship. Until a few weeks ago she had never been in the water. Then one day as the ship was in formation proceeding to a battle zone—but let the skipper, Lt. Robert P. Palmer, a Chicagoan, continue the tale:

"Annie fell overboard! Yes, and with the nearest land four miles down. It was about dusk last night. I was just going up to take some star sights when I got the word. She was walking on the super-deck and no one was paying particular attention, when all of a sudden she was gone, and they saw her head bobbing in the wake.

"By the time I reached the conn [conning tower] the officer of the deck had flashed the commodore and received permission to turn back for her. I took over the conn, and back we went at top speed. We brought out every pair of glasses we have, searching for a little black head bobbing on dark waves in the growing darkness. It was some job.

"We must have gone back about five miles when I slowed down and began a wide sweep back to our original course. I had given her up, and had a seaman standing by the ensign ready to dip it when a signalman with binoculars sang out: 'I see her, sir!' And, sure enough, there she was about 200 yards ahead and paddling for dear life.

"You never heard such a cheer and shouting of encouragement as went up then. I had to turn around to get her, but I couldn't stop soon enough, and it was getting darker all the time. But I finally approached slowly on the port side and backed down and cut the engines.

"We let the Jacob's ladder down, and a seaman in a life jacket went over the side, and she paddled over to him. She climbed right on his shoulder and hung there. She'd been in the water 40 minutes!

"Then the pharmacist's mate took over and what a commotion! 'Get hot milk, blankets! Be careful! Take her back in the boiler room! Bring up her box!'

"She looked like a drowned rat, but remarkably clean and so glad to be back aboard. She was a pretty tired pup last night, but today she's as frisky as ever, except that she has a line around her when she goes topside.

"We rejoined the convoy in pitch black darkness and called the commodore by radio to report. He said, 'Yes, but what about the dog? Is she all right? I've been worried about her.'"

Of Dogs and Men.

This seems as good a time as any to quote from James Stephen's "Irish Fairy Tales":

"Now Fionn, the son of Uail, was the reverse of Fergus Fionnliath in this matter, for he delighted in dogs, and he knew everything about them from the setting of the first little tooth to the rocking of the last long yellow one. He knew the affections and antipathies which are proper in a dog; the degree of obedience to which dogs may be trained without losing their honorable qualities or becoming servile and suspicious; he knew the hopes which animate them, the apprehensions which tingle in their blood, and all that is to be demanded from, or forgiven in, a paw, an ear, a nose, an eye, or a tooth; and he understood these things because he loved dogs, for it is by love alone that we understand anything."

Spring Sight.

Four soiled, tough little boys were hauling a small wagon piled high with boards and bits of wood salvaged from a wrecked building. The wagon was topheavy. It moved along a few feet, then toppled over. Patiently the boys piled the wood back on and started off again. Again it toppled over. Just as it was loaded for the third time, one of the boys gave a yelp and took his supporting hands from the wagon. As it again collapsed, he pointed in excitement at something on the sidewalk. The other boys crowded around as he gently picked up a butterfly with drenched wings. Patiently he held it in the palm of his hand until the draggled wings were dry enough to flutter to a near-by shrub. Then the reloading started again, and the tattered little boys trudged blithely away.

THE ECCLES-MORGENTHAU EXCUSE.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—In your editorial, "Speculation Taxes," referring to the Eccles-Morgenthau idea of excessive taxes on sales of assets at a profit, you mention the possibility that lower tax rates will result in more cash intake. That this is true is evidenced by the fact that, when the holding period to qualify a capital gain as long-term was shortened from 18 to six months, the actual tax take increased tremendously.

The truth is, the powers that be are not interested in tax take, but in using tax laws to reform us, willy nilly. In order to do this, they characteristically place the cart before the horse, as you make clear when you point out it is the inflationary policy of the administration, and not a few naughty humans, that forces prices up.

For the record, it might be well to recognize a few other simple points. Speculators cannot determine the long term or primary trend of any market; the most they can hope to do is to ride with that trend and thus capitalize on being right. It is old stuff for big government to blame speculators, indeed, everybody but itself, for the undesired results of big government's own policies. When you tax capital in any form whatever, and spend the proceeds nonproductively, you are eating the seed corn, and in that measure slowing down economic progress.

OR BROWDER AVENUE?

Druce Lake, Ill., Feb. 21.—Since the freedom and liberties Pulaski fought for are in the discard both here and in what will be left of Poland after the Yalta misdeal, there is no longer any reason to honor him in Chicago. So let's call Pulaski rd. Stalin st. from now on. And while we are at it, Pershing rd. could be Hillman rd. and Washington blvd. could be changed to Bridges blvd. Here's to "One World" and one color. Westward the Red star takes its way.

W. SHEEHAN SR.

LOTS OF THEM DIDN'T.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—A soldier in his letter to the Voice of the People complains about not being paid in United States currency. Cheating the service man by paying in foreign money at a phony exchange rate is an outrage. The majority can blame themselves for this dirty deal. They asked for it when they voted for an administration that was so notorious for its unfair tactics.

ROBERT MCCARTHY.

LEND-LEASE BUILDS THE WINDMILLS.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 26.—Among the numerous activities of our wandering chief executive there has been one serious omission. It is my opinion that Mr. Roosevelt, on his return trip from the Black sea, should have paused a short while in Spain, long enough to place a wreath on the tomb of Don Quixote.

GEO. A. PLATTS.

WHY?

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 26.—Why should the United States be ordered by Mr. Roosevelt to furnish a soft seat in Washington to settle his political obligation to Henry Wallace, a failure and public liability who with Mr. Roosevelt conceived the great idea of "Destroying into Prosperity," which cost this country many billions.

J. L. Z.

SOLDIER PROTESTS YALTA DEAL.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—I don't believe in getting mixed up in these European brawls in the first place, but now that we are in this one it seems to me that the least we could do is to see that the small European countries get a square deal. But no; we just let the Red raider, Stalin, grab what he wants and do nothing about it. We are championing Stalin for doing exactly what Hitler has been condemned for doing.

SERVICE MAN.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 22.—Gen. Tasker Bliss, formerly American chief of staff and member of the peace delegation, had this to say about unconditional surrender. "We should have to go back to the days of Rome or earlier to find a civilized nation refusing to discuss terms upon which fighting might cease. It would be unheard of to say, 'No, we haven't killed enough of you, you still have some cities we want to destroy.'"

Did Genghis Khan, Alaric or pagan Rome refuse to discuss terms with their enemies? If Gen. Bliss was right, it would seem that the so-called Christian nations of today stand alone in history in their adherence to the doctrine of unconditional surrender.

FLOYD A. THOMPSON.

DUTY IN A FREE LAND.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Carlyle B. Haynes' plea for "democracy and basic human freedom" on behalf of Pvt. Henry Weber is an inversion of basic logic. Weber should have been hanged long ago, because one of the basic freedoms should be freedom of others from the obligation to do Henry Weber's share of the regrettable but necessary killing. There should be no exception for any reason whatsoever, except sheer physical incapacity. America has a right to expect that every man will do his duty.

L. W. BEAVER.

FROM THE CRAWFORD AVENUE GOVERNMENT IN EXILE.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—The wailing that is going on among the Polish groups of Chicago with regard to the establishment of the Curzon line as the eastern boundary of Poland arouses little sympathy among thousands of Chicago people who recall that these same Poles have made no move to restore Crawford avenue to the American public since they unlawfully annexed it in 1933 and changed its name to Pulaski road.

LEGION DEMANDS ARMY BAN REDS AS U. S. OFFICERS

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—The American Legion today called upon the war department to withdraw immediately its recent directive permitting Communists to attain officer rank and serve in positions involving military security.

National Commander Edward N. Scheiberling, acting under authority voted by the Legion's national defense committee, in a public statement, said the new directive must be rescinded "for the safety and security of Amerfica, now and in the future."

"Commissions in our armed services must be confined to those whose sole loyalty is to the United States of America," he declared.

Recalls McCloy's Explanation.

Scheiberling noted that Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy, testifying before a house military affairs subcommittee investigating the directive, conceded that the new policy would theoretically admit to officer rank persons 49 per cent loyal to soviet Russia and only 51 per cent loyal to the United States.

"Fifty-one per cent loyalty is not enough when the security of our country is at stake," he said. "The new policy for the armed forces states that no Communist, or person of other alien leaning, may be barred from officer rank unless his alien loyalty 'overrides' his loyalty to the United States. The lives of our sons, the vital military secrets of our armed forces, must not be entrusted to men of divided loyalty."

Few Admit Membership.

The army's policy opens the door for Communists to penetrate any and every office in the military services, Scheiberling said. He continued:

"The attorney general of the United States has held that the purpose of the Communist party is the overthrow of the government of the United States. Communism is an avowedly revolutionary movement. Every Communist, as a condition of membership in the party, swears supreme loyalty to the party and to the revolution.

"The American Legion is unalterably opposed to permitting any person to hold a commission in the armed forces of this nation whose loyalty is not solely to the government of the United States.

"Our government requires in the conduct of its civil affairs an oath from its employes to the effect that they are not members 'of any political party or organization that advocates the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or violence.'

GRAFT WITNESS TELLS OF BRIBE PLOT MEETING

Mason, Mich., March 1 [Special].—Testimony that Harry R. Williams, Wheaton, Ill., former lobbyist for the American Naturopathic Society of Michigan, had told a meeting of association directors in Lansing of legislators' demands for bribes, went into the record today at the trial of seven men charged with participation in a conspiracy to corrupt the 1939 legislature in its consideration of a bill to license naturopathists.

C. B. McDonald, Benton Harbor chiropractor, who is appearing as a state witness under an immunity grant, described this and other similar meetings as he continued testimony started yesterday.

Williams, whom McDonald described as an amateur at lobbying, told the group, the witness said, that he had used considerable money already raised for legislative purposes by the association "to meet demands" and that he had to have additional funds "for certain individuals."

Kim Sigler, special prosecutor, asked the witness specifically if Williams had said it would be necessary to pay bribes and McDonald answered in the affirmative.

CHARGE SPOUSE WITH MURDER IN TORSO SLAYING

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—Henry H. Corens, 45, Bethesda, Md., automobile painter, was charged with murder today in the torso slaying of his wife, Maryland, State's Atty. Joseph B. Simpson Jr. announced.

The head of Mrs. Pearl Corens, 31, war department employe, was found Tuesday near a lonely road in near-by Fairfax county, Va. The body has not been located.

Simpson told reporters an examination by Dr. J. W. Bird, Montgomery county, Md., pathologist, disclosed that Mrs. Corens died of strangulation. The head, he said, was sawed from the body some time after the woman's death.

Build WAC Barracks at Gardiner Hospital

Erection of barracks, a mess hall, and a company administration building for housing a unit of the women's army corps has been started at the army's Gardiner General hospital, 1660 Hyde Park blvd. The buildings, all of one story, temporary type, are being constructed at the south end of the athletic field west of Outer dr. at 48th st. Each of the two barracks will house 50 WACs.

HOW TO MAKE A WAR GARDEN

BY BEN MARKLAND.

THE two main "garden tools" being used at this time of the year are pencils and pads of paper, and much of the success of a good vegetable garden depends upon the gardener's ability to use these implements in plotting his rows.

The size of the garden and the type of cultivating tools to be used are major factors in deciding on a planting arrangement. Gardeners whose plots contain at least 1,500 square feet should utilize the standard method of spacing the rows: At least 18 inches apart for small vegetables such as radishes and onions, 24 inches for most vegetables, and 30 inches for staked plants.

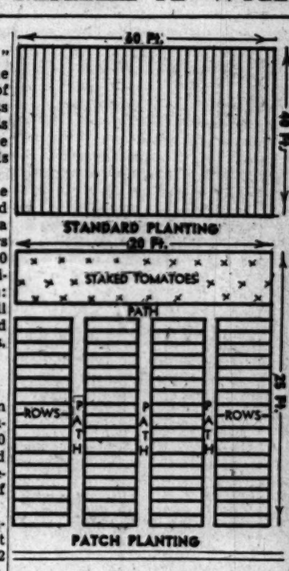
Patch Planting Helpful.

Gardeners whose plots contain less than 1,500 square feet, particularly city gardeners having only 500 to 1,200 square feet, should depend upon the patch planting arrangement to permit close spacing of rows.

Patch planting has two advantages over standard planting: It permits spacing of most rows 12 inches apart and averts the necessity of walking over the planted ground to cultivate and harvest the crops. As the accompanying sketch indicates, the paths are placed between patches that are 5 to 6 feet wide. With such narrow plantings it is possible to do all cultivating and harvesting from the paths, avoiding packing of the planted soil by walking between the rows.

Best for Small Plots.

On a small plot 25 feet long and 20 feet wide [a common size for back yard plots in large cities], the gardener can plant only 260 row feet with the standard method of spacing the rows 24 inches apart. Patch planting of the same size plot permits a maximum of 404 row feet, with rows 12 inches apart.



Patch planting is not practical for large gardens in well drained locations, but it does help the gardener of a small plot to get the maximum amount of produce. It also is practical for low, poorly drained plots, because the paths can be depressed to serve for drainage.

Patch planting obviously cannot be utilized by gardeners who depend upon wheel hoes for cultivating, because in such cases space must be allowed for walking between rows.

["The Gardener's Diary," published by THE TRIBUNE, contains specific planting plans for small patch gardens, medium size gardens, and farm plots. The booklet is sold by The Tribune Public Sewice offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and 435 N. Michigan av., for 15 cents over the counter; 18 cents by mail.]

SEARS 7 CHICAGO AND SUBURBAN STORES

Artist Group in Hinsdale to Exhibit Works

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE 35 amateur artists who have been devoting Saturday afternoons to their hobby for the last two years in Hinsdale evidently do not possess artistic temperaments, for the thought of having some 500 kibitzers as they work this week-end does not seem to dismay them. The first exhibition of their works, to be held from 3 to 7 p. m. Sunday in the Hinsdale community house, is being called a "varnishing tea" and will be just that. Half a dozen easels will be set up in the studio and, as Mrs. Robert T. Stanley poses in costume, several of the artists will put the finishing touches on their portraits, varnishing them to bring out depths of color.

To carry out the artistic theme, Mrs. James Walker is planning a surrealistic tea table, which will be set with brass and copper samovars and a plaster cast head wearing a turban made from a coffee cake. The male members of the art class who will take turns pouring include a minister, Dr. P. R. Hayward; an advertising man, Chester Bratten, and the director of the community house, Talkeus Blank. Mr. Bratten spends two nights a week doing portraits of patients in the Great Lakes Naval hospital.

The artists paint informally with no instructor and even take turns making their own frames from 50 year old lumber obtained thru an official of the village. Some of the others in the group are Mrs. James S. Knowlson, Mrs. Frank Collier, Mrs. William Hardy, Miss Mary Strasenreuter, Mrs. Gerald B. Thorne, and Mrs. Philip Cherry.

A recent Hinsdale event, a concert last Sunday, netted more than $2,200 for the war service committee of the Hinsdale Woman's club. The proceeds will be used to help equip and maintain the new music room in Vaughan General hospital. Miss Gladys Cable is chairman of the committee.

Members of the Cliff Dwellers who have a secret ambition to experiment in etching have been invited to join in a coöperative venture tonight under the guidance of a fellow club member and artist, Allen Philbrick. "The art committee also invites us to come up and see its display of etchings by Euston, Philbrick, and Seymour. Bring a blonde," the invitations read. Punch and dinner will be served at 6:30.

Fish Filled Baked Tomatoes Save on Ration Points

(Other recipes, menus, food suggestions, and rationing news will be found on pages 16 and 17.)

As meat supplies grow slimmer, more and more fish will be served. A novel way to present this point free, protein rich food is in stuffed baked tomatoes, a dish ideal for many of the cheaper fish which need enhancing. Scoop out centers of 6 unpeeled tomatoes and fill with 1½ cups flaked cooked fish mixed with ¾ cup thick white sauce and a little of the tomato pulp. Season with salt and pepper, mustard, onion, and parsley to suit taste. Or fill with a thick a la king mixture (creamed fish with celery, green pepper, pimiento). Place stuffed tomatoes in greased pan, sprinkle with margarined bread crumbs, and bake 20 minutes at 400 degrees. (TRIBUNE Studio Photo.)

Some one states in the WCG column that a mere office man doesn't know how to change a typewriter ribbon. So what?

Do our little WCGs know that typewriting speed records and shorthand speed records all are held by the male of the species? Do our WCGs know that, while the best feminine typists are operators of monotype keyboards, they constitute only 25 per cent of the total number of monotype keyboard operators? Yet, in the entire United States, there is not one feminine monotype machinist. Why?

Wherever intricate work is involved, where difficult mechanical adjustments are to be made, where real thinking is required to solve a problem—a man is necessary.

Women can make decisions—sometimes right ones—but they cannot analyze. O, there are women typist speed artists who can work fast for a sustained period of five whole minutes in a contest. But I have yet to find a woman who can operate a keyboard faster than I can—accurately.

Changing a typewriter ribbon makes a woman a skilled typist just as much as manipulation of a can opener makes a man a cook. I'll admit women excel men in that one field. Is there any other?

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author of this story enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and won his wings as a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force in England. On his ninth combat mission, enemy fighters attacked the formation near Paris. Prosser's Flying Fortress was hit and the crew had to bail out. He landed alone in a field, seriously injuring his right ankle. Soon he met two men, Jacques and Marceau, who took him to Marceau's home. Marceau's mother, Mere Louise, bandaged the injured foot, and they hid him in the attic. He met Marceau's wife, Renee, and other members of the household, Marcel, who helped in the family's furniture making shop; Germaine, whose husband was a prisoner in Germany, and Jeannette, whose father was a prisoner. Marceau arranged, thru his brother-in-law, who worked at the district police station, to get Prosser a false identity card. The card gave his correct name, David, and identified him as a 21 year old electrician.

INSTALMENT VI.

Marceau said that at the police station they had some difficulty finding the proper federal stamps and finally they had to use stamps ordinarily put on Jewish cards. They were not different in design but only in franc value, so that this discrepancy made no difference.

Renee had made one mistake in making my age 21, for all young men of that age were supposed to be in Germany, but she had changed my date of birth to 1914, and did such a good piece of work that it was impossible to see the alteration.

On the second Sunday I was at the house a large luncheon was given to relatives and friends. It was rather a momentous event for these people; the dining table was set for nine guests—a formidable number in war time France. Treatment for my feet was reduced a little that morning, for great preparations had to be made. Vegetables, potatoes, salad, cake, and some meat purchased on the black market, all had to be cooked and ready for the guests. This was an important occasion, and it was felt that meat was absolutely necessary, altho the family could hardly afford to spend over one hundred francs for a small piece of meat that was just enough for every one.

During the days before the luncheon was to be given, there had been quite a bit of discussion about this matter. Marceau was fully in favor of the meat, but the more thrifty Mere Louise tried to think of getting something that would do in its place. "Couldn't Marcel trap a rabbit or perhaps catch some fish before Sunday?" she had queried.

Altho Marcel did not openly oppose these plans, it was easy to see the expression of agreement in his face as Marceau said, "No, Marcel has too much work to do in the factory to go out hunting or fishing." So finally it was decided that meat would have to be bought from the black market, and on Saturday morning Marceau set out to see a farmer he knew who would sell him the meat.

Just before the guests were to arrive, Mere Louise came up to the attic to tell me that I would not have luncheon until very late, but that I should not be too disturbed, for the meal would be very good indeed, and there would be meat and cake. Remembering all the controversy about the meat, I told her not to put any on my plate as I really did not want it much, and she needed it for her guests. She violently opposed such a suggestion, saying, "You are one of the family now, and it is only right that you get your fair share."

She was very well dressed for the occasion—her peasant appearance had disappeared with the change of ordinary leather shoes for wooden ones, and by the long black woolen skirt and sky blue blouse, and with her hair neatly done. The collar of the blouse was fastened together by the army insignia I had given her; she seemed to wear it well and be very proud of it. Renee popped upstairs a minute, and she was wearing the half a crown piece that Marceau had already turned into a pin. I wondered if any of the guests would wonder whence came all these allied trinkets.

I had over two hours to while away before luncheon was to arrive, so I resorted to my "mental discipline" plan. I was in the mood for it that Sunday morning, and it worked quite well, altho I dedicated more time to the latest issues of La Cri du Peuple than the scheme allowed.

After another two hours, my desire for the "mental discipline" had been exhausted; I had become very hungry and impatient for the highly commended meal. Jacques finally brought it up via the back entrance to the attic. He sat down and talked to me as I devoured some very delicious beef, buttered beans, and puree potatoes, which blended marvelously with some wine that Marcel and Jacques had given me from their ration. Marcel did not drink much wine, so I was able to get quite a bit of his weekly ration. I liked to drink it best between meals with the little bits of bread I always had on my bed table.

Jacques said he was going out to see some friends later in the afternoon. He hoped to listen to radio London and America, for these people he intended to visit had a radio.

Later in the afternoon, after Jacques had departed, Marceau brought the young man who had got my identity card for me, up to the attic. I had asked Marceau to do this, for I wanted to thank this helper personally. The boy was only about 20 years old. He seemed very pleasant and looked like the efficient, slogging, industrious, and reliable type, and rather dull.

I thanked him heartfully for the identity card. He replied, "C'est rien, c'est rien." [It's nothing, it's nothing.] I only wish I could help you English and Americans more." He went on to say something about being glad when the Last Friday we discussed the basic principles of making yeast dough for plain bread and rolls. As a followup it should be interesting to review the characteristics of the richer yeast doughs which go into coffee cakes, sweet rolls, form cakes, and the like.

In making such breads many of the same steps as in plain bread are followed and a similar technique is used. In both cases the temperature of the liquids should be right for yeast development, rising of the dough should take place under ideal conditions, and the same kneading technique should be used when kneading is required.

The main difference in sweet and plain doughs is in the ingredients and the amount of kneading. Extra sugar and fat are used in all sweet yeast doughs, and addition of eggs is another factor in enriching the dough for more glorified breads. Because of the dough's richness, it sometimes is unnecessary to knead it but instead, to beat it thoroly, as in the case of hot cross buns and form cake. Kneading or beating directions should be followed exactly as given in any recipe.

Basic Sweet Yeast Dough.

2 small cakes yeast [or 1 larger one]
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening
⅓ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind [optional]
5 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk and to it add shortening, sugar, and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast, eggs, and rind, if used, and beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry canvas and knead until satiny. Form into a ball, place in lightly greased bowl, cover with plate or towel away from drafts, and let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down, then shape into rolls or coffee cakes. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees 20 to 25 minutes for rolls, 25 to 30 minutes for coffee cakes. [Makes 3 dozen rolls or two 12-inch tea rings.]

Sweet Dough Variations.

Swedish Tea Ring: Add ½ teaspoon grated orange rind and 4 tablespoons sugar to ¾ of foundation recipe [use rest for rolls]. Roll the dough into a rectangular sheet about ½ inch thick. Brush with melted margarine and sprinkle with brown sugar, cinnamon, and chopped nuts. Roll as for jelly roll and shape into ring. Place on greased baking sheet and cut with scissors at 1 inch intervals almost thru the ring. Turn each slice slightly on its side. Cover; let rise until double in size. Bake at 375 degrees 20 to 25 minutes.

Apple Cake: Place ½ inch of dough in a greased pan. Paré apples and cut into eighths. Press slices into the dough, brush with melted margarine, and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Let rise until light and bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes. Keep cakes covered for first 10 minutes to cook the apples thoroly.

Jam Coffee Cake: Using ½ foundation recipe, roll to ½ inch thickness. Cut with scissors into 1 inch squares. Dip in melted margarine, and place half of squares in greased 8 by 8 by 2 inch pan. Spread with ½-cup grape or other flavored jam, then cover with remaining squares which have been dipped in fat. Let rise until doubled. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

Orange Rolls: Roll out sweet dough [or part of it] very thin in rectangular shape. Cream together ¼ cup margarine, ¼ cup sugar, and grated rind of 1 orange. Spread mixture over dough. Roll like jelly roll; cut in ½ inch slices. Place in greased sheet cake pan, let rise until doubled in bulk, and bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

Meat Rationing Made Stiffest by New Values

Point values on beef will be squeezed into a narrower spread effective Sunday, the office of price administration announced yesterday, by lowering the coupon value on the better steaks and roasts by 2 and 3 points and increasing the points necessary for the less desirable roasts and steaks, as forecast exclusively in THE TRIBUNE several days ago.

The new charts also show 1 and 2 point increases for many cuts of pork and for ham and bacon; a decrease in the point value of veal round steak, and sharp increases in so-called variety meats, canned meat products, liver products, and sausages. Butter and canned milk were left at their old values.

Few changes were made in canned fruits and vegetables. They included point reductions on apples and applesauce and increases for fruit cocktail, peaches, pears, pineapple, and tomatoes.

The popular No. 2 size can of apples and applesauce will be reduced from 30 to 10 points. The same size can of fruit cocktail, peaches, pears, and pineapple will be raised from 40 to 50 points, and tomatoes from 20 to 30 points.

Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, said the meat changes were made to "bring values into line with restricted supplies for civilian use"—that meat rationing "will be the stiffest since rationing began." He said butchers have complained that the wide spread in beef point values resulted in steaks piling up in stock while other cuts moved out quickly.

Beefsteaks will have a lowered value of 9 to 11 points, compared with current ratings of 11 to 13, except flank and chuck, which will be increased 2 and 3 points to 6 and 10, respectively. Boneless sirloin will have the top value of 11 points.

Better grades of beef roasts, including round tip, short loin, and sirloin, will drop 2 points to 9 and 10, but chuck and English cut roasts will go up 3 points to 6 and 7, respectively. Shortribs, plates, brisket, flank meat, necks, and shanks also will be up 2 points to a range of 3 to 6 points.

Hamburger will follow the cheaper cuts upward with a rise to 6 points from its current 4 point value. Veal round steak will be decreased 3 points to 10 per pound, all other veal cuts remaining unchanged. All pork cuts, except center chops and roasts, and ham slices, will go up 1 and 2 points, as will all kinds of bacon except Canadian bacon. The pork point increase includes the return of a few cuts to rationing at low values.

Many variety meats, including beef heart, sweetbreads, and short cut tongue; seven kinds of lamb, and three kinds of pork also are to be returned to rationing at a value of 2 points.

Up 2 points to a range of 4 to 7 are miscellaneous sausage products such as berliner, knackwurst, minced luncheon, and pepperoni; also a long list of sausages, including salami and cervelat.

Liver products, including sausage, cheese, loaf, and pudding, are to go on the list for the first time, with a value of 2 points, as are some other sausages, including blood, souse, and head cheese.

Women Entrenched in Variety of Radio Jobs, Study Shows

Women are important job holders in the radio industry, and they're in that field to stay. In the country's 900 radio stations women will hold permanently 175 different types of jobs. Since 1942 they have established themselves in 14 new job classifications, including such posts as billing clerks, time buyers, and free-lance and commercial writers. Also, for the first time, women are on a permanent basis in radio promotion and advertising departments as writers, secretaries, statisticians, filing clerks, typists, and brush and pen artists.

These findings are highlights of a report of a detailed job study made by prominent women in radio work and disclosed yesterday by Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, chairman of the women's executive committee, Illinois office of public instruction.

The survey is the third in a series of 26 covering major industries, and it will be published for free distribution to schools and libraries by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Vernon L. Nickell. The study was made under the leadership of Miss Judith Waller, director of public service, central division, National Broadcasting company.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A police squad car escorted a Salvation Army parade to special services at the corner of Clark st. and Chicago av. last night. This implied no need for protection, but helped emphasize the contrast with Chicago's first Salvation Army street meeting, held at that spot 60 years ago last night.

In fact, the Salvation Army never has sought police protection for itself, despite barrages of overripe fruit and eggs in many cities during early days; but it constantly has pleaded for the protection of Christ's grace for its members and for the sinner everywhere. Aside from the 60th anniversary aspect, the only unusual feature of the meeting was the police escort.

Col. Albert E. Chesham, executive officer of the central states territory, in giving the principal anniversary address, mentioned that Chicago did not give the Salvationists any civic welcome 60 years ago nor were the keys of the city presented "to that great warrior of the cross, Col. William Evans, who founded the Salvation Army in Chicago and thruout the west."

The parade, paced by the area headquarters band, began in Superior st., between Holy Name cathedral and the Salvation Army's territorial headquarters. The sprightly hymns of the army that every one has heard were the marching tunes. At the meeting, the testimonies of Lt. Col. J. C. Habkirk, retired, and Brig. Dallas P. Leader, territorial youth director, were the same devout confessions of devotion to Christ as would have been uttered by the founder, the late Gen. William Booth.

Col. Chesham, however, departed long enough from his testimony to contrast the little group 60 years ago with the vast social service enterprises of the army which grew up out of zeal for souls of men and women. He made it clear that these enterprises are no more than institutional sermons and testimonies about God's love for the world.

FASHIONS
By Angela

The jumper dresses which have been so popular this season when worn with contrasting blouses now bow to spring and summer without the blouses but equally charming. These jumpers, with their extended shoulders or brief cap sleeves, are available in a variety of materials and in pastels, high colors, or muted shades.

An ideal dress for a hot summer day is the high necked model at the left. It is fashioned of a soft linen-like weave of spun rayon and reminiscent of the lovely Irish linens. It is a lighter weight than butcher linen. There is a suggestion of fullness below the deep armhole, the waist is slim, and four tiny, unpressed plaits are set at each side of the smooth center. A red leather belt is trimmed with gold nailheads. It is available in aqua, green, coral, orchid, and shocking.

A simple yet striking dress for spring is the slim, soft wool jersey at the right. The neck line is high and tied with two wide tabs. Sleeves, neck line, and tabs are outlined with two rows of contrasting stitching. It is available in black, brown, navy, kelly, fuchsia, and shocking, in sizes 10 to 18.

Thru the Looking Glass

The sum and substance of a woman's attractiveness cannot be added without including the beauty of her smile. Sometimes it's the one redeeming feature of an otherwise plain face, offsetting that plainness with its brilliance and warmth. And sadly enough, it can be the single fault that robs a woman of a claim to beauty.

It just isn't in the books that all of us are equally blessed with even, perfectly shaped teeth. But we can make the best of what we have. If our teeth are not exactly beautiful in themselves, we can help the cause by giving them care and attention that will keep them gleaming and bright and in good condition, strong and shiny looking.

We have to practice daily "tooth preservation" measures if we want to maintain the health of our teeth, and ultimately the shape of our mouths, giving proper attention to diet, getting in our daily quota of milk and citrus juices, and chewing food thoroly. Regular trips to the dentist are more important than those trips to the beauty shop to have the hair dressed. There's no putting off the date until pain sends us scurrying to the dentist; common sense demands that we visit him at regular intervals for a checkup that will disclose any possible trouble before it can get a head start.

Of course, the primary principle of proper care is that the teeth be brushed at least twice or perhaps three times a day. And if you have any doubts that you're wielding your brush properly, have your dentist give you instructions. There is a right and wrong method, which is more clearly demonstrated than we could ever describe here.

And don't be stingy about flashing your pretty teeth frequently. We won't bore you with quotations about the value of a smile, but you can bet they're all quite true.

Child Craves the Approval of Grownups

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

Do you believe in praise—not made-up praise but real praise, for the honest efforts, good intentions, or fine achievement of your children? And do you give it?

I believe more of us need a regular reminder about the importance of being generous with praise, and equally sparing with blame. The praise rarely is undeserved, but many, many times the blame spontaneously given is undeserved.

And just as many times that blame, even if deserved, doesn't need to be spoken, for I've discovered that children are usually sorry when they've done something they shouldn't, and don't need the reproof that comes so readily to our lips. But if they don't need the blame, they do need our praise. Too many of us take it for granted that they know it [somehow] when we feel warmly approving. But that isn't necessarily so.

Children need so much correction, so much guidance, they're so constantly stepping on the toes of convention; or else they're so constantly colliding with the convenience and wishes of adults that we have to—or in any event we do—comment, direct, and criticize them a great deal.

And even if, being conscious of our boy's or girl's point of view, we try to cut all that down to a minimum, we still do a lot of it. For that reason we should make it a point to give credit, whenever we can, where credit is due.

For instance, if you must reprove for "lackadaisical" homework, then praise when an effort is made to be industrious. If you must criticize the wild way a bedroom is kept, then notice it when order prevails. If a whole list of marketing is inaccurately done, then say what a great help it is when your son or daughter does handle the shopping competently.

If slips are frequent but not wholesale, it is sometimes effectual to emphasize a particularly inconvenient or inconsiderate act at the moment of its happening. Sometimes "striking while the iron is hot" is good psychology, provided you can do it without being angry or disagreeable. If there's danger of that, count 10 first, partly for your child's sake and partly for your own to keep from sounding "mad."

Filet Chair Set

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Filet crochet chair sets are attractive additions to any piece of furniture. The central motif of the back rest is an alert looking dog, while simple geometric figures are used for arm rests. This group may serve as a dresser set or for individual tables. Fine white cotton is the medium suggested.

Business Girls Are Attracted to Smart Shop

BY REA SEEGER.

There's business as usual in a smart, small shop which specializes in attire for business girls. It is now filled with all kinds of spring loot for the shoppers who wish to select one new piece or assemble a new spring wardrobe. This bright idea of service for the invariably rushed office girl is firmly established. In the shop is everything new and different for discriminating shoppers, junior career girls, and executives.

Office clothes, suits, dresses, jackets, and skirts, are ready for quick decisions as to color and contrast, mixing or matching. Snappy new spring coats in street and neutral shades or gay, high colors are out, so are trim blouses and the more dress parade blouses of sheers or sturdy opaque crepe or rayon and cotton. There are clever print dresses and greatly prized simple basic dresses in dark or neutral tones, all ready for distinctive costume accessories. Play clothes and week-end clothes are also shown, gems of high fashion at reasonable prices. Some trick attire is available, requiring a minimum of luggage for traveling since these models feature interchangeable skirts, lounge slacks, simple jacket, and companion sweaters and shirts for every hour of a get-away-from-it-all week-end jaunt.

What's extra important is the avalanche of accessories on display—all the newest light headed hats, clever bags, new gloves, rainy weather togs, lingerie, and neckwear, a completely varied collection of trifles to make a perfect costume. All this is in one compact spot.

day arrived when British and American soldiers would be in Paris, but I could not understand him very well.

That night, the whole family came up for a long talk before going to bed. The day's visitors were thoroly discussed. There had been many of them besides the luncheon guests, others had dropped in during the afternoon. That was the custom of France; relatives and visitors were always welcomed on Sunday, and the supplies of food and drink, altho small, were provided for the enjoyment of the guests.

They said the food situation was very bad for the poorer people in Paris, but that the rich could afford to eat well by buying at the black market. The police made half hearted attempts to stop it but as all Frenchmen felt the black market to be harmful to the Germans, it was accepted. [It seemed that the resentment the poorer classes might have harbored against the well fed rich was smothered by the feeling that the black market most hurt the Germans.]

This evening Marcel monopolized the conversation about the food shortages that had existed since the Germans occupied France. He was the easiest person in the house for me to understand.

When he spoke of the bad food problem during the winter of 1941 he rubbed his stomach and tried to look very hungry. Vegetables and meat had been almost unobtainable, and bread was scarce. While he was telling me that he had to go out into the woods and find herbs to eat, he made gestures of picking up imaginary herbs from the floor and putting them into his mouth. Every day he went out and collected these herbs for Mere Louise, Jeanette, and himself. He could only work two hours each day in the carpentry shop because he was so fatigued that he had to sleep during the rest of the day. To be sure I understood, he put his clasped hands against his cheek and lowered his head to the side.

After making each of these statements, Marcel came to a dead stop, jutted his head forward almost imperceptibly and opened his eyes wide with expectancy, waiting for some acknowledgment that I was following what he said. Quite often his mouth remained open, retaining the shape it had assumed in pronouncing the last syllable of the sentence, and only when he felt sure that I understood would his facial expression revert to normal. Marcel should have made a good actor.

After my first week at the house, I was able to hop around the room a little. My injured foot was still not strong enough to be stood upon, but the pain was lessening. I made only short trips away from my bed, usually to the garret just beyond the foot of it. There I had placed a wooden chair, and sat for many hours during the long afternoons.

My view was limited to the horizon, the red tiled roof of the other wing of the building, and a tree whose branches just reached above the level of the roof. I don't know what sort of tree this was, but it was a very beautiful one, as green a tree as I ever remember. It was refreshing to gaze at it, for it gave one a feeling of freshness, cleanliness, and color, and led me into dream words of the past and future. Its greenness took me back to the days spent in Ireland or England and Scarsdale or Lake Forest in spring time—its life made me long for the life I was missing.

One evening as I sat on the window sill looking into the evening sunset, the peace was interrupted by the distant roar of aircraft. I thought I heard a great number, and imagined that perhaps these were formations of Fortresses returning from a mission in Germany. Soon I could see them; group after group of Flying Fortresses were distinguishable. The fighters were not, so we could not really see this exciting battle. Machine gun fire was fairly loud and intermittent. One or two fighters dived toward earth as if they had been shot down, but at 1,000 feet they leveled off and flew away. One Fortress went down in flames and hit the ground only a few miles from the house. The explosion was tremendous, and we could see the smoke.

Jacques, Mere Louise, and Marcel came up to the attic after the show had ended.

After we had discussed all the aspects of the raid, Mere Louise said she had to go downstairs to prepare the dinner, and the others followed her.

For the last few weeks students a the Boys' Latin school have been ransacking their parents' homes for authentic Victorian "props" for the set of "Arsenic and Old Lace," to be given at 8 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night in the school auditorium by an all-male cast. The play was directed by Arthur H. Beeken, with John Daggett and Joe Steuer serving as business managers.

The annual talent tea to sign up participants in the South Shore Country club revue planned for April 6 and 7, will be held this afternoon in the club.

Here and There.

The first of a benefit series of six book reviews to raise money for the Newberry center will be given at 10 a. m. today in Glenna hall of Evanston's First Methodist church by the Newberry Center league, with Mrs. Sarah Widener Youngren as speaker. For the next 12 weeks the talks will be given every other Friday, alternating between mornings and afternoons. On Monday the league will mail its first bundle of summer clothing and shoes to the Philippines, to be distributed there thru civilian charities.

Traubel Magnificent in Wagner Concert with Defauw and Chicago Symphony

Perhaps we are living beyond our vocal means this week, but it certainly is wonderful while it lasts. First Lotte Lehmann, then Helen Traubel, a Wagnerian goddess in unjeweled black, doing just about the finest singing of her Chicago career with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw. That huge, lustrous voice was never in better condition, but it was more than healthy last night. It still had the limpid serenity, the great outpouring of tone that made it famous, but it had, too, a wealth of dramatic implication to rival the slumbrous depth and the burnished glory of the Wagnerian brass against which it was pitted.

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Desire Defauw, conductor; Helen Traubel, soprano. Presented at Orchestra hall, March 1, 1945, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

A Faust Overture.....Wagner
Prelude to Act I, and Kim's Dream, from "Lohengrin".....Wagner
Siegfried's Rhine Journey and Death Music and Brunnhilde's Immolation, from "Gotterdammerung".....Wagner

Anticipating the Metropolitan's spring season, Miss Traubel chose "Lohengrin's" Elsa as the first of her three heroines, and sang the Dream with a statuesque beauty that touched only the outer realm of the role. But for Sieglinde's song of spring she had the spontaneous radiance that can make that moment in "Die Walkure" one of the truly ecstatic experiences of opera. And then, of course, came the Brunnhilde of the Immolation, who is operatic magnificence incarnate. You simply don't tackle this music unless you are a darling of the gods, daring to sing their requiem. Traubel sang it the way Flagstad used to sing it, with wonder and terror and triumph fused in splendor. And she listened as eloquently as she sang.

The orchestra was augmented to Wagnerian size, including the eight horns, and much of the playing was of high caliber, tho it failed to achieve the apocalyptic splendors demanded by "Götterdämmerung." Mr. Defauw was at his best in the "Lohengrin" prelude, played with simplicity and a swelling beauty that captured its fairy tale sense of panoply. The valkyries rode well enough, but without the crackling brilliance that is their birthright, even tho there had been a premonition of them in the "Faust" overture—as if they learned to ride in the Brocken. Least effective of all was the Rhine Journey, blatantly played, which reverted to the Humperdinck concert ending. The Death Music was more effective, and the Immolation had interludes of storming the Wagnerian heights.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 1.—When William Cagney's picture "Blood on the Sun" reaches the screen, it will carry a foreword explaining to the public what the Tanaka plan was. The picture, which is a melodrama based on fact, deals with the efforts of an American newspaper man [Jimmy Cagney] to get the Tanaka plan out of Japan and expose it. But Cagney's research department discovered that only a very small percentage of Americans had ever even heard of the plan, and that's why the explanatory note has been inserted in the film. This plan is the blueprint for the war we are now fighting in the Pacific and existed long before "Mein Kampf." It was conceived by Baron Giichi Tanaka to honor Emperor Hirohito when he ascended the throne in 1926, and outlines a complete plan for world conquest by Japan, which crystallizes hundreds of years of military thinking by the Samurai fanatics.

A Really Happy Ending.

It's such good news that Sally Wright has become Mrs. Bob Cobb. All the time she was going with Mervyn Leroy she was carrying a torch for Bob—and vice versa. . . . Georgie Jessel really must be in love with his little pigeon named Eve. Anyway, because of her, a scene in "The Dolly Sisters" had 25 takes—and all in beautiful technicolor, too. . . . Cornel Wilde's wife, who was Patricia Blake on the stage, has changed her name to Patricia Knight, and is being tested this week at two major studios. Cornel doesn't mind. After all, she was an actress when he married her. . . . Richard Thorpe and his wife left Tuesday by plane for Mexico City, and then go to Acapulco for a month. It's Dick's first vacation in years.

This Is a Fair Warning.

A note from Chicago included a clipping from Breeze, a weekly marine paper published there. Article ran: "Last Friday's celebrity show needed Jack Benny badly. Altho Phil Harris is a fast guy in front of the mike, he showed most of his taste is in his mouth by referring to his wife, Alice Faye, the way he did. The improvised show might go over swell in the combat area. But not here. The celebs get the big hand on all gags, mostly because of their standing in the entertainment world. If the small fry pulled the same gags, they'd get a Bronx cheer. When will they learn?" . . . Duke Ellington, who's giving a concert at the Philharmonic in March, is doing a month of one night stands up and down the coast and is getting so sold on California he may make this his headquarters instead of New York. . . . Gen. Yamashita, the boastful Nip, has talked himself into a comedy spot in a George Pal puppetoon dealing with Jasper's experiences in the South Pacific.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	4 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead, two of hearts.

Today we are asked to sit again as a jury. The dispute is between North and South and the indictment contains several charges covering both bidding and play.

After a pass by South, West elected to gamble it out with a bid of four spades which was passed all around. The two of hearts was opened and South won with the king. He then shifted to the nine of clubs. Declarer played low and North won with the queen, cashed the ace on which South dropped the eight and North followed with the third club. Since South could not ruff West won the trick, drew trumps and discarded his losing diamond on dummy's jack of clubs. You can see that this performance would give rise to some discussion, particularly when it can be seen that North and South could easily have made five hearts.

North claims South should have opened the bidding. South thinks that such action when vulnerable is not to be considered. South contends that North should have doubled the four spade bid, whereupon South would have overridden the double with a call of five hearts.

South charges that North should have cashed the setting trick with the ace of diamonds, when he had a chance to do so. North argues that South should not have led high low in clubs as if he wanted to ruff the third round. It's all very involved. Have you made up your mind? Here is my vote:

Despite the fact that the hand lacks the textbook requirements for an opening bid I am in favor of bidding the South hand. It has great playing power if partner happens to have a preference and in order to find out we must start early, otherwise the bidding might get too complicated before we show both suits. It is even more urgent when vulnerable because surely you will fear to enter later. I prefer to open with one heart. A subsequent bid of five diamonds if found desirable will not be surrounded with nearly as much danger in that sequence.

North might hazard a double of four spades but I do not believe his pass is to be condemned. And if he did double, it is by no means certain that South would have selected hearts. He might have chosen his six card suit which would not have worked.

I agree that South might have been better advised to return the eight of clubs instead of the nine, but North should still have saved the day by cashing the ace of diamonds. The four spade bid probably was based on a six card suit and South would therefore have no trumps. That is more probable than that West is void of diamonds.

Mrs. Rob C., Chicago—This winter my husband carried 10 pounds of rock salt in the car. He uses the car a great deal in his work and if he throws salt under the car wheels when they skid on ice or in snow he can pull out without spinning his wheels and wasting rubber.

Sarah K., Detroit, Mich.—I save time on wash day by keeping a series of laundry bags of graduated sizes. Into the large bags go sheets and other bedding, underwear, etc., go into the smaller bags. Thus my wash is all sorted before I start the machine.

Marion B., Moline, Ill. — I have learned to store such foods as potatoes, flour, onions, and butter away from the light and also to leave my eggs unwashed so they will retain the protective film that keeps out odors and air.

DePauw Choral Director to Sing for Arche Club

The Arche club, meeting at 2 p. m. today in the Shoreland hotel, will hear John Toms, tenor and director of choral music at DePauw university, in a song recital. The program will include recitatives and arias from the oratorios of Handel, and a group of Brahms' and English songs. Mr. Toms, who formerly sang with the Philadelphia Opera company, was head of the voice department at the University of North Carolina before going to DePauw.

Sally Asks Bedding for Two Families

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

South side readers who contribute spare sheets and pillowslips for the L. family, composed of father, mother, and four children, a girl, 6, and boys 8, 12, and 17, will be doing a worthy service. Mr. L. is chronically ill and severely crippled with arthritis. A former employer has made possible the ministrations of a nurse once a week. Mrs. L. is hospitalized, having undergone an operation recently for a spinal ailment, and it will be months before she will be able to resume household tasks. Altho the assisting agency is giving all help practicable under its program, there is need of sickroom comforts, particularly bedding. A doll and buggy would provide much happiness for the little girl.

A single mattress or pad is requested by Mrs. S., a widow whose impaired health necessitated hospital and operative care. The thinly worn, lumpy pad now in use causes her great discomfort and precludes adequate rest. The name and address will be supplied upon request.

HANYZEWSKI IS READY, HE SAYS, FOR COMEBACK

Cub Pitcher Claims Arm Is Strong.

Ed Hanyzewski, who is one of the 16 Cubs listed to leave next Wednesday night for spring training in French Lick, Ind., made no promises of a 1945 comeback yesterday, but declared his arm was feeling strong.

Ed Hanyzewski.

Early last season, while pitching against the Giants in Wrigley field, something snapped in the big right hander's arm and he was forced to leave the field. Later he tested his arm in relief roles without success and finished with a record of two victories and nine defeats.

There has been little or no speculation on the penant races because of the man power uncertainties, but in normal times Hanyzewski would be rated important in the success or failure of the Cubs. He is young, only 24, and the type of strong-armed pitcher who has been given a chance to hit the 20 game winner class.

Four Other Pitchers to Go.

It is believed that others on the 39 player roster will go direct to camp from their homes and it is presumed all 16 who will be in the Chicago group have signed or are ready to do so.

Four other pitchers have been notified to join the party which will be in charge of Traveling Secretary Bob Lewis. They are: Bob Chipman, who won 12 and lost 10 with the Dodgers and Cubs last year; Paul Erickson, whose record was 5 and 9 with the Cubs; George Hennessey, who won 11 and lost 5 with Nashville, and southpaw Ray Prim. Ray's 22 victories was high for 1944 among the 16 pitchers who are listed on the roster. He won them for Los Angeles while losing 10.

Capt. Cavarretta on List.

Joe Stephenson is the only one of five Cub catchers who is to leave from Chicago. Five infielders, headed by Capt. Phil Cavarretta, are on the list. The others are Don Johnson, second baseman; Len Merullo and Bill Schuster, shortstops, and John T. Ostrowki, third base. Outfielders are Harry [Peanuts] Lowrey, Andy Pafko, Frank Secory, and Virgil Garriot. Secory hit .321 for the Cubs in 22 games after batting .290 for Milwaukee. Lowrey was in the army last year. Pafko took over center field in his freshman year. Garriott batted .286 in 170 games for Los Angeles.

Richard [Red] Smith, new Cub coach-scout, will arrive in Chicago today. With Manager Charley Grimm and Trainer Andy Lotshaw he will leave tomorrow morning for the training camp.

Hagg, Lidman Reach U.S.; on Way a Month

New York, March 1 (AP).—Gunder Hagg and Haakon Lidman, Swedish track stars, arrived in the United States late today after a voyage via England, which lasted a month.

Originally scheduled to fly here, the pair was shunted to boats when plane passage was not available. They left Sweden Feb. 1 and at that time hoped to compete in the National A. A. U. meet last Saturday.

Both are scheduled to appear in Saturday's IC4-A indoor meet in Madison Square Garden, Hagg running the mile against four Americans and Lidman in a hurdle exhibition.

Other indoor meets still on the card are the Knights of Columbus meet in Madison Square Garden on March 10, the Chicago relays on March 17, and the Cleveland Knights of Columbus games on March 24.

Hagg was undefeated in eight races against the United States' best in the summer of 1943. He earned $135,000 for the army air forces aid society in that series after needing 26 days to make the trip to this country on a Swedish tanker.

Altho wearied from the month long trip, including 23 days at sea, Hagg and Lidman promised to compete in Saturday's meet. Hagg said, "ordinarily, we wouldn't think of entering a race so soon without sufficient practice, but we feel we owe it to our American friends, who have been waiting so long for us to appear."

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's 1945 cast of Golden Gloves candidates yesterday relaxed after the three most thrilling nights in the 18 year history of the Tournament of Champions. Those three evenings produced the 32 boys and young men who will return to the Stadium ring for the finals on March 9.

The officials' choice of the three winners of the sportsmanship trophies was announced yesterday. These prizes are named for a trio of Golden Gloves alumni who went on to win world championships before they entered the service. Sgt. Truman Swingle of the Omaha World Herald team was awarded the Barney Ross trophy for welterweights; Wesley Milnes of the Sioux City Journal was adjudged the winner of the Tony Zale trophy for middleweights, and Pvt. Max Klemm of Chanute field and the Peoria Journal Transcript team, was given the Joe Louis trophy among the heavyweights.

It's Talented Group.

The Kansas City team, headed by Ray Spurlock, middleweight, who won three of the toughest fights of the tournament, was in front in the team rating, bringing thru all five boys who entered Wednesday's competition. The Missourians, who have yet to win the team trophy, have a feeling that all five may carry thru the March 9 wind-up. The quintet representing the Kansas City Star includes, aside from Spurlock, Frank Rivera, flyweight; Jack Darthard, featherweight; Bob Jarvis, bantamweight, and John Harding, heavyweight.

The victors in the three night ordeal leading to the March 9 final constitute one of the most talented crews ever to wrangle for the eight places allotted for the Intercity title bouts, which will be held in the Stadium ring against New York on April 4.

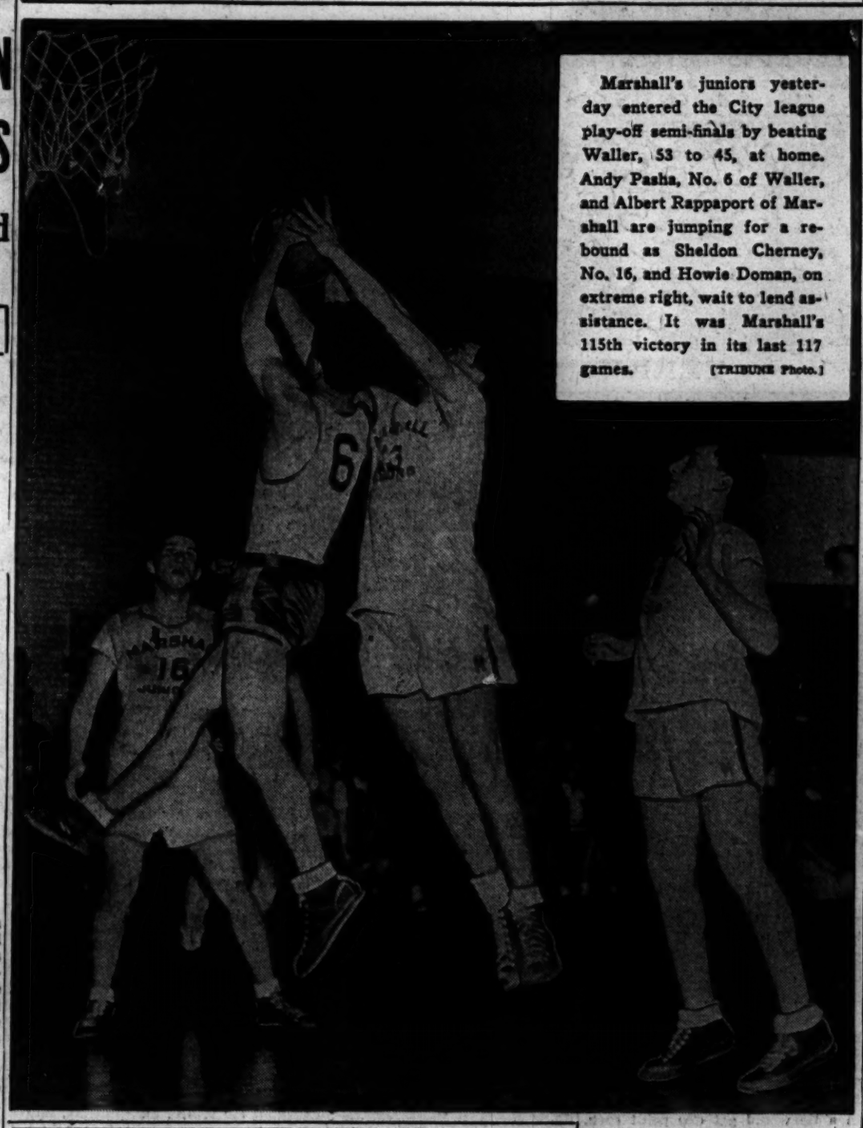
Los Angeles Qualifies Four.

Pressing Kansas City in the race for the team trophy, to be awarded on the basis of the number of champions and runners-up, is the quartet representing the Los Angeles Times. Sports Editor Braven Dyer was high in his praise of the four Pacific coast youngsters who came out of the Tournament of Champions, but the fans who saw that foursome win its way into the finals were ahead of him. This was particularly true of Corp. Adolfo Quijano of the Muroc, Cal., army air base, who won his first two bouts with one round knockouts, then took charge of John Gulley, the St. Louis Negro who was one of the sharpest fighters in the show. Quijano's colleagues in the finals are Aldo Lu Pari, flyweight; Roscoe Scally, lightweight, and Johnny Garcia, middleweight.

The battle for the out-of-town team trophy promises to be the most exciting since the award was established in 1932. Following Kansas City and Los Angeles, the latter making only its second appearance in the tournament, are teams from Cleveland, Columbus, and Fort Worth., each with three survivors.

Chicago has three survivors in the March 9 party. They are Flyweight Jackie Boyd of the Madison A. C., Heavyweight Luke Baylark, and Lightweight Bernie Paige, both of the Savoy A. C.

COMMANDOS LIVE UP TO REPUTATION



Marshall's juniors yesterday entered the City league play-off semi-finals by beating Waller, 53 to 45, at home. Andy Pasha, No. 6 of Waller, and Albert Rappaport of Marshall are jumping for a rebound as Sheldon Cherney, No. 16, and Howie Doman, on extreme right, wait to lend assistance. It was Marshall's 115th victory in its last 117 games. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ALL-AMERICA ENTRY BIDS FOR COAST STADIUM

Los Angeles, Cal., March 1 [Special].—Professional football and the new All-America conference were in the spotlight here today as a result of yesterday's bid by Don Ameche and Christy Walsh, co-owners of the Los Angeles franchise, for use of the spacious Memorial Coliseum for their league games.

This city also was the scene of the signing of Lt. Col. Dick Hanley and Maj. Ernie Nevers as head coach and assistant respectively of the Chicago All-America eleven.

Figures Tell the Story.

In bidding for the use of the Coliseum at a session of the board of supervisors, Walsh produced figures which showed that in the 11 years 1933 to 1943 inclusive, various colleges which used the plant received close to $7,000,000.

It was the first time these official figures had been made public and the size of the total surprised the supervisors, as well as sports fans in general.

They're Both Marines.

Hanley, former coach at Northwestern university, and Nevers, famous as a player at Stanford and later as player and coach with the Chicago Cardinals, were signed yesterday by John L. Keeshin, owner of the Chicago franchise, who came here for the final meeting. Both now are in the marine corps and will join the team after completing their military service.

Curfew Tolls a Too Early End of Ice-Capades

BY EDWARD PRELL.

It is well that ovations were cleverly by-passed last night, else the 1945 Ice-Capades never would have run its course before the midnight curfew. This is a new way of saying that a show which always has something new still thrills the best ice show town in the land.

The smooth Arena ice scarcely was large enough to accommodate the gigantic chorus which supported the usual brilliant top performers before a sell-out crowd which made the American Women's Voluntary Services happy with its patronage. Opening night was a benefit for this war organization.

There will be 15 more performances thru March 14, but unless you have some connections all you'll know about Ice-Capades is what you read about it. It's an ice "Oklahoma!" as far as tickets are concerned.

Keeps Crowd Guessing.

Each year the show gets smoother and this, the fifth edition of Ice-Capades, literally tosses talented performers at you. It has no Sonja Henie, but rather is built along the lines of a variety show, which keeps the crowd guessing as to what's going to pop next.

The fans started blistering their hands at the start after watching the opening number, called "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." You had to look twice to be sure that the boys and girls really were on skates. Then Al Surette, attired as a country bumpkin, dashed onto the scene. The famous Frick [of Frick and Frack] never leaned farther backward than this talented young man whose hi-jinks kept the crowd in an uproar.

Juggler Thrills Crowd.

There was a nifty costume number in which the gals of the chorus piloted dummy partners which supplied extra fun when each bob of a dancer caused the false hair-do of her partner to expose a bald head.

Eventually Trixie came along. This little blonde lady is the daughter of a European juggler. She learned all his tricks, then mastered them on skates. Her skill is almost unbelievable. A high point is reached when she juggles six plates while bouncing a rubber ball off her forehead.

Two Rivals for Sonja.

Ann Robinson, a young miss from the east, and Donna Atwood, a Kansas girl who learned to skate in Hollywood, perhaps were the nearest approach to Sonja. Ann's spins were enough to make the audience dizzy. Donna made her first appearance in the costume number, "Fiesta," which closed the first half of the show.

As for the others who kept the crowd gasping at their artistry on blades there was Phil Taylor, who originated ice skating on stilts and whose daughter, Megame, was the last Olympic figure skating champion; Nate Walley, who won the world professional skating title in England in 1935 and 1936 and a lot more whose pardon is asked for not being mentioned—it's that midnight curfew.

WALLER LOSES TO MARSHALL JUNIORS, 53-45

The City league's 1945 junior basketball championship quintet will be from the west or central section. This was assured yesterday in the quarter-final playoffs when Marshall and Tuley, from the former section, and Gage Park and Tilden, from the latter, eliminated Waller, Austin, South Shore, and Hyde Park.

Marshall's 53 to 45 victory over Waller at Marshall was its 17th straight of the season, including nine in a row in west section play. The Commandos moved out in front in the first period, 13 to 10, and held a 25 to 18 lead at half time. It was the Commandos' first half drive which won the game, since only one point, 28 to 27, was the difference in their second half play.

The closest contest of the day was an all-west battle in which Austin beat Tuley, 29 to 25, on the latter's court. Only three points each were scored by the two fives in the first quarter. Austin grabbed a 14 to 11 lead at the half, but Tuley tied the score at 22 all, as the final period started.

Tilden Is Second Quarter Team.

South Shore, whose senior team won the league title last year, dropped from the ranks of junior contenders when Gage Park turned back the south siders, 49 to 44. Frank La Porte and John Fencik paced the victor's attack, scoring 31 points between them. La Porte contributed 18.

Hyde Park, which last year reached the finals before losing to Parker, fell before Tilden, 34 to 29. Hyde Park led, 7 to 6, after the first

New York, March 1 (AP).—The Chicago Blackhawks kept alive their none too bright chances of getting into the National Hockey league's post-season Stanley cup play-offs by dealing the New York Rangers a 5 to 3 defeat tonight before 12,294. The outcome was a blow to the play-off hopes of the Rangers, who are in fifth place, one point back of the Boston Bruins and three ahead of the last place Hawks. Had the New Yorkers been able to win tonight they would have moved up into fourth place, the bottom play-off assignment, for the first time this season.

Ten minutes of brilliant offensive hockey in the second period, during which they scored four goals, was enough to win the contest for the Hawks. This outburst came after a lackluster, scoreless first period.

Scoring Comes in Bursts.

Three of the winners' four goals in this splurge came in a space of 3½ minutes early in the session and the fourth was added halfway thru the period. The Rangers then took their turn on the scoring side, counting twice in half a minute late in the period. The host team threatened to make a battle of it in the third, moving up to within one goal of a tie before the Chicagoans scored again.

Butch McDonald and Pete Horeck collaborated in getting the first two goals for the Hawks. Butch counted when he took a pass from Pete and drove a fast one into the corner of the nets at 1:15 of the second period. Twenty-six seconds later Pete got the puck on a pass from Butch deep in Ranger territory, raced down the side and scored from a sharp angle. At 3:28 Bill Mosienko rang up No. 3 for the invaders on a pass from Clint Smith. The tempo slowed somewhat then but at 10:21 McDonald scored again after Cully Dahlstrom passed to him on a breakaway play.

Rangers Take Their Turn.

Up to that point the Rangers had not appeared to be very much interested in what was going on, but after accumulating the four goal handicap they got down to business and Ott Heller scored twice just before the second session closed.

Ants Antanas made it look like anybody's battle with a goal at 5:02 of the third period, which cut the Blackhawks' edge to 4 to 3. The Rangers kept putting on the pressure, but could not score and at 13:26 Horeck took the puck on a pass from Mosienko just inside his own blue line and raced down all alone to feint Goalie Ken McAuley out of position and shoot the final goal from a bad angle.

It was the Hawks' second victory over New York in nine encounters this season, three of the earlier contests having ended in ties.

EASTERN TRACKS CONTINUE PLEA TO LIGHTEN BAN

Byrnes Promises Study of Request.

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—Racing spokesmen today called upon James F. Byrnes urging him to "act now" and "at least partially release" the ban on the turf sport.

Rep. Barry [D., N. Y.] and David A. Buckley, New York horseman, discussed at length the racing situation with the war mobilization director in the White House.

Barry later said that Byrnes reiterated earlier assurances "that the ban would be lifted at the first possible moment consistent with the prosecution of the war."

Promises to Study Memo.

Byrnes also assured them, Barry added, that he would study a memorandum prepared by Buckley setting forth additional reasons why the ban should be modified. Racing's position previously had been outlined in correspondence with Byrnes.

It is necessary to modify the ban, Buckley said in the memorandum, so that "this great industry might be able to plan its immediate future, keep its existence and help American breeders in competition with other countries."

Claims Job Shortage Looms.

"Assemblages of great numbers of people have been permitted at other sports events solely for spectator amusement . . . racing is not only a sport but an important business.

"The only real evidence concerning absenteeism, from the Hollywood, Cal., Turf club, indicates that racing has not been the cause . . . that absenteeism at 68 Southern California war plants dropped from 6.5 per cent in September to 6.1 per cent in November when the Hollywood track operated."

Purdue Swim, Track Teams Lose V-12 Stars

Lafayette, Ind., March 1 [Special].—Purdue's chances of making strong showings in the Western conference indoor track and swimming meets next week-end have been materially weakened by the loss of eight V-12 trainees who have been transferred to other navy and marine bases.

Losses from Coach Homer Allen's track squad, which will have its final tune-up for the title meet in a triangular meet with Ohio State and Indiana in Bloomington Saturday, include Bill Haynes, veteran half miler and member of the mile relay quartet; Ed Suhling, ranking shot putter; Bill Williams, low hurdler; Dave Rabin, quarter miler, and William Palmer, distance runner.

In the triangular meet Saturday and the conference events next week, Purdue's main hope for points will rest on the able shoulders of Wallace Desterhaft, quarter miler, and Dick Kilpatrick, high jumper, both of whom recently set new Purdue indoor records in their specialties, along with Ben Harvey, veteran dash man and a revamped one mile relay quartet.

As far as point possibilities are concerned, Dick Papenguth's Boilermaker swimming team has been even harder hit by the loss of Elroy Heidke, undefeated world record holder in the breast stroke; Harry Ahlquist, defeated only once during the dual meet season at 50 yards, and William Porter, a consistent performer in the middle distances.

IKE WILLIAMS, WILLIE JOYCE FIGHT TONIGHT

New York, March 1 (AP).—Ike Williams' punch against Willie Joyce's left jab is the billing for tomorrow night's Madison Square Garden 12 round bout, with the Trenton, N. J., Negro a 9 to 5 favorite to whip the Gary, Ind., lightweight in their third meeting.

Joyce snapped Williams' victory streak at 15 last Nov. 13, the first setback for Ike since he was stopped by Bob Montgomery. But the pride of Trenton bounced back to reverse it against Willie Jan. 8, flooring him twice. Both previous scraps were held in Philadelphia.

Williams cannot afford to lose a decision, as he is matched for a shot at Juan Zurita's 135 pound N. B. A. title in Philadelphia early next month.

TRIBUNE TRACK EXPERT NAMES FIVE WINNERS

Pendouble won the opening race on the program and paid $4.20. Generals Aide took the second at $3.40. Hard Blast scored in the fourth at $6.50. Watercolor won the eighth and paid $2.40, and Old Rosebush, the best bet on the card, breezed home in the ninth at $3.20.

Cup Play-Offs to Be Decided on Point Basis

MONTREAL, Que., March 1 (AP).—Stanley cup hockey play-offs will be decided on a point basis this year because the United States' curfew darkens all sports arenas at midnight.

Merwyn Dutton, president of the national hockey league, said today that two points would be given to each play-off game winner, none to the loser, and that teams involved in a tie would get one point each.

Dutton added that two overtime sudden-death periods of 20 minutes each would be permitted but all play must cease at 11:45 p. m. If each team has the same number of points at the end of the seven regular games, an eighth will be played on the rink of the host team in the seventh.

Montreal and Toronto are paired in one semi-final, starting in Montreal on March 20. Detroit will be host in the other opener on the same date but the Red Wings won't know until later if they will play the Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, or the Chicago Black Hawks.

LOYOLA SUFFERS WORST LOSS TO DE KALB, 81 TO 31

De Kalb Teachers college quintet defeated Loyola, 81 to 31, as both teams ended their season's basketball play in the Loyola gymnasium last night. It was Loyola's most one sided basketball defeat.

Noble Arnold, De Kalb center, scored 14 field goals and a free throw to account for 29 of his team's points, while Earl Dryden was runner-up for honors with 17. Henry Harkensee set the pace for Loyola with 13 points, acquired from four baskets and five free throws.

Youngsters Will Cast in Tribune Meet

BY BOB BECKER.

Boys and girls who like to cast all kinds of regular lures for fish outdoors or toss a ⅝ ounce casting plug indoors will have a chance to use their rods and reels in THE TRIBUNE'S annual casting tournament to be held in connection with the International Sportsmen's show in the Coliseum March 10 to 18.

As in former years the tournament has a special event for the boys and girls under 17. It's scheduled for 1:45 p. m. Saturday, March 17. There are no entry fees. All a boy or girl has to do to enter competition is to fill out the blank printed on this page and mail it to the Casting Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

War stamps will be awarded to the winners of first and second places in the junior event. Other high scorers will receive fishing lines, artificial bass lures, and other useful tackle items.

The youngsters' event is one of the most amusing of the tournament program for contestants may range in age from 10 to 17 years and each may have a different style in handling a rod and reel. Some of the boys who started competition in the junior event are today leading contestants in events for adults.

Bob Cammack of Hayward, Wis., and Chicago, one of the most consistent winners of the junior event for a number of years, started as a contestant when he was 8 years old and had to use both hands to wield a five foot bait casting rod. Cammack, now in service, has written the casting editor that he's been applying some of the skill he acquired in the Tribune contests to fishing in Hawaiian waters.

Boys, girls, and adults who want to participate in the nine day casting competition at the sports show are urged to mail their entries at once. All who enter will be mailed a complete program of the sports show tournament program and a copy of the simple rules which will govern all casting events.

DRAW PAIRINGS FOR SECTIONAL PLAY TOMORROW

The sectional meets will bring together the 60 regional champions. The sectional winners will meet in the state finals in Champaign March 15, 16, and 17. The pairings will be made by drawings, following the assignments.

CHICAGO FLYER NOW PLAYS IN ITALIAN LEAGUE

WITH 15TH ARMY AIR FORCE IN ITALY, Feb. 25 [Delayed].—Basketball is a favorite with the men of the 15th air force, but it is not always easy to find a place to play in Italy.

There wasn't a basketball court waiting for 2d Lt. John H. Tallett, 23, of 1830 Victoria st., North Chicago, when he arrived in Italy, but he later found that the game is also a favorite among the Italian civilians. Later a court was found in a small town near his bomber base and now Lt. Tallett, a former Notre Dame baseball star, is a member of a squadron team that plays regularly in his bomber wing league.

SAMUELSON PIN MEET ENTRIES CLOSE SUNDAY

Midnight Sunday will mark the close of entries to Jack Samuelson's 13th annual Century of Progress handicap bowling tournament for women, to be run in Bowling Lanes 5221 Broadway.

Restricted to the territory under the jurisdiction of the Chicago Women's Bowling association, the event has already drawn more than 300 to its lists, altho there are still many choice dates and starting times available.

Last year's tourney, which drew 473 teams, paid a total of $6,428. The tournament will run Saturdays and Sundays April 7-8, 14-15, 21-22, 28-29, May 5-6, and 12-13.

period, but was behind, 26 to 13, at the half. Tilden was outscored in the second half, too, 16 to 8, but the second quarter spurt was sufficient to outlast the Hyde Park rally.

Play-off Drawings Today.

August H. Pritzlaff, board of education director of physical education, members of the basketball committee, and board of control members of the four semi-finalists will meet at 3 p. m. today to make arrangements for play-offs.

Marshall's juniors last year represented the City league in the all-city championship double header in the Chicago stadium after Parker and Hyde Park had been declared ineligible. Since no team officially was recognized as junior champion, Marshall can be named defending champion on basis of its league titles from 1940 to 1943 inclusive. Parker's defeat of Marshall in last year's semi-finals, played before the former team was declared ineligible, was the Commando's first loss in 99 games.

In the all-city championship contests, played between the City and Catholic league champions, Weber defeated Marshall and Mount Carmel beat South Shore for a double Catholic victory.

Champions will be selected in regional basketball tournaments thruout Illinois today, with the interest of Chicagoland fans shifted toward Elmhurst, where Morton of Cicero will meet Riverside-Brookfield in the championship contest in that district.

Interest in the Morton-Brookfield meeting will be of paramount importance not only locally but thruout the state since each squad is rated among the 15 best in Illinois and each has been conceded a chance to win the state title. Riverside is champion of the West Suburban league, while Morton tied for the title in the Suburban circuit.

Both in Easy Victories.

Riverside won its semi-final contest last night with ease, defeating Glenbard, 43 to 32, in the second game at Elmhurst. Morton routed York, 54 to 22, in the first contest. Neither team was pressed in winning its preliminary contests earlier in the week.

Waukegan, co-champion of the Suburban league with Morton, received a scare in the Waukegan district but rallied to defeat New Trier, also of the Suburban league, 30 to 28.

Fades in Fourth Quarter.

The Winnetka five, which finished well down in the league race, contested the game closely thruout and controled matters thru the first half to finish with a 16 to 12 lead. The score was tied, 22 all, at the end of the third period, and remained close until two minutes to go when Johnny Pucin's free throw broke a 27 all deadlock and gave Waukegan the lead.

Dave Allen, high scorer with 13 points, followed with a field goal to make the score 30 to 27. Bill Hiyama of New Trier ended the scoring with a successful free throw.

The second game at Waukegan likewise was a thriller with Niles defeating Libertyville, 32 to 29, in the last minute of play after leading, 15 to 12, at the half.

Lane Scores Winning Goal.

A Libertyville rally caught Niles at 29 all with less than a minute remaining, and it appeared momentarily as if Libertyville might win. Johnny Lane, however, scored a field goal to put Niles ahead and Sam Nachbauer's free shot clinched the game. Lane led the scorers with 10 points.

Waukegan will be in the role of favorite in tonight's final game against the Niles five.

De Kalb Meet Ends.

Waterman won the tournament at De Kalb, defeating Shabbona, 44 to 36, as Clare Bale scored 21 points to lead the victors. The De Kalb meet began a day earlier than other tourneys thruout the state.

Rockford fans will divide their loyalty tonight in the finals there as two home town teams, East and West Highs, meet for the title after scoring lopsided semi-final victories. East advanced to the championship round by trouncing Belvidere, 77 to 28, while West routed Harlem of Rockford, 56 to 36.

At Joliet, Blue Island will meet Joliet in the finals. In last night's games Joliet defeated Thornton, 37 to 29, while Blue Island beat Peotone, 31 to 28.

BY JOSEPH HEARST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 1.—Joseph [Jo-Jo] Stinson, lawyer, poet, and artist, claimed a friendship with King George of England, it was disclosed at his District court sanity hearing today.

Detective Paul H. Clarke testified that when Stinson was picked up Jan. 15 and sent to the observation ward for mental tests, he told them he had just been to the home of Chief Justice Stone of the Supreme court.

"He said the justice was 'formerly Justice Stone but now he is Chief Injustice Stone'," Clarke testified. "He said he was a fraternity brother of Justice Stone and also a friend of the king of England."

In "Rundown Condition."

A sharp exchange between Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, the presiding judge, and Corporation Counsel Milton Korman enlivened the brief session. It occurred when Goldsborough refused to let Detective John Layton express an opinion as to Stinson's sanity, and said Stinson is in a rundown condition.

Korman protested there had been no testimony to that effect.

"It is perfectly evident that the actions of Mr. Stinson were made by a person under stress and might be the result of a highly nervous condition, not of unsoundness of mind," the judge said. "An experienced psychiatrist might be justified in expressing an opinion, but the court does not think a lay witness who has seen the individual for only a short time has the right to express an opinion which might influence the jury."

Stress Is Explained.

"May I ask the court what he means by stress?" asked Korman.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

POUND ADVISERS TURN DOWN BAN ON DOGS FOR N. U.

At a meeting marked by frequent controversies on points of order and of policy, the city dog pound advisory committee yesterday voted, with one dissenting voice, to recommend to the board of health that Northwestern university medical school continue to be allocated animals for medical experimentation and study.

The meeting, which was presided over by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, and was held in his offices at 54 W. Hubbard st., was an outgrowth of reports made earlier by committee members that Northwestern's dog kennels were dirty, malodorous, and uncomfortable and that state humane laws were being violated.

The committee's favorable action was the result of another inspection made Wednesday which, the report said, showed that conditions had vastly improved.

Dr. George H. Gardner, assistant dean of the university's medical school, explained that the conditions noted in the earlier reports were the result of difficulty in obtaining proper help.

STUDIES MOVE TO FORCE TAX BILL TO FLOOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 1.—Lottie Holman O'Neill [R., Downers Grove], Illinois' pioneer woman legislator, today was considering asking the house of representatives to take away from the revenue committee a bill that would give the counties 25 per cent of state inheritance tax revenues.

Rep. O'Neill is indignant about the manner in which the bill was shunted to a subcommittee. In legislative parlance, the measure is now buried there. The story of how this was accomplished may enliven debate if she carries the fight to the floor of the house.

The new roll call was announced as 15 to 14 to send the bill to subcommittee. There is no way to attack this record other than by motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill. This motion requires 77 votes.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

PAY 'ROYALTY' TO BUILD UNION FUND—LEWIS

Insists Miners Get 'Fringe' Raises.

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—John L. Lewis made a bold demand on bituminous operators today for a royalty of 10 cents a ton to be paid to the United Mine Workers' union, of which he is president.

The royalty, which topped a long list of other proposed pay concessions, was urged as a means to build up a 55 million dollar medical and rehabilitation fund for members of the union. It was advanced in negotiations with mine operators for a new contract to replace the one expiring March 31.

In that way Lewis shied away from a direct assault on the Little Steel formula. The same end was achieved by making the other demands on "fringe" issues not involving regular time pay.

Other Demands Listed.

Reinstitution of the seven hour day with time and a half for additional productive and underground travel time beyond seven hours a day and 35 hours a week. At present the miners receive 50 cents allowance for an estimated 45 minutes of "portal to portal" travel and work a nine hour day, including an unpaid 15 minute lunch period. Overtime at present does not begin until after the 40th hour each week.

Pay for six holidays.

Would Protect Veterans.

Joint effort by the union and companies to eliminate substandard housing conditions and "debased sanitary communities" in certain mining communities.

Charles O'Neill of Altoona, Pa., president of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Operators' association and spokesman for the operators, said Lewis' proposals would mean a wage increase for miners of more than $2 a day. "I counted up to $2 a man and I quit," O'Neill said. "Of course the count went well beyond that figure."

Argues for Royalty Plan.

Lewis said his royalty plan would not "violate the anti-inflation policy of the government in the Little Steel formula or any other formula." He added:

"This money would not be available for the purchase of goods and chattels, but would constitute an investment insurance. It is anti-inflationary and seeks only to promote the physical welfare of the miners, thereby increasing their productivity."

Lewis said he hoped "governmental interference would be kept to an irreducible minimum." He referred to what he termed "obstacles placed in our way by representatives of our existing government" in the 1943 negotiations which brought on strikes and resulted in enactment of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act.

Dodge Plant's Strikers Vote Down Return

Detroit, Mich., March 1 (AP).—Rebuffing their international union officers, striking employes of Chrysler corporation's Dodge main plant tonight voted down proposals to end a six day strike, one of two work stoppages involving nearly 24,000 Detroit war plant workers. Officers of the International United Automobile Workers [CIO] union pleaded unsuccessfully at a meeting for termination of the work stoppage by 13,500 strikers.

Approximately two-thirds of the 3,000 unionists attending the session opposed a motion proposing that the workers return to their jobs for eight days and in the meantime demand that the company reinstate eight workers. If the company failed to do this, the motion stated, the workers would resume their work stoppage.

Briggs Plant Is Idle.

Meanwhile, production remained at a standstill at the Briggs Manufacturing company's Mack av. plant where 5,800 workers quit work in a walkout that started this morning.

After a meeting of the Briggs strikers tonight, Jess Ferrazza, president of local 212, UAW-CIO, announced that the strikers had voted not to return to their jobs until discharged workmen had been taken back by the company.

Besides the 13,500 Dodge strikers, who for a week have defied return-to-work directives by the regional war labor board and UAW-CIO officers and pleas by army officers, an additional 4,550 workers were made idle in other Chrysler plants by a shortage of parts produced in the Dodge plant, and some 2,000 more, the company said, would be affected tomorrow.

Phone Strike Threatens.

New York, March 1 (AP).—A possible strike by 18,600 New York City telephone operators was implied today in a statement by Henry Mayer, national counsel for the Federation of Long Lines Telephone Workers, protesting a wage decision announced yesterday in Washington by the war labor board.

The WLB decision awarded wage increases of $3 a week to operators in New York City, Louisville, and Memphis. Pay boosts of $4 a week were given Washington operators.

MOTOR COACHES REPORT 5.7 PCT. PASSENGER GAIN

The Chicago Motor Coach company yesterday reported that 5,631,046 paying passengers were carried during February, compared with 5,327,280 a year ago, an increase of 5.7 per cent. For the first two months of 1945 cash fares totaled 11,818,122, against 10,831,392 a year earlier, an increase of 7.3 per cent.

The Chicago Rapid Transit [elevated] company carried 16,296,789 paying passengers last month compared with 15,256,550 in February, 1943, an increase of 6.8 per cent. During the first two months of 1944 34,213,182 passengers were carried against 30,823,868 a year earlier, an increase of 11 per cent.

CAR SHORTAGE, STOCK UPTURN, BOOST GRAINS

A critical shortage of box cars to move grain to terminal markets and prevent piling up of flour in mill warehouses, combined with strength in securities, lifted futures prices about a cent a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. The Canadian wheat board suspended the issuance of permits for shipment of oats, barley, and rye to the United States because of the car shortage.

Despite profit taking closing trades were near the top on the May futures. Wheat finished ¼ to 1 cent higher, corn gained ⅝ to ⅞ to a new high since mid-January, oats ⅛ to ⅜, rye 1 to 1¼, and barley ⅞ to 1 cent.

PRICES OF HOGS AT CEILING, THO SUPPLIES GAIN

Hog prices in the Chicago stock yards yesterday were at the second highest March 1 level in 25 years and 182 per cent above 1940, the year before this country entered the war. Nearly all stock was sold at the highest prices permitted by law, with $14.75 a hundred pounds the top and $14.70 the average. Receipts were larger.

More cattle arrived at the big markets, but demand was broad and increased offerings were absorbed at stronger prices. Lambs ruled 10 to 15 cents lower.

Champion Angus Bull Brings $10,000

Raona's Burges VII., owned by Ralph Wadley of Lansing, Mich., was sold last night for $10,000 to the Grand Rivers Stock farm, owned by the Hendren brothers of Weberville, Mich., soon after the bull was chosen grand champion of the national Aberdeen-Angus sale and show at the Chicago stock yards.

The reserve grand champion, Irenmere of Wheatland 21st, owned by J. B. Hollinger of Chapman, Kas., brought $6,000. The purchaser was the Ox Bow farm, Prairie City, Ore., but the price paid was not the second highest of the night. Frederic Bontecou, a New York state senator, paid $8,500 for a class winning bull for his farm near Millbrook, N. Y.

Auction of the 56 prize bulls and 210 prize females will be concluded today when the champion females are sold. W. H. Tomhave, sales manager, did not expect any record prices to be set. The all-time record, $40,000, was paid last year for the grand champion bull.

The Angus show is strictly a breeders' show, and judging was based on age, instead of the usual weight qualification. More than 700 potential purchasers, some dressed in overalls and others in mink, were on hand for the sale.

SOCIAL AGENCIES GET INCREASED DONATIONS FROM WIEBOLDT FUND

Net income of the Wieboldt Foundation in the year ended Nov. 30, 1944, was $343,614, including extraordinary income of $85,672, Werner A. Wieboldt, president, reported yesterday. Net income in 1943 was $269,322, and in 1942 was $212,337. Assets of the foundation totaled $5,136,372 on Nov. 30.

Wieboldt, who is chairman of the board of Wieboldt Stores, Inc., said the foundation made payments totaling $241,425 to 77 agencies during the year compared with $174,475 to 78 agencies in the preceding year.

"Group work agencies again received the largest share of the foundation's donations," Wieboldt said. "Thirty-four agencies were paid $84,300, or 35 per cent of the total. By supporting this classification, settlements, camps, neighborhood houses, Y. M. C. A.s, Y. W. C. As, Chicago boys' clubs, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, we were able to benefit the greatest number of boys and girls, as well as men and women, where social privileges are most needed."

OPA Seeking Price Curb in Surplus Sale

An important part of the program to control price inflation in the disposal of billions of dollars worth of surplus government goods of high consumer value consists in keeping sales within ceiling prices and protecting the government's financial interest, Allen Coe, war goods coordinator of the office of price administration, said yesterday.

"Until civilian production can be resumed in substantial quantities much of this surplus will meet pressing consumer demands," he told the war problems school of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the La Salle hotel.

Protect Government Interest.

Principles adopted by the OPA in establishing ceiling prices were that they should be in line with prices at which private sellers would sell the same merchandise, and that ceilings would be at varying levels of sales not only to protect resellers, but to enable the government to realize prices prevailing at the varying levels, he explained.

Coe said several commodities have been exempted from price control for sale by the government when little danger of inflationary prices existed.

Other OPA Rules Apply.

Where prices in dollars and cents terms have been established by other OPA regulations, such prices are applicable to government sale. If no ceiling prices in dollars and cents are established the government may sell at a price not to exceed its delivered cost, and it may sell no higher than manufacturers', producers', or processors' adjusted price lists.

He said that the principles of the OPA regarding government sales applied equally to sales of contract termination inventory, and that the resale by a private buyer of a commodity purchased from the government is subject to existing applicable regulations.

Ohio Edison to Refund 26 Millions of Bonds

Ohio Edison company, Akron, yesterday filed with the securities and exchange commission a plan to refund $26,089,000 of 3¾ per cent bonds by issuing the same amount of 30 year bonds at not more than 3 per cent, which would be offered under competitive bidding. The old bonds will be redeemed at 107½ per cent.

RFC TO ASSIST IN SMALL FIRM BANK FINANCING

Offers 75% of Loans by Credit Pools.

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—The Reconstruction Finance corporation announced tonight a far-reaching change in its lending operations, designed "to assure ample credit for business and industry, particularly small business for reconversion."

In addition to its established lending procedures, the RFC will cooperate with regional credit pools which banks are organizing thruout the country. It will take up to 75 per cent of such loans made thru the credit pools, when the pool managers wish. Thus, if a credit pool undertakes to make a $10,000 loan, the RFC, if requested by the pool managers, will supplement the amount by $30,000, for a total $40,000 loan.

Plan Effective at Once.

Procedure for "automatic participation" with credit pool members will be made available thru the RFC's 31 loan agencies. The new plan goes in effect immediately. RFC will charge 4 per cent interest on its portion of the loan and said the credit pool banks could charge up to 6 per cent for their participation.

The RFC, which has borrowing authority of about 14 billion dollars, has been accused by some critics of not making enough loans to small businesses.

The agency has just been divorced from the commerce department by congress. Charles B. Henderson is chairman of the board.

Jones' Position Not Clear.

Jesse Jones, ousted as secretary of commerce to create a job for Henry Wallace, has been federal loan administrator with supervision over the RFC. Whether Jones remains technically federal loan administrator is a question RFC aids would not discuss tonight. Jones has not moved out of his office in the RFC building.

The change in policy apparently strikes at the several proposals for other governmental agencies to lend money or guarantee private loans to small businesses.

A bill is pending in congress to give the Smaller War Plants corporation broad lending powers. Another would extend into the reconversion period powers of the federal reserve banks to guarantee loans.

LATE ADVANCES BY RAILS LIFT STOCK MARKET

New York, March 1 (AP).—A last hour rally by rail stocks helped offset profit cashing elsewhere today and lifted the over-all market average to another peak for nearly eight years.

Steels advanced at the opening. Dealings then slowed at intervals, but activity quickened appreciably as the carrier group came to the fore. Altho gains of 1 or more points were plentiful at the close, top marks for industrials were reduced in many cases. Sales totaled 2,090,000 shares.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday extended their advance, but turnover decreased to 64,000 shares. Volume leaders included New York Central, up ⅛ to a 1944-'45 peak of 25⅜; Peabody Coal, up ¼; Asbestos Manufacturing, up ⅛; Commonwealth Edison, unchanged, and Chicago corporation common, down ¼.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE.

New York, March 1 (AP).—Railroad bonds today again advanced major fractions to 2 points or more, but most other bonds held within a narrow range. Sales expanded to $12,290,000 from $11,920,000 yesterday.

Gen. Electric Profits Rise to $1.76 a Share

New York, March 1 [Special].—General Electric company today reported for 1944 net income available for dividends of $50,846,000, equa' to $1.76 a common share, an increase of 13 per cent over $44,923,000, or $1.56 a common share, earned in 1943.

Last year the company set aside $7,123,000 as provision for post-war adjustments and contingencies, compared with $5,323,000 in 1943. The 1944 results are after specific provision for renegotiation, but the 1943 figures are those after renegotiation settlement for that year.

Shipments Again Set Record.

Shipments billed to customers in 1944 set a record high for the fourth successive year, amounting to 1 billion 353 million dollars, or 5 per cent more than in 1943, said Charles E. Wilson, president.

Before provision for federal income taxes and post-war adjustments and contingencies, total income was 8 per cent larger than in 1943, but income from sales was only 5 per cent larger, the same percentage of increase as in sales volume, Wilson said.

From sources other than sales income was $17,123,000 in 1944, or $5,676,000 more than in 1943, of which 3½ million resulted from a change in the basis of valuation of marketable securities made on Dec. 31 so that book income from such securities might be reported on a basis more consistent with that used for federal tax purposes.

EDISON PROFIT LARGER

Commonwealth Edison company consolidated net earnings last year rose to $22,651,796, or $1.78 a share, from 1943 profit of $22,392,999, or $1.76 on a smaller number of shares then outstanding, Chairman Charles Y. Freeman told stockholders yesterday.

Electric output and total revenue rose to new highs, reflecting increased war time demand upon the company's production and service facilities, said Freeman. More than 40 per cent of the electric output of the Edison group was used for war production in 1944.

Sales of electricity in kilowatt hours were 5.7 per cent above 1943 volume and exceeded 10 billion for the first time. Industrial and commercial sales rose 9.8 per cent, and residential and rural sales, 3.9 per cent.

Electric Revenues Increase.

Electric revenues increased 4.7 per cent and provided almost 90 per cent of the $188,536,142 total operating revenues which were 4.2 per cent above the preceding year's. Total gas sales and revenues changed only nominally in 1944. Space heating requirements were affected by warmer weather in the 1944 heating months, Freeman said.

Operating costs rose 3.4 per cent. Tax provisions, however, decreased to $36,526,598 from $40,926,891. Freeman said the Edison companies are engaged in renegotiation proceedings for 1942 and 1943, but no excessive profits were believed to have been made.

NOT CONSIDERING GOLD HIKE, SAYS TREASURY CHIEF

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—Secretary Morgenthau today said there is no pressure on the treasury for an increase in the price of gold.

"I haven't given the matter a thought for quite a while," he told a news conference.

"Do you expect to?" he was asked.

Some western members of congress have proposed that the price of gold be raised from the present $35 an ounce to $56.

U. S. Granted Six Months to File Cheese Trust Bill

Federal District Judge Shaw yesterday granted the government six months more in which to prepare a bill of particulars against 101 defendants charged with conspiracy to fix prices to both producers and consumers on American cheese and cheese products. The indictment was one of two brought March 18, 1942, against members of the industry. Defendants in the other indictment, charging conspiracy to fix brick cheese prices, were acquitted Jan. 14, 1944.

2 BIGGEST CIO UNIONS AMASS UNTAXED CASH

Monthly Revenues Near 1 Million.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The two largest CIO unions each have tax free incomes of about 1 million dollars a month or about 12 million a year, larger than the earnings of many corporations in the industries in which the unions operate. These revenues may be used by the unions as they see fit, to finance further organization activity or to lay aside reserves for the future. Unlike the corporations, the unions can spend or save for their own purposes the revenues collected while a large share of the earnings of the corporations are paid in federal income taxes which run as high as 80 per cent.

The two CIO giants are the United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers, commonly known as the CIO United Auto Workers, and the United Steel Workers of America.

Order Special Assessment.

The auto workers, rated the largest union organization in the world, has more than 1 million members each of whom pays $1 a month in dues. Sixty cents of each dollar collected is retained by the local union, 40 cents being remitted to the national organization. Altho membership has shrunk 150,000 in the last four months the auto workers are paying into their union treasuries more than 1 million dollars monthly in regular dues. Despite this huge intake the union has been spending so heavily that a special assessment of $1 per member has been ordered collected April 1 to help meet operating expenses.

The special assessment will enable the union to maintain its present staff of 400 organizers, union officials report. Recently the auto workers began a drive to organize farm implement plants in Chicago where a rival CIO union, the Farm Equipment and Metal Workers, is dominant. In this jurisdictional war the auto workers group is expected to draw heavily on its available funds.

Reports Cash Decline.

Altho membership of the auto workers union has increased over the last two years the organization's cash reserves have been shrinking. George F. Addes, secretary, reported that cash at the end of last year was $1,036,000, a decline of about $500,000 in the last six months of the year. The union has a "special reserve fund" of 3 million dollars but whether this is segregated from other union funds was not made clear.

With about 750,000 members, the steel workers' union has a cash income approaching that of the auto union. Its resources, including cash assets, are larger. Its most recent report for the period from Dec. 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944, listed total income of approximately $5,500,000, indicating a yearly income of 11 millions. Most of the income, $5,160,187, came from dues of members. The remainder represented interest on investments, rentals, and initiation fees.

Steel Union Young.

Total resources of the union on June 30 last year exceeded 4 million dollars and net worth, after deducting liabilities, was close to 4 millions. The resources were itemized as follows:

Cash	$2,013,373
U. S. and Canadian gov. securities	1,595,904
Office funds and receivables	127,004
Real estate, buildings and furniture	392,941
Total resources	$4,129,123
Less liabilities	221,199
Net worth	$3,907,924

Like the auto union, the steel workers' organization is comparatively new. It was formed in 1936 by the CIO as the Steel Workers' Organizing committee. In 1942 the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers affiliated with the steel workers and the union acquired its present name and charter. In a relatively few years the organization has attained comparative stability in its finances. Unlike the auto union its income is exceeding its expenditures, its latest report shows.

Dissenting Group Leaves.

The auto workers' union, first organized in 1935, has gone thru a series of internal wars. In 1941 part of its membership seceded and formed the AFL-United Automobile Workers of America. The latter organization, however, has a membership of less than 50,000, compared with the CIO union's 1 million. The Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union whose field the auto workers group is invading has 60,000 dues paying members.

[The finances of two of the older and wealthier railroad unions will be discussed in a subsequent article.]

C. & N. W. Free of Court Rule After 10 Years

Almost 10 years of litigation ended yesterday when Judge Barnes of United States District court entered a final decree discharging the Chicago and North Western railway from further reorganization proceedings. The decree said that principal provisions of the reorganization under voluntary bankruptcy proceedings instituted June 28, 1935, had been carried out. It said that 96 per cent of the old securities had been exchanged for those of the new company and that "adequate and proper" psovision had been made for exchanging the remainder. Judge Barnes set formal termination for June 1.

The court discharged the trustee, Claude A. Roth, and the reorganization managers, Frederick W. Walker, Henry Bruere, and Russell L. Snodgrass from their duties, and approved their expenses.

Former Stockholders Eliminated.

The original equity of common and preferred stockholders totaling 180 million dollars was eliminated in the reorganization. Capitalization was reduced from $547,567,847 to $449,974,309, and fixed interest charges were cut from $16,549,740 as of 1938 to $3,382,079 a year.

Bondholders received fixed interest bearing securities for part of their original holdings, and most of them also received contingent interest bonds and stock.

The initial plan of reorganization was filed with the court by the railroad in June, 1936, and hearings before the interstate commerce commission began in September, 1936. An amended plan was filed late in 1937.

Final Plan Issued in 1939.

In April, 1939, an ICC examiner recommended reorganization of the North Western with further reduced capitalization and fixed charges, and in December of that year the ICC issued its final reorganization plan. This plan was given final approval by Judge Barnes, leaving only the disposal of an appeal by stockholders to end the reorganization.

In February of 1942 the United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the District court's approval; in April, 1943, the Supreme court rejected an appeal, and in May, 1944, Judge Barnes ordered the railroad turned over to the new company.

GROUP OPPOSES SALE OF SPEEDY SHIPS ABROAD

Washington, D. C., March 1 (AP).—A group of shipping associations proposed today that no fast American merchant ships be sold abroad until two years after the end of the war.

"It now appears likely that we may not have a sufficient number of the more desirable types of fast ships to meet this nation's own requirements," Almon E. Roth, president of the National Federation of American Shipping, Inc., told the house merchant marine committee.

Roth urged the committee to amend a bill providing for the sale of surplus vessels to prohibit sale of anything except Liberty ships and tankers for two years after the war ends and to guarantee that foreign shipping interests be given no advantages over domestic operators in ship purchases.

February Construction Exceeds January 24 Pct.

New York, March 1 (AP).—February civil engineering construction in continental United States totaled $109,516,000, or 24 per cent higher than January but 7 per cent under a year ago, and the lowest for February since 1935, Engineering News-Record reported today. Public construction exceeded January by 45 per cent and private building declined 12 per cent.

McKINLAY CITES PROFIT RISE TO DEFEND RECORD

Rasmussen Assails Nat. Tea Report.

Before quitting his position as chairman and chief executive of the National Tea company, John McKinlay yesterday made public an annual statement addressed to shareholders in which he replied in detail to charges of "poor management" made by certain stockholders.

John McKinlay.

McKinlay's action brought a prompt statement from Robert V. Rasmussen, president of the company, that the statement released by McKinlay was "premature" and that directors would hold a special meeting next Monday to consider "the form and content" of the annual report to shareholders.

Reports Profit Trebled.

McKinlay said that his report was a "complete answer" to the charges made by John F. Cuneo and associated stockholders that his management of the company had been "ineffectual." He reviewed in detail the financial results of the company since he took charge in 1938. Included was a record of the earnings which showed that in 1944 the company earned $1,066,663. This was three times the profit of $351,892 reported for 1943.

Rasmussen indicated that the report prepared and made public by McKinlay would be superseded by a new report to stockholders to be agreed upon next Monday. He refused to verify the figures contained in the report signed by McKinlay and certified by the auditors. Rasmussen said he had no knowledge of McKinlay's action in releasing the statement until the first published reports appeared late yesterday.

Rasmussen said, in reply to questions, that McKinlay is still the chief executive officer of the company. However, he questioned McKinlay's authority to release the report.

Says Board Approved Report.

Informed of Rasmussen's statement McKinlay said: "The report was unanimously approved by the board of directors several days ago. I hear that Cuneo is protesting the release of the report, but there is nothing he can do about it."

McKinlay's report recalled that since the loss of nearly a million dollars in 1938, the first year of his management, the company has shown a steady improvement. Since 1940 profits have increased steadily with the 1944 earnings reaching the highest level since 1933. Furthermore, McKinlay said, the company paid off 3 million dollars in bank loans last year and does not owe a cent to the banks. The company paid in 1944 its first common dividend since 1937, he said.

Referring to the recent agreement among leading stockholders which would give the Cuneo group representation on the board, McKinlay said: "Since certain changes have been agreed to by leading stockholders, all I need to say is I will not be part of the new setup."

Plans to Resign Soon.

Earlier McKinlay had announced his intention to resign not later than the annual meeting of stockholders scheduled for March 21.

Under the recent agreement reached by stockholders, Cuneo and certain associates are expected to be elected to the board. The proxy statement containing a slate of new directors is being made up and is expected to be mailed to shareholders in a few days.

UNION OUSTS PAL OF SCALISE; SUES 4 FOR $100,000

In action unprecedented in labor union history, William L. McFetridge, president of the Building Service Employes' International union [AFL], yesterday ousted David Sullivan, boss of local 32-B of New York City, from his office as vice president of the BSEIU and from union membership, obtained an injunction against Sullivan to prevent him from removing books and records of the New York local, and filed suit in Superior court to recover $100,000 in union funds.

Sullivan is a protege of George Scalise, former president of the BSEIU, who is now serving a five to 10 year sentence for theft of union funds. Scalise once served a prison term for transporting a girl across a state line for immoral purposes.

Scalise forced the membership of local 32-B to elect Sullivan as secretary-treasurer in 1936. When James J. Bambrick, president of the local, was given a two year sentence in 1941 for misusing $10,000 of local union funds, Sullivan assumed the president's office. Scalise engineered Sullivan's election to the office of vice president of the BSEIU.

Seeks to Erase Stigma.

McFetridge said his ouster of Sullivan and court action were part of his efforts, since his election in 1941 to succeed Scalise, to remove the "Scalise stigma" from the BSEIU.

Last October, after McFetridge had received many complaints from members of local 32-B that Sullivan had taken over all the offices of the local union and was operating the local "only for his own personal benefit," McFetridge took over supervision and assigned an international auditor to examine the finances of the local, which has 15,000 to 25,000 members.

McFetridge received the auditor's report Feb. 27. In it he detected Sullivan's illegal transactions, he said yesterday, and called upon Daniel D. Carmell, attorney for the union, and A. L. Hodson of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis, to prepare the court action against Sullivan.

Suit Names Three Chicagoans.

Named as defendants with Sullivan in the suit filed yesterday were three union members, "all residents of Chicago," identified as John Doe, Richard Roe, and Walter Roe.

Sullivan was accused of misappropriating local 32-B funds "in excess of $50,000" which were due to the international union in the form of per capita and initiation fees, during Scalise's reign. The suit charged that he wrote checks to the international union, cashed them, and pocketed the proceeds.

It was charged that Sullivan collected from the international union death benefit payments on persons who never were members of local 32-B and that he diverted $22,300 of local union funds to himself.

Charge Other Abuses.

McFetridge asserted that Sullivan made strike benefit checks payable to cash and indorsed them. Sullivan also was accused of paying thousands of dollars in union funds to two members of the local who were sentenced to jail for extortion.

"In the year 1941 one Frank Gold, a member of local 32-B," the suit continued, "was indicted and convicted of extortion. In 1940 one Manuel Severino, another member of the local, was indicted for injury to property and pleaded guilty thereto.

"Defendant Sullivan paid or caused to be paid from union funds sums of money monthly to Gold and Severino during their imprisonment, and upon their release Sullivan paid them further large sums upon their agreement not to insist upon reinstatement in local 32-B."

The suit alleged that from 1938 to 1944 Sullivan illegally hired lawyers to defend members indicted for extortion, including Scalise, at an average yearly cost of $40,000.

YOUTH SEVERELY BURNED.

Ralph East, 16, of 3796 W. 81st st., suffered severe burns yesterday when an open can of anti-freeze solution caught fire as he was trying to light a hot water heater in the basement of his home.

7 SEIZED AFTER FIGHT OF RIVAL CIO GROUPS AT HARVESTER PLANT

Fights among members of two CIO unions engaged in a jurisdictional dispute led to the arrest of seven men yesterday at the gates of the International Harvester company tractor works, 2600 W. 31st st.

The fighting was the first violence reported in the struggle between the United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers' union and the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union to control the tractor plant employes. The UAW is attempting to absorb the UFE membership.

The violence occurred during the distribution of leaflets by UAW members. In one bout, Paul Biscegila, 27, of 4349 Komensky av., and Lawson Morton, 42, of 6121 S. Marshfield av., both UFE members, charged they were knifed by Jack Barnes, 33, of 3706 South Park way, a Negro UAW member. They charged him with assault with a deadly weapon, and he charged them with assault.

A few minutes later, four UFE members were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct for interference with UAW workers. They are: Ruben Silverman, 31, of 3909 W. 16th st.; Alfred Lindner, 42, of 3801 N. Albany av.; Theodore Hahn, 36, of 3541 Carroll av., and Mathew Bednard, 33, of 1916 S. Spaulding av.

CHURCH COUNCIL ASSAILS ODT FOR CONVENTION BAN

New York, March 1 [Special].—The Christian Beacon, weekly organ of the American Council of Christian Churches, today denounced Col. J. Monroe Johnson, chief of the office of defense transportation, as a "dictator" using totalitarian methods in forbidding, except by special permit, church conventions, Bible conferences, and other meetings of religious groups of more than 50 persons.

At the same time, the Rev. H. McAllister Griffiths, general secretary of the council, in a letter to Col. Johnson expressing opposition to his order, said, "To strike at vital Christian functions simply for the purpose of eliminating a good deal of rail travel by one act, is to us definitely discriminatory, unconstitutional, and in violation of these principles of freedom which underlie all specific constitutional provisions."

The Rev. Carl McIntire, editor of the Christian Beacon and vice president of the council, which includes 14 denominations with a membership of 2,000,000, declared in the publication he believed the first of the four freedoms—freedom of the church and religion—was at stake.

First Time in History.

"Never in the history of the United States has religion in any way had to go to the government for a permit to holding meetings of any kind," wrote Dr. McIntire. "Never in the history of the United States has the government sought such control over the churches as is now attempted in the present ruling of the ODT.

"The control is so thoro, so sweeping, so radical, and it has been presented in such a way that churchmen and Christian people do not understand it and some have been misled and deceived by it."

"The language which is used is of the most authoritarian nature. The type of thing that we have here is exactly what is done in Russia."

Talked Like Dictator.

Dr. McIntire then described a conference he and other leaders of the council had with Col. Johnson in Washington Feb. 20. The most intolerable part of the conference, he wrote, came when Col. Johnson explained his powers to the delegation "in the most authoritarian manner."

"He used the word 'I' constantly, and we saw in him the evil effects of burocratic control," wrote Dr. McIntire. "He talked very much as a dictator would."

Dr. McIntire declared it was his contention that the entire situation was uncalled for.

75 CALL OFF STRIKE THAT LED TO LAYOFF OF 6,400 AT PLANT

Faced with a war labor board order that they terminate their strike and return to work this morning, 75 locomotive firemen and engineers, on strike yesterday for the second time this week at the Indiana Harbor plant of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, voted to return to work at midnight last night.

The strikers, who are members of the United Steel Workers' union [CIO], left their jobs to force the company to invoke the railroad union's "featherbed rules" which would require the company to put two men in the cab of a newly acquired diesel locomotive used for interplant material hauling.

Before the men terminated their strike more than 7,000 tons of ingot steel needed for the manufacture of varied critical war materials had been lost and 6,400 other workers had to be laid off because they lacked materials for their work. The plant was shut down on both occasions.

Lester Thornton, subdistrict director of the CIO union, said the strikerr voted to return because "the WLB directive assured the men that the board would hear and settle the dispute."

NEW TAX RATE $3.97, HIGHEST IN CITY HISTORY

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

County Clerk Flynn announced yesterday that the 1944 tax rate in Chicago would be $3.97 on the $100 of assessed valuation—the highest in history. The 1943 tax rate was $3.90.

Making up the rate are the requirements of six major taxing bodies. Cook county gets 34 cents, an increase of 10 cents from 1943; the forest preserve, 4 cents, unchanged; sanitary district, 34 cents, up 1 cent; schools, $1.38, down 5 cents; city, $1.48, up 2 cents, and park district, 44 cents, down 1 cent.

190 Millions in Taxes.

The rate is expected to produce more than 160 million dollars for the tax bodies; it is impossible to give an exact figure as the board of tax appeals may cut assessments for complaining real estate owners. The board already has completed work on personal property complaints.

The city assessments to which the tax rate will be applied aggregate $4,886,619,059, compared to $4,826,912,223 for 1943. This year's excess was due wholly to the placing of more personal property on the rolls, real estate and railroad assessments [the last made by the state revenue department] being lower than a year ago.

Bills in Mail by March 31.

Assessments last year were delayed and the rate was not figured until May 1. Bills were not all mailed until June 1 and the first penalty date for payment was delayed until July 1, the law requiring that 30 days must elapse between receipt of the bill and application of the penalty of 1 per cent a month.

Flynn said his office already was working on the bills and they will be mailed by March 31. May 1 will be penalty time for all personal property tax and half of realty taxes.

Only a few suburban rates, in nearly every case higher than a year ago, were announced. The Oak Park rate is $3.06, compared to $2.84 in 1943. Evanston [school district 75 and N. E. park district] will pay $3.06, compared to $2.69. Wilmette's rate will be $3.03, compared to $2.77; Glencoe's $3.26, compared to $2.82, and Winnetka's $2.78, compared to $2.69.

Berwyn is raised from $3.27 to $3.44 and River Forest from $2.84 to $3.01. Cicero is increased from $3.55 to $4.03. [In the villages there may be slight variations due to rates levied by different school districts.]

SCHOOL TYPEWRITERS STOLEN.

Sherwood elementary school, 243 W. 47th st., was looted Wednesday night of four typewriters, a portable record player, and some gymnasium suits, Principal Carroll Brown reported yesterday to police.

WOMAN TENANT, 58, DISAPPEARS; JANITOR IS HELD

Joseph Nischt, 30, janitor in the apartment building at 6855 Clyde av., from which a resident, Mrs. Rose Michaelis, 58, mysteriously disappeared Wednesday afternoon, was subjected to a lie detector test last night after Capt. Edward Kelly of Woodlawn police and Lt. Phil Breitzke of the homicide squad had questioned him for three hours.

Nischt denied any knowledge of the woman's disappearance, but admitted he was arrested in 1938 on a charge of attempted burglary and was released.

Sgt. Emmett Murphy said the lie detector test indicated, however, that the janitor might know something about her disappearance and may have withheld some information concerning his movements on the afternoon she vanished. Nischt was held for further questioning.

Find Clews in Alley.

Mrs. Michaelis was missing when her husband, Milton, an estimator for the Hamilton Glass company, 401 Elizabeth st., arrived home Wednesday night. When she failed to appear, he called police, who searched the alley at the rear of the Michaelis second floor apartment and found a heel from the missing woman's shoe, her rear door key, and a broken water bottle. Outside Nischt's back door, police found blood spots on a telegraph pole.

The husband said his wife usually went to the filtration plant at 68th st. and Oglesby av. each afternoon for water. He expressed the belief that she was returning home from there when she met with foul play.

Neighbor Hears Woman Scream.

A theory that the woman had been struck by a hit and run driver who had spirited away his victim was discarded when a neighbor, Harold Lowenstein, 6853 Clyde av., reported he heard a woman scream about 6 p. m. Wednesday. He said he heard her yell "Let go!" four distinct times.

Nischt told police he left his apartment at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday, went to a 71st st. real estate office, then to a tavern next door until 7 p. m. Returning home, he remained inside until about 9, when he went to the basement to fix the fires.

Asleep When Wife Returns.

His wife, Florence, 40, to whom he has been married 8 years, said she left the apartment about 7 p. m. and visited a friend until 11, when she returned home. Her husband was in bed asleep when she arrived.

Altho police carefully searched the neighborhood all day yesterday, no trace of the woman could be found and last night park police were ordered to search Jackson park, about two blocks from the scene.
